Chem-Phys Votes End Of Rotation

The Chemistry-Physics Student Council has voted 13 to 5 to go on record against the fraternityindependent rotation system for All-University elections.

The council also tabled a motion for a "directed vote" plan, Elgin 5-8591. on All-University Cabinet to vote on controversial issues as the council members wished him to Park, Millbrook.

Also as part of the motion, proposed by Donald Zepp, junior in chemical engineering from York, the council president would be required to bring all controversial issues before council for discussion. The president would be required to follow council feeling if the council instructs him by a two-thirds vote.

President Carroll McDonnell appointed a committee of Zepp. Marilyn King and Walter Davis to study the plan and propose a Woman's Navy ski suit, size 16; used

Council members were urged to consider carefully the possibility of initiating an academic honor system in the college. The members were given reprints of the report made by the Senate Subcommittee on Academic Hon-

Irving Klein, chairman of the spring semester orientation program, reported that he spoke to more than 20 students during the week and answered many questions concerning the activities of the council.

Les, that's right. Thanks to this amazing A-C Network Calculator, Pennsylvania Electric Association Engineers can actually plan power networks, complete with generating stations, power lines, homes, and factories, for future development and know in advance what problems will be created and how tosolve them.

And, this almost "human" electronic marvel is only one of a number of modern electronic devices that frequent the every day life of engineers engaged in today's fascinating electric power industry.

As an engineer about to begin your career, you simply won't find a better field than the electric power industry ... particularly with a Pennsylvania electric company. Nowhere else will you find newer advances in equipment or methods-nowhere else will you find a greater opportunity to help build America's future—and nowhere else will you find a wider range of interests, one of which is sure to be the one you're looking for.

If you feel you can qualify to join an organization that's rapidly expanding; that offers a young man opportunities for advancement; that is extremely well known and respected, then talk to your placement counselor. Or, write to Pennsylvania Electric Association, State Street Building, Harrisburg, Pa., telling them where you would like to live and work.
