

Present World Crisis Called Worst to Occur in Peacetime

Three faculty members have unanimously agreed that the United States is now in the midst of the worst international crisis it has been in—outside of all-out war.

The three faculty members—Dr. Vernon Aspaturian, assistant professor of political science, Dr. Alfred G. Pundt, professor of European history, and Dr. Luke T. Lee, assistant professor of political science, spoke Tuesday at the second in a series of panel discussions sponsored by the Intercollegiate Conference on Government.

"We have lost leadership and failed in securing the trust of Western Europe," Pundt said. "The aim of the American foreign policy now is to please everybody and reconcile them to our ways."

Our aim was to keep Western Europe unified and now we are being mistrusted, he said. He called the solidarity of Western Europe shaken by the Suez, Middle East, desegregation and Sputnik crises.

"Our relations with Western Europe are at a serious impasse and if something is not done, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will collapse," Pundt said.

"The United States foreign policy towards Russia is based upon the assumption that the U.S. is superior in the nuclear arms and atomic bomb race," Aspaturian said.

"The U.S. foreign policy has been out of kilter since 1950 in regards to Russia," he said.

This policy is unrealistic as evidence shows that they may have superiority over the U.S. in the nuclear arms race, Aspaturian said.

A major problem to the administration is the issue of co-existence. The administration favors the liberation of the USSR satellite states, he said.

"Both powers must agree to a 'status quo' and not upset it, if peaceful co-existence can work," he said. "Right now both sides are unsatisfied and stalemated as to their intentions."

Eng Council Elects Junior Secretary

Niiler replaces Lawrence Perez, junior in sanitary engineering, who has resigned for scholastic reasons.

Lion's Den Offers Honey, Lemonade As Flu Remedy

Students unable or unwilling to fight long lines for medical aid at the University Health Center can receive help from a previously unpublicized source located right across Pollock Road.

Cups of hot lemonade with honey are on sale at the Lion's Den in the Hetzel Union Building. And sales are booming! Eight to nine gallons of the mixture are being sold each day.

The idea for the project came directly from a group of students who had grandmother's old cold remedies in mind. They approached Lion's Den personnel Monday with the idea.

John R. Amacker, manager of the Lion's Den, yesterday said the supply will be available as long as students want it.

Sales of hot tea in the Terrace Room have soared to about 400 cups a day. Last year's average was about 280 cups a day.

MI Dean Granted Leave of Absence

Dr. Elburt F. Osborn, dean of the College of Mineral Industries, has been granted a leave of absence from Feb. 1 to July 31.

The Board of Trustees has appointed David R. Mitchell, professor of mining engineering and chairman of the division of mineral engineering, to serve as acting dean during Osborn's absence.

Osborn will serve as a visiting scientist with the department of mineralogy and petrology at Cambridge University, England.

UCA Will Initiate Program Of Discussions in Dorms

The University Christian Association will initiate a program of fireside-type discussions for residence hall areas this week.

The nine chaplains of the religious foundations and committees Bible-study groups or attendance from the dormitories will meet at 7 tonight in the small lounge of the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel to organize the plans.

The students on these committees will form a council to plan and coordinate the residential gatherings. The suggested program calls for one meeting a month. These meetings might attend the meeting tonight.

Marilyn Swank, junior in education, and Julian Chalker, sophomore in arts and letters, are co-chairmen of the UCA Residential Gatherings Commission. Students interested in planning these dormitory programs may attend the meeting tonight.

Econ Adviser May Speak On Career Day

Ramond J. Saulnier, economic adviser to President Eisenhower, was named as a possible Career Day speaker last night at a meeting of the Business Administration Student Council.

Eugene Curry, chairman of a committee to contact a speaker, said Saulnier probably would speak on the long range economic future of the United States. He said Career Day will be scheduled for the second or third week in March.

Michael Walker, president of the council, said elections of freshmen representatives will be held Oct. 30 and 31 in 101 Boucke. Self-nominations may be turned in Monday through Friday at the first desk in the general admissions office in Boucke. Applicants need to give their name, address and phone number.

The council will hold a Card Party and mixer with the Home Economics Student Council 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Home Economics Living Center. Tables of bridge, pinocle and other card games will be set up.
