

Lion Gymnasts to Host Unbeaten Navy Tomorrow But Pitt, Lehigh Hold Spotlight

At 8 p.m. tomorrow night, the Lion gymnasts host the unbeaten Navy squad in the only home contest on the schedule. In a similar situation at Annapolis last year, the Lions walked over the Middies, 63½-32½. Needless to say, the Navy will be out for revenge.

One of their biggest wins—just last weekend—was a 53-43 decision over Pitt's powerful squad.

In the home win over the Panthers, the Middies swept the first three places on the side horse and the rope climb. The horse is the Lions' weakest event except for the championship routines of Lee Cunningham. The blond sophomore has won the event all four times out this year and has a continually improving routine that reached its peak against Syracuse last Saturday with a terrific 269.

But Middie Sheppard appears a definite threat to Cunningham's specialty as he pulled a 249 against Pitt. Competing with Sheppard will be two strong supporters, Ken McFarland and Ron Kimmel. Both McFarland and Kimmel aided in the sweep against Pitt.

On the rope climb, it's a little different story. Davidson, Wheatley and Ryan combined forces for a sweep against Pitt, but their winning times ranged between :04.0 to :05.0. The Lions have not lost the climb this year with both Phil Mullen and Vince Neuhauser easily breaking the four-second barrier.

Speaking of Mullen, the Lion ace may use his seven-stroke climb as he did against Syracuse last week.

The most interesting battle shapes up for the top spot on the parallel bars, Navy's Ken McNutt is a strong contender for top honors although it was learned, without the aid of any publicity from the Academy itself, that McNutt fractured his finger early in the season. He still finished third against Pitt.

Navy's tumblers Sparks and Midgarten took a second and third against Pitt but the Middies could place only one competitor in the top three on the high bar and flying rings. Fairchild took the second on the rings and Morgan was third on the high bar.

No detail is too minute for Lion Coach Gene Wettstone, and the meet Saturday will prove it. Besides picking the best music available "to get both competitors and spectators in the mood," Wettstone goes one further tomorrow by scheduling a female trio.

Pianist Stan Epstein will open the program with the latest tunes at 7:25 p.m. The trio will do two numbers — "All My Love," and "Getting to Know You"—between 7:45 and 7:50. The final number—"Be My Love"—will be heard at intermission.

If the Russians do it, why can't we?

For the music lovers, here is (Continued on page eight)

EIGL Championships Here; Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Individual Championships are on sale in the ticket office, 249 Recreation Hall. The events will be held March 7-8 in Rec Hall.

Reserved seats cost $1 and general admission will be 50 cents. Student activity cards are not acceptable for admission to the championship events.

JACK WIMMER says

Prepare for all your winter troubles like hard starting, dead batteries, bad thermostats . . .

Or call on us to repair your broken chains, frozen gas lines, etc.

WIMMER'S SUNOCO

502 E. College AD 8-6143

Graeme Cowan . . . sophomore tumbler

Eastern wrestling fans will focus their attention on the Pitt Field House this weekend where Lehigh and Pitt, the two unbeaten leaders of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association, clash tomorrow night. This encounter is a prelude to the upcoming EIWA tournament at the same Pitt Field House, March 14 and 15.

But just in case anyone is interested, Penn State's down-trodden matmen are also in action tomorrow evening. Coach Charlie Speidel's oft-beaten grapplers pay a call on the perennial Atlantic Coast Conference champion Maryland at College Park, Md.

And what the outcome of that meet will be couldn't be any worse for the Lions than their performances against Lehigh, Cornell and Syracuse.

However, the Lions' chances may not be as dim as they seem. Although the Speidel men have won only one meet in six outings they do have a 14-14 tie against Navy to show. And a 14-14 deadlock was also the best the Terps could do against the Middies.

According to the latest figures, Maryland has lost only one meet, a 21-8 defeat to powerful Pitt, while they have won two, and both by lopsided scores. (Now there's an understatement.) Wake Forest was victimized 34-2 in the season opener and North Carolina State fell by a 33-2 count.

Nick Biondi, a veteran middleweight, is the standout for the Terps. He's unbeaten in three matches, including a fall over Navy's West Phingar and a 2-0 decision over Pitt's Ted Bienkowski.

Biondi has wrestled at both 147 and 157 this season. Last year against Penn State he was flattened by the Lions' erstwhile co-captain Dave Adams.

Two other Maryland stars are veterans Ray Haney, 130 or 137, and Dick Dean, 177 or heavyweight. Haney also has a 3-0 record with one of his wins coming on a 6-2 decision over the Middies' Jim McKinney. Dean's only loss in four matches was to Navy's Doug Volgenau, 3-1. Included among his conquests is an 8-2 decision over Pitt's Alex Skirpan.

THE PLEDGE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Today's column is directed at those young female undergraduates who have recently pledged sororities and are worried, poor lambs, that they won't make good. Following is a list of simple instructions which, if faithfully observed, will positively guarantee that you will be a mad success as a sorority girl.

First, let us take up the matter of housemothers. The housemother is your friend, your guide, your mentor. You must treat her with respect. When you wish to speak to her, address her as "Mother Sigafos" or "Ma'am." In no circumstances must you say, "Hey, fat lady."

Second, let us discuss laundry. Never hang your wash on the front porch of the sorority house. This is unsightly and shows a want of breeding. Use the Chapter Room.

Third, meals. Always remember that planning and preparing meals for a houseful of healthy girls is no simple task. Your cook goes to a great deal of trouble to make your menu varied and nourishing. The least you can do is show your appreciation. Don't just devour your food; praise it. Exclaim with delight, "What delicious pork jowls!" or "What a yummy soupbone!" or "What scrumptious fish heads!" or "What clear water!"

Fourth, clothing. Never forget that your appearance reflects not just on yourself but on the whole house. It was well enough before you joined a sorority to lounge around campus in your old middy blouse and gym bloomers, but now you must take great pains to dress in a manner which excites admiring comments from all who observe you. A few years ago, for example, there was a Chi Omega named Camille Ataturk at the University of Iowa who brought gobs of glory to all her sorors.

Camille hit on the ingenious notion...

Camille hit on the ingenious notion of suiting her garb to the class she was attending. For instance, to English Lit she wore a buskin and jerkin. To German she wore lederhosen and carried a stein of pilsener. To Econ she wore 120 yards of ticker tape. Her shiningest hour came one day when she dressed as a white mouse for Psych Lab. Not only her Chi Omega sisters, but the entire student body went into deep mourning when she was killed by the janitor's cat.

Finally, let us take up the most important topic of all. I refer, of course, to dating.

As we have seen, the way you dress reflects on your sorority, but the men you date reflect even more. Be absolutely certain that your date is an acceptable fellow. Don't beat about the bush; ask him point-blank, "Are you an acceptable fellow?" Unless he replies, "Yeah, hey," send him packing.

But don't just take his word that he is acceptable. Inspect him closely. Are his fingernails clean? Is his black leather jacket freshly oiled? Is his ukulele in tune? Does he carry public liability insurance? And, most significant of all, does he smoke Marlboros?

If he's a Marlboro man, you know he's a lot of man. You know he has taste and discernment, wit and wisdom, character and sapience, decency and warmth, presence and poise, talent and grit, filter and flavor. You will be proud of him, your sorority will be proud of him, the makers of Marlboro will be proud of him, and I will be paid for this column.

The makers of Marlboro wish to announce that Mr. Shulman has been paid for this column and will continue to be paid for bringing you his homely philosophy throughout the school year.

Meet the men of atomic-electric power

These are two of the new "atomic men" in the business of producing electricity. In the illustration, they are studying a small-scale model of an atomic reactor designed for an atomic-electric power plant.

They, and hundreds of other electric company men, are learning how to harness the power of atomic energy to the job of producing electricity. With scientists and engineers of the Atomic Energy Commission, equipment makers and builders, they are helping develop the new tools, new machinery and new kinds of buildings needed for atomic-powered electric plants.

The nation's appetite for electric power is growing rapidly, and atomic energy promises a vast new source of fuel to make more electricity. That's why independent electric companies like this one are studying, testing and comparing methods and equipment to find the best ways to put the atom to work for America.

WEST PENN POWER