

Ag Party to Honor Scholarship Donors

The seventh annual Ag Hill Party, sponsored by the Agriculture Student Council, will be dedicated to the donors of the $16,050 worth of scholarships recently awarded to 79 agriculture students.

The party will begin with a turkey dinner at 5 p.m. today in Recreation Hall. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

Entertainment throughout the night will include group singing led by Richard Stuby, sophomore in agriculture education from Punxsutawney; square dancing to the music of the Dick Cole Serenaders, and selections by the Pennstatesmen Quartet.

Nine door prizes including assorted cheeses, a turkey and two bushels of apples will be given away. Winners of the free bingo games will receive such prizes as potted plants, ice cream, butter, potatoes and chickens. Prizes are donated by 14 agriculture departments.

Lawrence Hutchinson, junior in animal husbandry from Thornton, is master of ceremonies for the party.

Charles Huston, senior in agricultural and biological chemistry from Mount Union, is chairman of the party committee and Fred Garbin, junior in agronomy from Turtle Creek, is assistant chairman.

Faculty advisers to the party committee are Dr. Frank Anthony, assistant professor of agriculture education; Dr. James W. Shigley, assistant professor of agricultural and biological chemistry; and Dr. J. Frank Cone, professor of bacteriology.

The party was originated in 1950 by Paul H. Margolf, professor of poultry husbandry.

Booters Win--

(Continued from page seven) that goal—his 15th of the season—only added to the sad plight of the Cadets who were by now wishing they had never heard of Penn State.

The Lions were way ahead of the home team in attempted shots, 25-3. Most of the spread was largely due to the standout play of Lion fullback Ralph Brower and Ihor Chvzowych (a surprise starter), and halfbacks Gary Miller, Herbie Hertmer and Howie Maierhofer.

In the line of dart games, the Leonides booth featured a cardboard silhouette of a duelist bearing a red heart, and Kappa Kappa Gamma had a board marked off in squares for each fraternity, entitling the winning fraternity to a free dinner.

Students with sadistic tendencies could enjoy themselves by "whamming" an Alpha Gamma Delta with a pie, pelting an Alpha Xi Delta cotton picker with a cotton ball dipped in flour or shooting a gun filled with suction cup darts at a target on the leg of revolving girls in Alpha Omicron Pi's "Storm- ez the Bastille."

For variety, Kappa Delta members posed outside a flashing sign "ten cents a dance," and Pyrose, Gamma Phi Beta and Trion had booths specializing in fishing for prizes.

Booth prizes included garters, paper mermaids, shrimp dinners for two at the Tavern, flasks filled sponsored by Mortar Board, senior women's hat society, last night provided students, a la the theme of Creole and French life in New Orleans, with a taste of everything from Creole cuisine to cotton pickers.

In one booth, sultry green Phi Mu mermaids angled their fins for student hoop throwers, while in another, Delta Gamma dixielanders, complete with striped blazers, straw hats and white gloves, gave their version of the "Shuffle Off to New Orleans." Pi Beta Phi, Theta Phi Alpha and Phi Sigma Sigma, did a thriving business offering roulette, cards and dice.

Members of the Freshman Council, dressed as French barbers, gave students a chance to
