

WH Council Argues Proper Dress Issue

West Halls Council members had a real donneybrook at their regular Monday night meeting this week before deciding that it is only "right 'n' fittin" to wear decent clothes to the meetings.

It all started when William Whitlatch objected quite strenuously to Council Secretary Thomas Hummel's motion that members wear coat, tie and slacks to all meetings.

While voicing his objection Whitlatch called the meetings informal. President Carl Smith did not like that, and he relinquished the chair to say so. "We've tried to make it a formal meeting," he said.

Smith called attention to some other councils and boards that wear coats and ties to meetings and that this attire will probably be compulsory in employment after graduation.

After discussion, temper, open debate and some disorder and confusion, an amendment—that the dress be made compulsory only when council has guests—was suggested. More confusion. The amendment was accepted.

The vote on the amended motion was questioned. Smith called for a roll-call vote. Whitlatch stormed out of the room. The roll-call vote was ten against, nine for, and one abstention and two no vote. The issue was dropped for the moment while next week's ping-pong tournament was discussed.

Julian Chauker, a new member on the Council, then moved for reconsideration of the motion as originally stated. He differentiated between college men and college boys: "I think the men should want to wear a coat and tie to the meetings," he said. The motion was approved, 10-8, in the absence of Whitlatch.

Robert B. Adams, the council's newly-elected representative to the World University Service, last week reported as a graduate student, is a freshman in pre-medicine from Altoona.

Syracuse's Walt Dodge rates in this book as one of the true sportsmen seen in Rec Hall. After his (losing) routine on the side horse, he detoured past the Lion bench to congratulate his old high school rival, Lee Cunningham, who beat him.

As a matter of fact, Cunningham pulled the biggest ovation of the meet with his near flawless routine on the difficult side horse.

CAR SNOWED IN? It might look that way to the owner of this "garage." Except that the structure isn't a garage. It's one of the small wooden covers put over the drinking fountains on campus to protect them from the winter weather, and this explains the size of the snowbank on the "garage" roof.

(Answer: peppered leopard.) Both words must have the same number of syllables—bleak freak, fluent truant, vinery finery. Send Sticklers, with your name, address, college and class to Happy-Joe-Lucky, Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Don't do drawings! We'll pay $25 for every Stickler we use in our ads—and for hundreds that never see print. While you're Stickling, light up a light smoke—light up a Lucky. You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!
