Cagers Whip Rutgers, 77-58

Edwards' 27 Points Pace Lions To Win in Hard-Fought Game

Sports Editor Rutgers has a rough basketball team. But, that's about all you can say for the Scarlet cagers. They certainly were no match for Penn State Saturday night at Recreation Hall, the Lions winnings in a romp, 77-58,

In a game marked by shoddy playing by both sides and excessive fouling—especially in the late minutes of the final half—the Nittanies of Coach John Egli left the code at halftime with a 37-33 edge, bolstered it to 10 points early in the second half, withstood a futile Scarlet comeback midway through the period and won going Rutgers, lacking an ample supply of talent, was forced to resort to rough-house factics in an effort to upset the home forces. Penn State, faced with this type of offensive action, was unable to move as smoothly as Egli hoped it would. Scarlet forward Bob Sansilow broke his nose in a scramble for the ball with aggressive Ted Kubistawhich goes to show how rough the contest was.

Penn State bench strength probably proved to be the deciding factor in the contest. Rutgers, with its first club of Dick Hirschfield. Sanislow, Bruce Webster, Whitey Leaf and Dutch Wermuth in there.

Leaf and Dutch Wermuth in there, proved capable of at least holding its own against the favored Lions. In fact, the Scarlet rebounded surprisingly from a 15-8 deficit early in the contest to take a 24-18 lead with 7:30 remaining in the first period. However, the lead was short-lived and the Scarlet soon found themselves fighting to stay in contention—a fight they to stay in contention—a fight they finally lost in the closing minutes of the contest. Personal fouls proved to be the eventual downfall of the rough Rutgers contingent. Leaf. a mainstay of the Scarlet of-fense, committed his third personal foul after only 10 minutes of play. Coach Warren Harris was forced to substitute and failed to come up with a suitable replacement.

Penn State, on the other hand found its reserves capable of furnishing more than adequate help-when called upon and therein lies the story to one of the roughest games witnessed on the home. A foul a drive and a lay-up all court in quite some time. by Edwards settled the bounce
