The flying rings victory (a repeat of his triumph in the AAU's last year as a freshman) helped the North team to a 51-45 victory over the South in another phase of the clinic.

Lion Olympian Armando Vega encountered one difficulty after another in the tourney but successfully defended his parallel bars crown in the North-South competition to aid the winning cause. Vega was leading the All-Around performers in the compulsory before an injury forced him out of the competition.

Lee Cunningham was finally hitting his stride in the all-around events, according to Wettstone, with a second place position when he met with a freak accident. The other half of the Gold-dust Twins was warming up for his still rings routine when the ring pulled loose from the rafters.

Then as Cunningham went through his routine, the same ring snapped and Cunningham fell to the floor. Although he landed on his neck, the only injury he sustained was a sprained ankle.

The injury forced Cunningham to finish last in the 13-man junior all-around field although he finished seventh in the senior men's division. Werner was fifth in the senior men's all-around.

The play will be staged in early March.

Translated into English by Christopher Fry, the Anouilh play is a fantasy type comedy, or a "charade with music" which revolves around a mixup of two identical twins.

The twins, Hugo and Frederick, live with their aunt in a chateau. Although the twins are identical in looks, their personalities are diametrically opposite.

Both Hugo and Frederick are played by the same actor.

When Frederick becomes engaged to Diana, who has a wealthy father, Hugo becomes jealous. He brings a beautiful ballet dancer, Isabel, to the chateau to steal the limelight from Diana.

Becoming jealous in her turn, Diana provokes a fight with Isabel. Isabel mistakes Frederick for Hugo, as he comes upon the two girls, and Hugo's whole plot is revealed.

After the discovery of the conspiracy, an interest develops between Frederick and Isabel. Diana's father, upon becoming aware of this, tries to buy off Isabel, as was his habit. But Isabel convinces him that there are some things money can't buy and they end the scene by tearing up all the money they can find.

In the final scene, the play ends happily, however.
