Sororities Set to Begin Parties, Coffee Hours

Rushing will enter its second and final week Monday with parties in sorority suites. Rushees will receive party invitations Monday morning in the Panhellenic post office, and their acceptances will be returned to sororities that afternoon. Women may accept three party invitations.

Traditionally, rushing increases tempo with the arrival of the first party night. Parties will be held this year Monday and Tuesday nights from 6:30 to 7:30 and from 8 to 9 p.m.

Coffee hours, the final event of the two-week rushing period, will be held Thursday night from 6:30 to 8 and 8:30 to 10 p.m. Rushees may accept two invitations.

During parties rushees see Greeks in an informal atmosphere of singing, chattering, and entertainment. Parties are held in the suites, and this year they range from a South Sea Island to the Roman Coliseum.

Sororities serve elaborate refreshments and present rather extensive entertainment, most in a light vein. Favors made during rushing workshops are given each rushee.

Sorority parties this year will be:

Alpha Chi Omega, "Alpha Chi Doll House"; Alpha Epsilon Phi, "Heavenly Party"; Alpha Gamma Delta, "Coliseum Caper"; Alpha Omicron Pi, "A O Pi Parisienne."

Alpha Xi Delta, "Pajama Party"; Chi Omega, "Raggedy Ann Goes Chi O"; Beta Sigma Omicron, "Bar Beta Ranch"; Delta Delta Delta, "Alice in Delta Land."

Theta Phi Alpha, "Tapa Big Top"; Alpha Phi, "Carousel Party"; Kappa Delta, "Hell to Heaven"; Zeta Tau Alpha, "Foreign Intrigue"; Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Kappa Carnival."

Phi Mu, "Circus Party"; Phi Sigma Sigma, "Magazine Cover Girl"; Pi Beta Phi, "Global Gaities."

It is at coffee hours that a more serious side of sorority life is presented. Dress is formal, and most groups hold this event in a private home.

In contrast to the gay atmosphere of parties, the mood of coffee hours is more serious as sisters show still another side to sorority life.

Immediately after the last song is sung and the last good night said, each rushee must choose the sorority she wants to join. Her decision may be difficult or easy, but she will count her rushing experiences as among the happiest and most valuable of her college years.

Complexion Tips For Spring Styles

by christina

Next week at sorority coffee hours and this spring with the wide-open neckline, your shoulders are going to be showing. And not only your shoulders, but also your complexion will have to pass inspection. It's absolutely passe to feel that you can't wear these exposes, and with a little work, you won't have to resort to the concealing choker or the muffling scarf.

The first step to take is to decide to launch an improvement campaign on a regular, not just a sometimes, basis.

The second is to realize that whether you're 18 or 80, now is the time to start protecting the skin on your face from weathering.

After you've done this, begin your campaign by discarding the notion that creams clog the pores of your face and won't let them breathe. Your skin just doesn't "breathe" this way, and pores will automatically reject substances they cannot use.

But they will accept useful materials. Your skin needs a replacement of the moisture and lubrication it loses in the course of the day. Therefore, oils and cream on your face are working with, not against, your skin.

Your complexion is thirsty for water, too, but it's no easy job making it drink. Rough hands will respond to soaking in water followed by a protective coating of oil, but obviously this won't do for the face. A good substitute is lanolin.

Oils are the other classic ingredient of creams and lotions. There has been much discussion as to which form is best, but olive oil, almond and cod liver oil usually are ranked tops.

After you're done with the basics, don't forget to add some color. If you use a foundation on your face, don't make the faux pas of stopping the make-up line at your chin.

Make it a spring project, and then head for the scoop-neck suits and nighttime décolletages.

According to predictions, one of the most popular colors this spring will be green. It will be worn with orange or pure pink lipstick and a light line of green

Sack Dresses Balanced by New Shoes

The heels of spring are attention getters designed to add balance to the straight-standing woman in the straight-lined chemise.

They are underslung to a surprising degree and look higher than they actually are. The heels of spring dip as much as one and three fourth inches in from the shoe back and average about two inches high.

These handsome pumps are of soft calf and shiny patent leather. Put on the dazzling under-cut heel and you've got the "balanced" chemise look!

The hats of spring are graceful rollers of sizes to suit the wearer. Pint-size rollers flatter the dainty miss, and big, round rollers add distinction to the taller gal.

A neat, flat handbag and smooth gloves are part of the new spring excitement.

No outfit would be complete without jewelry, especially this year's bright, gay bangles. Necklaces are longer to accentuate the slim lines of sheaths and chemises. Their jade and orange hues add a vivid splash of color to any costume.

The new sleeve length has brought bracelets back into favor, with widths ranging from narrow bands to heavy cuffs.

The Oriental motif has appeared this season in earclips, especially in extremely large, dramatic drop styles. For those who are less exotically inclined, cool white and gold creations are still in vogue.

Right Hair Style Vital for Rushing

More than 400 excited coeds will be dressing in their most flattering gowns Thursday to go to sorority rushing coffee hours. It's the wise girl who knows that much of her charm will be due to her hair.

This winter the favorite style has been a casual, not-quite-tidy coiffure which curls softly around the face. Actually, this offhand effect isn't nearly as casual as it looks, for it requires a certain amount of planning.

The basic prerequisite for this hair-do, or any style at all, is clean, shining hair. This means—and it's hardly news—frequent scrubbings and vigorous, systematic brushing.

But even with clean, shining hair, there's still the problem of finding the best style for widely varying facial types.

A square face looks softer and rounder when hair is worn in fairly long, feathered bangs with side-hair turned under into a soft page boy. A round face will lose its baby-doll look if hair on one side of the crown is brushed back from the forehead. Bangs and a short, bouffant effect on the sides will camouflage a long face.

A low forehead will almost disappear with a brushed-back hair style. Part hair on the side and turn the ends up to create the illusion that eyes are larger and wider apart than they really are. Ear-lobe-length is usually most flattering.

Too-small features will appear larger with the addition of feathered bangs and tendrils over the ears. For the lasses who can wear it, a high pouf on the crown of the head will help.

Gals with assets such as a widow's peak should play them up. The widow's peak becomes noticeable with a middle part and turned-under ends. Large features will appear beautifully in proportion when under a head-hugging coiffure.

So pick your style with your own features in mind, and your hair will be your major accessory at coffee hours.
