

Orange Big and Strong, Has Vital Speed—Patrick

A Syracuse team that scout and Assistant Coach Frank Patrick says is "every bit as good as their record indicates" and has the size and speed it needs for a good football team is the next test for the Penn State gridders.

The Lions and the Orange tangle Saturday afternoon at Archbold Stadium, Syracuse, N.Y. in the eastern regional television game of the week. TV time is 1 p.m. with Lindsey Nelson handling the play-by-play.

Syracuse, which will enter the contest with a 3-0-1 record, is a strong, big, rugged football team which Patrick believes lacks the overall speed of last year's team, but nevertheless is in the line of past Orange squads—tough.

After a 7-7 tie with Iowa State in their season opener, the Orange have defeated Boston University, 27-0, walloped Cornell, 34-0, and beat Nebraska, 28-9. Patrick scouted the Orange in all but the Iowa State game.

And, he feels that all but Cornell were formidable opponents for Syracuse—"They looked good against Boston U and Nebraska . . . Cornell was the only opponent that didn't offer them too much opposition," he said.

Talking about individuals, Patrick cited fullback Ed Coffin as the workhorse of the backfield and probably the hardest of Syracuse's hard-running backs. In four games, Coffin has carried 41 times for 184 yards for a 4.5 average per carry.

Dan Fogarty, a starting halfback who is also the number two quarterback, and Tom Stevens complete the Orange list of deep backs. Both, Patrick said, have a lot of speed and are capable pass receivers, too.

If past performances are any indication of things to come, Syracuse can be expected to throw when necessary. Chuck Zimmerman, who handled the quarterbacking duties last year, has completed 21 of 35 passes for 396 yards and one touchdown. Fogarty has completed 5 of 7 for 111 yards and one touchdown. Patrick said that the Orange quarterbacks have showed a good passing attack to date and are not afraid to throw at crucial moments.

Along the line, Patrick pointed to center Mike Bill and tackle Chuck Strid as the two top men. Of Bill, he said: "He's an excellent linebacker and a very versatile player." Bill's versatility is proven by the fact that he played guard, tackle, end and halfback earlier in his career. Strid is the only returning interior lineman with regular 1956 status and is rated as one of the East's best linemen.

The Syracuse line is another in the long list of big, strong Syracuse lines that is difficult to move because of its size, Patrick said. The Orange have a definite size advantage here, as well as in the backfield, he said.

Looking ahead to the game, Patrick said, "The team that makes the least mistakes will win the ballgame." In other words, it figures to be a game of breaks.

CLOTHES MAKE THE BMOG

Last week we passed along some fashion hints for coeds. Today we will do the same for college men.

The most important thing to remember, gentlemen, is to dress with verve, with dash, with inventiveness. Don't be imprisoned by the traditional conservatism of men's clothing. Brighten up your appearance with a single earring, or a cavalry saber, or a gold derby.

Guard Against Gaudiness

However, guard against gaudiness. If, for instance, you are wearing a gold derby, do not also wear a cavalry saber. This is too much. Wear a dagger instead, or, for formal occasions, a bowie knife.

Let us turn now to a persistent rumor that a garment called the "suit" is on the verge of making a comeback. Some of you older students may remember this "suit." It was an ensemble consisting of a jacket and trousers, both of which—this'll kill you—both of which were made out of the same material!

The last "suit" ever seen on an American campus was in 1941—and I ought to know because I was wearing it. I was an undergraduate then, and in love—hopelessly in love with a beautiful statistics major named Harry Sigafos. (She is one of the two girls I have ever known named Harry. The other one is her sister.)

I loved Harry madly, though her expensive tastes were the ruin of me. Bit by bit I sold off my belongings to pursue this costly courtship—first my books, then my clothes, until finally I was left with nothing to wear but a "suit". One night I came calling for her in this garment and she, of course, slashed me across the face with a riding crop and sent me from her door.

I slunk home and lit a Marlboro and sat down to think. I always light a Marlboro when I sit down to think, for their good mild flavor is a great aid to cerebration. I always light a Marlboro when I don't sit down to think, too, because Marlboro is my favorite cigarette, and I know it will be yours, too, once you make the acquaintance of that filter, that flavor, that fiptop box. As the man says, you get a lot to like with a Marlboro.

Well, sirs, smoking and thinking thus, my eye happened to fall on an ad in a campus newspaper which said: "WIN A COMPLETE WARDROBE! Touhy's Toggery, the campus's leading men's store, announces a contest to pick the best-dressed man on campus. The winner will receive absolutely free a complete new wardrobe!"

Struck by a sudden inspiration, I took pen in hand and wrote a letter to Mr. Touhy of Touhy's Toggery: "Sir—I see by the paper that you are giving a complete new wardrobe to the best-dressed man on campus. What a ridiculous idea!

"Obviously, to be the best-dressed man on campus, you must first have a lot of clothes, and if you have a lot of clothes, what do you need with another wardrobe?"

"Touhy's Toggery should give a new wardrobe to the worst-dressed man on campus. Me, for instance. I am an eyesore. There isn't a crow in town that will come near me. Three times this month the Salvation Army salvage truck has picked me up. Esquire has canceled my subscription.

"I submit that a vote for me is a vote for reason, a vote for equity, a vote for the American way!"

With a flourish I signed the letter and sent it off, somehow feeling certain that very soon I would be wearing a complete new wardrobe.

And I was right—because two weeks later I was drafted.
