Upperclassmen May Sing On 'Frosh Revenge' Day

The persecuted freshmen would have their revenge on tormenting upperclassmen if a custom's "turn-about-day" were enforced, as recommended by Student Encampment.

The Orientation, Tradition and School Spirit workshop suggested as part of the customs program a day be designated

Committees To Supply IFC Officers

Future Interfraternity Council officers will be chosen from this year's IFC committee members according to a new system devised by the council.

James Hart, IFC president, explained the "committee system" to more than 450 pledges at an orientation meeting Wednesday night.

The purpose of the meeting was to make clear to the pledges their place in IFC and also to acquaint them with the new system.

Under the plan, a pledge can work his way up from serving on a committee to holding an IFC office. Future officers will be chosen from members of the various committees. The work of these groups will range from rushing plans to scholarship problems to Greek Week arrangements.

Hart will choose the committee chairmen from junior class applicants. Most of the chairmen have been selected but a few posts are still open.

In turn, the chairmen and Leonard Sichel, new IFC vice president, will choose committee members from sophomore class applicants.

Sichel, former IFC administrative vice president, took Thomas Schneider's post as executive vice president. Academic reasons prevented Schneider from accepting the position this year.

Applications for committee positions may be filled out at the Hetzel Union desk. All applicants must turn in the forms to the fraternity affairs office by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

4-H Freshmen Will Meet

The 4-H Club will hold a freshmen meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in 100 Weaver.

There are two kinds of scallops on the market. One variety is the small bay scallop, the other the large sea scallop.

Students Get 'Unexpected' Bit of Praise

Students have long been censured for everything from apathy to lack of academic spirit, but here is a bit of praise from perhaps an unexpected source.

Employees from the State Department of Highways have reported that not one of the 28 automatic traffic counters used during last spring's traffic tabulations showed evidence of tampering.

The machines were in continuous operation at 14 conspicuous locations on campus for seven days. No doubt they presented quite a temptation to curious passersby. Apparently all resisted temptation.

One of the men who tended the machines during the week said he has never met with such a complete lack of vandalism.

University students are a breed apart from the norm, he said.

"In every other college town in which we have worked, the machines have sustained extensive damage," Carlisle, the site of Dickinson College, was especially bad, he said.

Perhaps this is more or less of a backhanded compliment. Perhaps student restraint is an expected thing, about which no special point should be made.

2 Ag Students Given Grants

Two agricultural students have been awarded Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association scholarships.

Donald Haller, junior from Erie, received a $300 scholarship and Richard Grubb, senior from State College, received a $400 scholarship.

Scholarships were based on interest in agricultural industry, personal attitudes, characteristics and need.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau scholarships are awarded annually. Fourth semester students may apply. Recommendations are made by the College of Agriculture Committee on Academic Standards.

Blizzard Elected to Post

Samuel W. Blizzard, former professor of rural sociology, has been elected vice president of the American Sociological Society.

Blizzard is now professor of sociology at the Princeton University of Theology.

Steber Acclaimed International Star

Eleanor Steber, who will open the Artists' Series with a concert at 8 p.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium, is acclaimed as an international star of opera, concert, radio, television and recordings.

Miss Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, has already sung 32 different leading operatic roles ranging from the coloratura soprano to the dramatic soprano repertoires.

She participated in the First International Music Festival in Athens, and has appeared at such important European festivals as Bayreuth, Edinburgh, Glyndebourne, Vienna, Verona and Florence.

Among her recent triumphs at the Metropolitan Opera was the creation of the title role in the American premiere of Richard Strauss' "Arabella."

Sang in Eight Mozart Operas

Recognized as one of the foremost Mozart interpreters of the era, she appeared last year in eight of the leading roles of Mozart's operas as a part of the Mozart Bicentennial celebrations.

The series, which will include at least 17 programs, was inaugurated this year, supported primarily by a $2 semester student fee.

Although no seats will be reserved, tickets will be needed for admission to the building, which will be opened at 8 p.m. Students earlier this week picked up nearly 900 free tickets, and about 180 tickets will be made available to non-students today at $1.75 per ticket.

Strict Traffic Rules To Be Enforced

Traffic and parking regulations on campus will be more strictly enforced, effective immediately.

Col. Lucien E. Bolduc, chief of the Campus Patrol, said warning notices rather than "tickets" were issued to violators last week because many students had not yet been issued permits.

Student violators will be summoned before Traffic Court. Faculty and staff violations will be handled with a system of warnings and fines by administrative officers of the University.

Language Prof Named To Dialect Study Group

Dr. Simon Belasco, associate professor of Romance languages, has been appointed to the advisory and planning board of the American Library of Recorded Dialect Studies.

The library is developing procedures to insure consistency and comparability of findings of different investigators in all spoken languages by means of standardized tape recorded interviews.

Shortage Of Chairs Seen In Boucke

Many students are now sitting in folding chairs in the new Boucke Building.

This is the result of a classroom equipment shortage in the building, especially on the first and second floors. The shortage is the greatest problem facing the scheduling office, which, in addition to scheduling classes in proper rooms, must see that there is enough classroom equipment to accommodate all the students.

Ray V. Watkins, scheduling officer, said the problem began when the tables and chairs for the accounting and business statistics laboratories in Boucke did not arrive for the first day of classes.

To solve this, movable "tablet-arm" chairs were put into these rooms. The entire surplus supply of these chairs was exhausted. Enough chairs were provided to accommodate all the classes to meet in each specific room.

However, students and faculty members began to shift the chairs from room to room so that there was a shortage in many classrooms. One room had only 15 chairs for a class of 35 students. Straight folding chairs have had to be put in some rooms.

The laboratory equipment should arrive this week, Watkins said. At that time all the desks, tables and chairs in the building will be rearranged.

"The chairs in Boucke Building have arms of plastic which defy carving of any kind," he added.

However, one chair was broken in the first floor auditorium of the building when a student sat on the arm.

Students Asked to File Address, Phone Changes

Students who have changed their local address or telephone number since registering have been asked to file a change of address in 4 Willard if they wish to have the correct information in the Student Directory.

A form should also be filed if the home address of a student has been changed, according to Robert M. Koser, associate registrar.

Psych Prof in Symposium

Dr. Ellen V. Piers, assistant professor of psychology, participated in a symposium on "Personality Dynamics and Their Relations to School Planning" last week at the annual meetings of the American Psychological Association in New York, N.Y.

on which the freshmen could ask upperclassmen to sing and cheer.

Other recommendations along the same line were:

• The "hello spirit" be strengthened by designating certain days as "hello days."

• The grade of customs' violators be revived.

The workshop also suggested several changes in the counseling program. It was recommended that a big-and-little-sister program be established for women students.

Recommendation Approved 41-26 Some Encampment participants said such a program is unnecessary. After discussion in the final plenary session the recommendation was approved 41 to 26.

Discussion on the men's counseling program produced the following recommendation:

"We believe that men's orientation counseling might be improved by assigning a selected upperclass counselor to each group in addition to the hat men counselors." The upperclassmen would answer questions related to specific curriculums and the colleges of the students.

This curriculum counselor would be selected on the basis of outstanding achievements, personality and membership in a professional or honorary organization.

A related suggestion asked that student counselors be selected early enough in the spring to afford opportunity for more briefing and training during the spring semester.

Attacks Temporary Living

Temporary living facilities for new women students came under fire by the workshop. Members recommended the conditions be improved by providing adequate studying facilities. It also was recommended that a survey be taken by the office of the dean of women to determine the effects the temporary living facilities have on their occupants.

Leslie Phillabaum, junior in business administration from Fort Fort, was workshop chairman. Ruth Johnson, vice president of the Education Student Council, was secretary.
