

Columbia Prof to Speak On Modern Education

Dr. William H. Kilpatrick, professor emeritus of education at the Teachers College of Columbia University and dean of American educators, will speak at 8 tonight in 121 Sparks.

Pickett Will Honor Curie At Lecture

Dr. Lucy M. Pickett, head of the Department of Chemistry at Mount Holyoke College, will give the 19th annual lecture honoring Madame Marie Curie, discoverer of radium, at 8 tonight in the Hetzel Union Assembly Room.

The lecture is sponsored by the Palladium chapter of Iota Sigma Pi, women's honorary chemistry society and is open to the public. Dr. Pickett will speak on "Studies of Vacuum Ultraviolet Absorption Spectra." The rocket experiments used to detect this type of radiation in the atmosphere will be described.

Results of research on the spectra and photolysis of hydrocarbons, amines and ethers obtained by a Mount Holyoke research group also will be discussed.

Dr. Pickett has directed research projects for the Office of Naval Research and the National Science Foundation. She was elected a fellow in the chemistry section of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1955.

In April she received the Garvan Medal of the American Chemical Society, an award given annually to a woman chemist who has made a significant contribution to the advance of chemistry.

She received her bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from Mount Holyoke and her doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Illinois.

Dr. Pickett studied at the University of Liege in Belgium. She also lectured as a visiting professor at the University of California.

Dieticians to Hear Gullickson Speak

Clarice D. Gullickson, professor of hotel and institution administration, will speak at the American Dietetics Association meeting Friday in Miami, Fla.

Alma G. McDougall, associate professor of hotel and institution administration, and a member of the House of Delegates of the association, will represent the state association at the meeting.

As incoming president of the association, Dr. Miriam E. Lowenberg, professor of foods and nutrition, will also participate in the program as a state delegate.

Students Offered Reading Aid Course

Do you fail to get the most from the reading required for your courses?

If you do, then you might be a candidate for a course in better reading habits and techniques offered by the Department of Education.

The course is offered each semester with classes meeting twice a week. No academic credit is given.

It is open to all regularly enrolled students and to faculty members. It is also open to high school students and townspeople during the summer.

The course has an enrollment of about 300 students each semester. Students may enroll at any time, since instruction is largely personalized. Faculty advisers often refer their advisees to the course.

Dr. Lyman Hunt, associate professor of education, is in charge of the course. He is assisted by Jack Hallman and Frank Williston, instructors in education.

Hunt said one habit particularly harmful in study reading is reading without a purpose. Students who do this fail to get the basic meaning of what they are reading, he said.

Hunt pointed out four ways by which a student can increase his reading skill. One is by learning to recognize the main idea and the key themes of the material being read. A second is by developing a broad vocabulary.

A third way is by picking out facts for permanent recall and putting them down as "cue notes," which are certain key words that contain the main theme of the subject.

A fourth way a student can increase his skill is by relating what he has read to his own experience.

3-1 Ratio Gone! 600 New Coeds Erase Old Mark

With about 600 additional coeds on campus this fall, the long-time ratio of 3 men to 1 coed is gone! However, the ratio change is 2.74 to 1 coed—so men are still in the majority.

Dr. C. O. Williams, dean of admissions, said pressure to equalize men's and women's enrollment on campus has been growing steadily stronger in recent years.

The total number of students enrolled on campus is 14,131. The total number of coeds enrolled on campus is 3781.

About 3100 coeds were enrolled last year.

The total number of men enrolled on campus is 10,350. About 10,000 men were enrolled last year. The ratio then was 3.2-1.

Uglyon Sees Light Showers

Today's prediction calls for scattered showers combined with warm temperatures, the expected high ranging from 65-70 degrees.

The Nittany Lion spent the entire morning in seclusion, but the foul weather was not responsible for his antisociality. It seems that he withdrew from last night's Ugly Man parade and decided merely to remain on the sidelines as a spectator.

But at the end of the parade, he was approached by several of the judges who informed him that he had not only won first prize, but was to be congratulated for being the ugliest contestant ever to appear in the annual event.

Woolworth Store To Open Nov. 13

The new F. W. Woolworth store in the borough will open Nov. 13, barring difficulties in furnishing and stocking.

Gilbert A. Rehbeck of Philadelphia, who will manage the store, said freight is now being received and furnishings are being installed.

He said the store will feature self-service with checkout counters and a 30-stool fountain. There will be two floors of sales counters.

Students May Obtain Grad Exam Applications

Application blanks and information bulletins for the next graduate record examinations, to be held at 8:45 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. Nov. 16, are available in 117 Buckhout.

All applications must be received no later than Nov. 1 at the Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau St., Princeton, N.J.

Pollock Council Will Meet

Pollock Council will meet at 7 tonight in 217 Hetzel Union.

2 Performers Added To Concerts Series

Andres Segovia, Spanish-born guitarist, and Philippe Entrement, the young French pianist, have been added to the 1957-58 series of concerts to be presented in Schwab Auditorium by the State College Concert Association.

The program also includes the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, with William Steinberg conducting, and the Roger Wagner Chorale.

The addition of Segovia and Entrement was announced yesterday by Frances F. Forbes, president of the association, following confirmation of the bookings.

Mrs. Forbes also said the concert association and the Artist's Series here have worked out an arrangement for this year which will benefit both the members of the association and the students for whom the artists series was scheduled.

A total of 330 seats for the State College Concert Association series, which remained unsold at the close of the membership campaign, will be made available to students.

This will make a total of 1320 seats, 330 for each of the four concerts, available without charge to students. The tickets will be distributed at designated times on a first-come, first-served basis. Tickets to the seven regularly scheduled concerts of the Artist's Series are distributed in this way.

This co-operative plan, which will make the State College Concert Association programs available to students, also has enabled the association to book its series on the basis of a full membership, as it has done during the past eight years. The plan also assures utilization of all seats in Schwab Auditorium for all concerts.

Segovia, who made his New York debut in Town Hall nearly 30 years ago, has toured Europe, South America and this country, and earlier this year presented a series of concerts in Town Hall. He is noted for his original guitar music and transcriptions.

Entrement, who at 18 visited this country and was soloist with the National Orchestral Association, made his New York solo debut on April 1, 1955.

All concerts will be presented in Schwab Auditorium. The complete series includes: Pittsburgh Symphony, Nov. 19; Philippe Entrement, pianist, Dec. 11; Andres Segovia, guitarist, March 31; and the Roger Wagner Chorale, April 8.

2 Alumni Fined $34 for Prank

Two returning alumni found out Saturday that State College police apparently were not in the homecoming spirit.

The alumni, Joseph Sarcinello, 27, and Columbus Cascio, 28, both of Scranton, were fined a total of $34 for destroying fraternity lawn displays.

Borough police apprehended the pair after receiving numerous complaints from fraternities. Both Sarcinello and Cascio pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct charge in a hearing before Justice of the Peace Guy G. Mills.

Lowenfeld Nominated For Citation

Dr. Viktor Lowenfeld, head of the Department of Art Education, has been nominated for a citation for outstanding contribution toward the advancement of secondary education.

The citation will be awarded in June 1958 by the Shattuck School in Faribault, Minn., in connection with its 100th anniversary.

He holds diplomas from the Vienna, Austria, College of Applied Arts and the Vienna Academy of Art. He has a doctor of education degree from the University of Vienna.

Lowenfeld was professor of art and head of the art department in the Hampton Institute in Va. from 1939 to 1946, director of art in the Robert Sugden Elementary and Secondary School from 1940 to 1946 and a visual aid consultant for the United States Navy from 1944 to 1946.

He has served as a consultant psychologist in Geneva, Switzerland, and director of art in the Vienna Institute for the Blind. He has lectured in universities and colleges in the United States and Europe.

Lowenfeld is a member of the National Education Association, the International Society for Education Through Art, a research board member of the National Art Education Association and council member of the National Committee on Art Education.

Student Stricken--

On the state level, the Associated Press reported Pennsylvania had the second highest death toll in the nation's flu epidemic with 52 reported in the Commonwealth yesterday.

A 12th victim in a 10-day period was announced at the Pennsylvania State School for the mentally retarded in Chester County—an 11-year-old boy—and a 49-year-old woman died in Sellersville Hospital.

The Spring City institution and the Lehigh Valley area surrounding Allentown showed far and away the heaviest reported death rate in the state.
