

Fraternities To Submit Finances

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs yesterday approved a resolution requiring all fraternities to submit annual statements to show that financial books have been audited and houses are in good financial shape.

The resolution is essentially the same as one recommended by Interfraternity Council.

The plan states:

•The national office of each national fraternity must annually submit to the dean of men's office a statement that the books of the local chapter have been audited by an accredited auditor for the preceding academic year and that the chapter is in good financial shape.

•All local fraternities must, on request of the dean of men's office, give proof that the financial books have been audited and that the house is financially sound.

•Should the national office of a national fraternity not submit a statement, the local chapter will be responsible to give proof to the dean of men's office that an audit has been made.

Richard Christian, IFC, audit committee chairman, said the resolution is "certainly much more suitable than the plan that was previously proposed"

Christian said the committee had originally asked fraternities to have their books audited and that the figures be submitted to the dean's office.

Christian said it was surprising to find the number of houses that do not have books audited annually, and that there is a need for this. However, the fraternities felt that the actual figures of the audit should be the house's private business, he said.

'Gent's Code'

(Continued from page one) effect. The clause provisions unanimously approved Wednesday night by the committee are: "In the event the Elections Committee decides a violation of the code has been committed which merits disqualification of a candidate from running in the election, the case will be taken before All-University Cabinet.

"If the committee decides the violation is not serious enough to merit disqualification, the case will be dismissed. In the event of dismissal, the case may be appealed by the parties concerned to Cabinet.

"Persons to whom the above clause applies are: candidates, party officers and persons in collaboration with them. These persons and others involved in infractions of the code may be subject to disciplinary action through the proper administrative channels."

Under the clause, the committee would hear cases and either pass them on to Cabinet for judgment or dismiss them. The committee has been criticized in the past for acting both as the prosecutor and the judge in violations cases.

READY FOR BLAST OFF of series of 5000 readings taken from the Armsby calorimeter is Dr. Truman V. Hershberger, associate professor of animal nutrition.

"WE'VE JUST A FEW MORE HOURS" Frank Krieger, senior in forestry from New Kensington, and Rex Thomas, junior in animal husbandry from Thurmont, Md., sit out their 30-hour stint in the Armsby calorimeter.

Calorimeter Holds Captives

Students Used In Special Test

By NEAL FRIEDMAN

Four students are currently the "captive audience" of professors conducting experiments with the famed Armsby calorimeter.

One night a week a team of two enters the small confines of the chamber for a period of 30 hours in connection with a research project being conducted by the Department of Food and Nutrition of the College of Home Economics in cooperation with the Department of Animal Nutrition of the College of Agriculture, which operates the calorimeter.

The project is being headed by Dr. Katherine Fisher, associate professor of food and nutrition and Dr. Raymond W. Swift, professor of animal nutrition.

The object of the research is to determine the fundamental energy utilization of individuals on low and high fat diets.

For the experiment, four students were selected to form two teams, one of which would be on a low fat diet and the other on a high fat diet.

Students participating in the experiment were limited to not more than 5 feet 10 inches tall and between 145-155 pounds. In addition, they could not be participants in any sport, physical education course or ROTC.

The students are Rex Thomas, senior in pre-veterinary from Newtown and Frank Krieger, senior in forestry from New Kensington, forming one team and Carl Royer, junior in animal husbandry from Thurmont, Md. and George Schardt, senior in forestry from Hawley, forming the second team.

During the experiment, which will continue until the Easter vacation, the four "guinea pigs" lead very restricted lives.

Their diets are prescribed by Dr. Fisher and do not vary from day to day. They may eat no food other than the 3100 calories served them. When they have a date they may not dance more than once.

For participating in the experiment, the students receive room and board as well as part payment towards tuition.

The calorimeter (its full name is the Armsby Respiration Calorimeter) is the largest ever built and is the only one in the world today.

It was first built for animals but was converted for human use three years ago. While rather confining, the students have most of the comforts of home while inside. Beds, lamps and a desk are supplied.

Approximately 5000 readings are taken from the machine in the course of 24 hours. The students are in the calorimeter an additional six hours for preparations.

The students are holding up very well according to Dr. Fisher.
