

BA Counsellors Seek Ballet Sets Designed by Alum 'Dean's List' Advice

By BONNIE JONES

Usually students clutch up with the flunk-out shudders when they're handed a summons to visit the office of the dean of their college.

But this year the counselling service of the College of Business Administration is inviting not only "dunces" and "bad boys" but even "dean listers" in for "tea and sympathy."

Eng Council Discontinues Newsletter

The Engineering and Architecture Student Council has voted to discontinue publication of the Engineering Newsletter and instead have it incorporated into the Engineer magazine.

Alton Kendall, junior in engineering science from Reading, editor of the newsletter, moved to discontinue its publication at a council meeting Tuesday.

Kendall said he had only enough material for four pages and he believes it would not be worthwhile to put out a newsletter under eight pages in size.

He said three issues of the newsletter last year cost the council $475. Kendall said in an informal survey on his own he discovered only 20 per cent of the engineering students read the newsletter, while enough were printed for over half the students in the college of Engineering and Architecture.

The council also voted to direct Robert Stroup, president of the council, to move at Cabinet that Robert Steele, All-University president, instruct the student members of the Calendar Committee to urge that a half-holiday be included in the future calendars for away football games.

Jerome Karp, sophomore in mechanical engineering from Rochester, N.Y., said suggestion boxes have been placed on the second floor of Sackett Building, opposite the dean's office and on the first floor of Engineering C.

The boxes are to receive students' criticisms or suggestions that they have about the college. The council will review the suggestions.

Rabbi to Speak On Israel Tonight

Rabbi Benjamin Kahn will speak on "The Meaning of Israel" at 7 tonight in the Hillel Foundation lounge.

The talk is one in a series of lectures on basic Judaism. The fifth lecture in the series on comparative religion, "Buddhism," will be given by Yajiro Morita of Japan, research associate in engineering research, at 8 tonight in the lounge.

These are the final sessions of the two Hillel Thursday night courses before the Thanksgiving recess. The lectures are open to the public.

Oliver Smith, a 1939 graduate of the University, is the set designer and director for the American Ballet Theatre, which is scheduled to appear at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in Recreation Hall.

Smith also has designed the sets for "My Fair Lady," "Jamaica" and "Time Remembered." All three shows now are running on Broadway.

Bosley Crowther, New York Times drama critic, praised Smith's set designs, calling them one of the reasons for the success of "My Fair Lady."

Converting Recreation Hall into a ballet theater has presented a major problem for University personnel.

Russell G. Whaley, assistant professor of theater arts, is coordinating the work of members of the Department of Theater Arts, the physical plant and the College of Physical Education and Athletics in solving these problems.

They decided yesterday that the movable stage in Recreation Hall could not be used, so the dancers will have to perform on the main floor of the gymnasium.

The floor will be given a special preparation since the dancers cannot perform on a waxed, varnished or ground cloth floor. The orchestra will not be in its usual place but will take up part of the main floor where the audience usually sits.

Special wings will be constructed on each side of the floor where the dancers perform. The use of backdrops is limited because of inadequate facilities in the building.

Although the stage has been the principal problem, preparations have also been made for backstage operations.

Locker rooms will be converted into dressing rooms and facilities will be made available for hanging costumes and for the wardrobe mistresses to press costumes.

Special electrical lines will be run to the stage, to spotlights around the building, to the orchestra's music stands and to the dressing tables.

Smith majored in fine arts and was a member of Pi Gamma Alpha, fine arts honorary society, and Scarab, architectural honorary society. He is a member of Acacia fraternity.

Couch to Give Lectures

Dr. H. B. Couch, assistant professor of plant pathology, will present a series of lectures on the nature and control of turf diseases to the William H. Mines Agricultural Research Institute, Chazy, N.Y., today.

Dairy Club to See Slides

Paul S. Williams, professor of dairy production, will entertain the Dairy Science Club with picture slides taken on his trip through the north central United States, at 7 tonight in 117 Dairy.

Bread and Butter Time

Are you visiting your roommate for the weekend, staying at a friends or just plain going home? Wherever it will be, it's time for a bread and butter gift... (small inexpensive gift for hostess that shows you're a sweet, thoughtful, sincere and wonderful person!) Where else could you find such a gift but at Ethel's.

Prints & Colors Galore

For a touch of frivolity in the kitchen, Martex dish towels. Ethel has the most interesting collection of towels in colors to charm any woman, bright pinks and oranges to duller browns and greens. These linen towels look as if they were hand painted in provincial prints or bold modern patterns for just $1.00. Two or three of them gift wrapped are ideal.

For Milady's Boudoir...

There is a type of gift that a woman will never buy for herself, but love to own. One of the lovely embroidered satin jewel cases at Ethel's is just such a gift. These are made accordian fashion, with the little pockets strung together for holding jewelry. They're perfectly feminine, specially in white with pink rosebuds. They start at $2.50 and come in a lovely clear plastic case that adds that extra gift touch.

Over the River...

and through the woods... We'd like to wish all of you the happiest Thanksgiving—Have a wonderful weekend.
