

Three Sophomores Injured In Auto Crash Near Tyrone

Three University students from Pittsburgh are in Tyrone Hospital following an auto crash Sunday night nine miles east of Tyrone.

The accident was one of four involving University students over the weekend.

None of the three students are in serious condition.

Judith Trench, 19, sophomore in arts and letters, the most seriously injured, received a fracture of the left clavicle and dislocation of the left humerus. Her condition is fair.

Diane Morrocco, 19, sophomore in education, is in good condition from cuts of the forehead. She is being treated for shock. Robert Teifeld, 19, sophomore in electrical engineering, is in fair condition from head injuries. Teifeld and Misses Trench and Morrocco were passengers in a car driven by George Hawthorne, junior in the division of counseling from Oakedale. Hawthorne and Jill Fine, sophomore in arts and letters from Pittsburgh, another passenger, were treated at the hospital and returned to campus.

State police said the Hawthorne auto was struck by a car driven by Gerald R. Bretts of Philadelphia, a University graduate, who reportedly lost control of his car after passing on a curve.

Bretts was traveling toward Hawthorne and, after passing an unidentified auto, went off his side of the highway. Hawthorne said Bretts swerved back onto the road and crashed into the left side of his car. The Hawthorne vehicle was pushed off the highway and against a tree about 10 feet from the road.

Former State Sen. A. H. Letzler of Houtzdale was one of the drivers in a three-car accident early Friday night. Police said he stopped for a stop sign on Route 322 near Tusseyville when his auto was struck from behind by one driven by John Buchart, sophomore in chemistry from York. The Buchart car was struck from behind by a third vehicle, driven by Robert Brown, a student from Glenside.

Damage to the front and rear of the Buchart car totaled approximately $1000. Brown's auto received $250 damage and Letzler's, $200.

Leader Reiterates Request to Curb Student Drinking

The University has received a letter sent to all colleges in the state by Gov. George M. Leader urging a crackdown on student drinking.

The letter—a follow-up of a similar letter sent out last year—said the governor hopes the colleges are keeping the matter in mind.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the President, said the University will acknowledge receipt of the letter.

President Eric A. Walker last October said he did not view drinking as a "terrific problem." The laws of the commonwealth, he said then, work for everyone, and no group at the University is exempt from them.

Last year he also said "each student here has an extra responsibility as a member of this University. We expect students to refrain from disgracing the University."

He said many students drank before they came to the campus. Thus, people ought to realize, Walker said, that drinking is a problem of population, wherever it may be, and not a special habit bred on campus.

He said no further restrictions were contemplated if fraternities and other groups stayed within the law and existing University regulations.

University policy is to frown on drinking and it does not approve the use of alcoholic beverages by students or student groups, according to the dean of men's office.

The University expects students to obey the laws of the state and the nation.

Leader's letter requested the cooperation of the President "in stamping out the serving of alcoholic beverages to minors on the school campus and its neighborhood."

The state liquor code provides "it shall be unlawful for any individual to sell, furnish or give any liquor, malt or brewed beverages, or to permit any of the above beverages to be sold, furnished or given to any minor."

Leader's crackdown on minor drinking will extend to state stores and other sellers of alcoholic beverages.

Asiatic Flu Inoculations Start Today

Inoculations against Asiatic flu will be given at the Health Center starting this morning.

Shots will be given on a first come basis and will cost $1.

The University's program is part of a nationwide prevention effort. Sporadic outbreaks of the flu have already been reported in parts of the country but the epidemic, if there is going to be one, is not expected to reach the United States until December or January.

The first inoculations at the University were given Sept. 16 and 17, with 636 students receiving the vaccine.

The Health Service has ordered 7500 doses of the serum, but because of the great demand for it throughout the country, only a small amount at a time is received.

If the student body accepts the vaccine favorably, enough will be ordered to immunize the entire student body, according to Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of the Health Service. The vaccine is reported 70 per cent effective and is the only preventive.

Lion Predicts Possible Rains

Today's prediction calls for warmer temperatures with possible showers. The expected high will range from 65-70 degrees.

The warmer weather failed to arouse the Nittany Lion this morning. He apparently had barricaded the door to his cave and was recuperating from violent exertions. The Lion was watching the intramural football games last night, when the football was accidentally kicked into his paws.

After watching baseball games all summer, the Lion assumed that the "foul" ball was his to keep. In the violent chase which ensued, he was finally "downed" at the door to his cave.

The teams, of course, showed little sense of humor about the whole thing, and the Lion was severely wounded, suffering lacerations of the tail.

2000 Books Unsold At Close of UBA

The Used Book Agency reported 2000 books remaining after the book sales closed.

The agency took in 8500 books and sold 6500. More books were turned in, but could not be sold because of course changes.

The UBA began returning money and unsold books yesterday and will continue to do so until Friday. Green slips given out when the books were turned in must be presented when claiming money and books. New UBA hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Books and money not claimed within 30 days after the close of the book sale become the property of the Book Exchange.

Penn Victory Proves Gridders Need Work

By VINCE CAROCCI Sports Editor

If nothing else, Penn State's 19-14 victory over Penn Saturday afternoon at Franklin Field proved that Coach Rip Engle wasn't fooling when he gloomily said last week at a pregame pep rally: "We still have a lot of work to do."

Engle and his staff—and probably the team—realized this last week. The Lion fans found out for themselves Saturday afternoon—somewhat shockingly, we might add—after watching the vastly-improved Quakers rebound from a two-touchdown deficit to turn an expected romp into a closely contested battle.

After the game, Engle again

Band Day Tickets Will Go on Sale

Approximately 1500 football tickets for the band day game between Penn State and William and Mary will go on sale at 8:15 a.m. tomorrow at the ticket office, Recreation Hall.

Ticket manager Edward Czepak said the tickets, priced at $4, will be on sale from 8:15 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and from 8:15 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

The tickets are for seats near the 25-yard line.

issued his warning statement: "I feel we still have a lot of work to do . . . we're well behind in many respects," he said in the Penn State locker room. "And we're going to work . . . we just need more football," he said. "Penn was far more ready for the game than we were." This, undoubtedly, was a reference to the fact that Penn had one preseason scrimmage—a gainst Rutgers—under its belt while the Lions had none.

In reviewing the game from a Penn State angle, Engle commended the play of quarterback Al Jacks. "I liked Jacks' work . . . I liked the way he ran the team," he said. Jacks, who was originally ticketed only for duty with Engle's starting unit, was forced into action several times with the alternate unit when Penn started to make a game of it and experience was called for. Sophomore Rich Lucas was the alternate unit's quarterback Saturday.

And Jacks' work was certainly commendable. He engineered a 24-yard touchdown drive in the early minutes of the first quarter after fullback Bill Young's fumble of a pass from center in a punt situation gave the Lions the ball. Halfback Dave Kasperian capped the seven-play drive with a four-yard scoring slant off right tackle. Fullback Babe Caprara con-

Forces Cut at Little Rock School

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 30 (AP) — Barricades came down, bayonets were sheathed and a bristling cordon of troops was drastically cut today as the second week of integrated classes got under way at Central High School.

Nine Negro students strolled out into bright autumn sunshine at the end of their class day, unescorted for the first time since they were besieged in the same school by rioting whites just a week ago. They talked and laughed together as they made their way to an Army vehicle that took them home.

Armed helmeted paratroop guards were recalled from posts at each of the big school's entrances. Detachments inside and outside the school were sharply cut. The nearly solid lines of soldiers that ringed the school at one time were replaced with widely spaced two-man foot patrols.

An Army helicopter snuggled down to a landing beside a playing field where its motors drowned out the squeals of white and Negro girls playing softball during an outdoor gym class.

Meanwhile, U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald Davies, whose court ruling the regular Army troops are enforcing, asked during the day to be relieved of his duties here. He was assigned here from North Dakota district earlier in the segregation crisis.

Judge Davies upheld an Arkansas federal judge in ordering integration to proceed at Central High. His final ruling was in the form of an injunction that prohibited Gov. Orval Faubus from using the National Guard to bar the nine Negroes from Central High.

Chief Judge Archibald J. Gardner of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, said Davies will be relieved at his own request "in a day or two." He will be replaced by U.S. Dist. Judge Roy W. Harper of St. Louis.

Archibald said the shift was routine and without "significance." However, Davies has been the target of biting criticism by Gov. Faubus and others.

During the day, Faubus continued to withhold a decision on whether to summon a special session of the Arkansas State Legislature. He said such a session was very likely. But he was known to be running up against opposition from lawmakers.
