Gym Team Confident Saturday's Opener Optimism abounds in the far end of Recreation Hall as the gymnasts prep for the opening meet Saturday with the Temple Owls at Philadelphia's South Hall.

After working out for over two months in preparation for the season opener, the 1958 edition is anxious for its first "outside" test.

Up to now, it has been strictly competition for the starting berths, but come Saturday, Coach Gene Wettstone's crew will find out just how good their routines are. "Fortunately, we meet Te--ple in the first meet." com-mented team captain Bob Foht with a confident smile. But Dion Weissend, captain of last year's Eastern and National champions, was a little less optimistic over the Lions chances,

"By getting too confident. you could be in for a big fall," said Weissend.

Weissend. Physically, the team is in good shape, except for a few mihor in-juries. Both of the Gold-dust Twins have bad hands.

Jay Werner sprained his right thumb at the Florida Tryouts, while Lee Cunningham has an open cut on his right hand that particularly hampers his side horse routine. The sophomore is

Milers May Regain Top Indoor Billing

After a two-year lay-off, the mile run may regain the spotlight of the indoor track season this winter. Since the suspension of former Kansas star Wes Santee, there have been no strong indoor mile competitors for Villanova's Ron Delany-a 3.59 outdoor miler and 1956 Olympic gold medal winner for Ireland in the 1500-meter run.

Delany, a runner who does not seem concerned with beat-ing the clock, had no opposition capable of pushing him under Gunnar Neilsen's world indoor mile mark of 4:03.6. This year several up - and - coming colle-giate stars may push the Wild-cat to a new world's indoor mark.

New York University graduates Ike Matza and George King may also give the Villanovan strong competition, along with 26-year-

In a growing industry, there's room for me to grow

"Here at General Electric," says Penn R. Post, 24year-old marketing trainee, "you hear a lot of talk about the future-even as far ahead as 1978. In fact, I've discovered that planning ahead for America's needs 10 and 20 years from now is characteristic of the electrical industry. And, what's important to me, General Electric's long-range planning takes my future into account. I'm now on my fourth assignment in the Company's Technical Marketing Program all planned steps in my development.

"I'm pretty confident about the electrical future, too. For one thing, America's use of electricity has been doubling every ten years. And it will increase even faster as our population grows another 65 million by 1978 - and as research and development lead to new electrical products that help people live better. The way I look at it, the technical, manufacturing and marketing resources of large companies like General Electric are important factors in the growth of the electrical industry. And in a growing industry, there's room for me to grow."

Young people like Penn Post are an important part of General Electric's plans to meet the opportunities and challenges of the electrical future. Each of our 29,000 college-graduate employees is given opportunities for training and a climate for self-development that help him to achieve his fullest capabilities. For General Electric believes that the progress of any industry - and of the nation - depends on the progress of the people in it.
