

Eng Council Plans Industrial Display

The Engineering and Architecture Student Council will sponsor an Industrial Exposition which will consist of displays of approximately 40 to 50 companies April 23 and 24 in the Hetzel Union Building.

The exposition, which was discussed at a council meeting last night will be the first of its kind on campus and will give students, both undergraduate and graduate, an opportunity to see what various corporations have to offer. It will also give the companies a chance to display processes and job opportunities.

Representatives of the companies will be present at their displays to discuss questions with interested students.

The exposition will be displayed in the gameroom, cardroom, recreation room, in the first floor corridors, the art gallery and possibly part of the lounge of the Hetzel Union building.

About 20 companies have accepted the invitation to display and other letters of acceptance are expected.

The council has attempted to get a cross section of companies for the exposition. Those which have accepted so far include Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Philco, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Gulf Oil, West Virginia Pulp and Paper, Bethlehem Steel, Bell Telephone, International Business Machine, and Alcoa.

Members of council will help the company representatives erect displays April 22.

The council also reiterated its stand of October against the independent-fraternity rotation system.

Robert Parsky, corresponding secretary, read for the first time an amendment to the constitution providing that eight members of the freshman and sophomore classes would be elected at large to student council.

This would replace the present system whereby freshman and sophomore representatives are selected according to curriculum.

The amendment must be read at two consecutive meetings and receive a two-thirds favorable vote at the third meeting.

'Burning Bright' Staff Named

Crew heads for the Players' presentation of "Burning Bright" were announced yesterday by Mark Wallace, director.

The 3-act drama will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday at Center Stage for three weekends. The play, written by John Steinbeck, was produced in 1950 in New York City.

Tickets, priced at $1, for the play went on sale yesterday at the Hetzel Union desk.

The crew heads are Roberta Levine, costumes; John P. Froehlich, lighting; William Bennett, assistant light director; Dorothy Ostwind and Richard Frantz, construction; Dean Eayre, properties; Joseph Servello, advertising; and William Roberts, house manager.

Library Adds Assistant

Aaron Polonsky, who for the past two years has been on the staff of the library at Colby College, has been named to the library staff where he will serve as order assistant.

Dr. Ira De A. Reid
Brotherhood Banquet Speaker

Peace Among Races to Be Discussed

"Roads to Racial Peace" will be the topic of Dr. Ira De A. Reid, professor of sociology and head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Haverford College, speaker at the Brotherhood Banquet at 6 tonight in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Dr. Robert K. Murray, associate professor of history, will serve as toastmaster, and Dr. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, will introduce the speaker.

The invocation will be delivered by Rabbi Benjamin Kahn, and the benediction by the Rev. Father Gerard J. Ream. President Eric A. Walker and Robert Steele, All-University president, will speak briefly. Willa C. Taylor, professor of music, and Joan Nesbitt of State College will lead group singing.

The banquet was established five years ago as a part of Religion in Life Week by the Inter-religious Committee.

The present committee, appointed by President Eric A. Walker, serves as a consulting committee to the University chaplain and coordinator of religious affairs. It explores possible areas of interreligious cooperation and is responsible for the planning and execution of programs in the area of interreligious affairs.

In previous years the committee's activities have included sponsorship of the 1955 Centennial Program and Colloquiums on Religion and Politics and Religion and Learning.

The committee is planning an exploration in religion and the arts, which will bring to the campus a number of special lecturers and artists, dramatic productions and exhibitions. In connection with this program there will be campus competitions for the design and production of an ark and cross for the Meditation Chapel Altar.

Tickets for the Brotherhood Banquet are on sale in the lounge of the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel and the Hetzel Union desk and cost $2.50.

LA College Group Publishes Survey on Advisory System

The Planning Committee of the College of the Liberal Arts has published a survey on the college advisory system and a report on sectioning classes and student initiative in answer to a request by the LA Student Council for a joint committee on curriculums and courses.

The request for a committee stemmed from a report by the Academic Atmosphere Workshop of Encampment which suggested strengthening the advisory system, the forming of course section by ability and the dropping of "snap" courses which do not offer sufficient incentive to the student.

The council incorporated these suggestions in the request, but hoped to have the proposed committee look into them, said Robert Nurock, council president.

The survey shows that most departments have continual advising during the semester but only when the student asks for it. However, the report shows three departments advise solely at the beginning of the semester.

Nurock called the survey very helpful but felt that more improvement could be made in the system, since a better counseling system would tend to improve student-teacher relations.

Hi there,

Welcome back to State. Gee, it was pretty lonesome when everyone went home for vacations!

Mommy and I went over to see Mr. Kepler yesterday and he was very busy. He said that a lot of students had had their pictures taken for Valentine presents. The lady that works with him was making "minny, minny" appointments for sororities and fraternities to have composites made.

Mommy made an appointment for me to have my picture taken in my new Easter outfit so I can send the picture to Grandma.

Why don't you see Mr. Kepler about taking your picture, too?

Bye for now,
Love,
Honey
