Genetics Prof Will Present Grad Lecture

Dr. H. Bentley Glass, professor of genetics at Johns Hopkins University, will speak at a Graduate School lecture at 8 p.m. Monday.

Glass, president-elect of the American Association of University Professors, will speak on "New Horizons in Genetics."

The lecture, co-sponsored by the Graduate School, Sigma Xi society, and the College of Agriculture, is open to the public.

Glass, a graduate of Baylor University, received his doctorate in genetics from the University of Texas. Under a National Research Council fellowship he studied in Oslo, Norway, in Berlin, Germany, and later at the University of Missouri.

He began his college teaching career at Baylor, then taught at Stephens College, was on the research staff of Columbia University and taught botany at Missouri and biology at Goucher College before joining the Johns Hopkins University staff in 1947.

Sportseer--

(Continued from page seven) perience, we'll string along with Minor. He's been quite impressive this year even in his defeats—which have been to some highly-rated men such as Illinois' Werner Holzer, Cornell's Dick Vincent, and Syracuse's Bill White.

Pitt's Dave Johnson is in a class by himself at 167. Of course, I might be prejudiced for I consider Johnson second only to Penn State's Johnny Johnson as my favorite wrestler. Johnson will probably meet George Gray but he could also go up a weight to 177 and tangle with George's brother Dan or Hank Barone. Either way, I see a Pitt win. However, if Johnson goes at 167, the 177 battle will be a crucial one. To stay on the safe side, we'll call that a draw—but we're hoping.

Not much can be said about heavyweight. Ray Pottios, the Lion man, could win if he'd only try. His foe will be either Tony Vucolo or Tom Hall. We'll give Pitt three for a decision but again, we're hoping.

I guess we're hoping for a lot tonight, maybe too much. But like we said, Pitt can be beaten. Can the Lion do it?

Four Debate Men To Vie in Matches

Jay Feldstein and Gerald Bogus of the men's debate team will compete in a tournament at Boston University this weekend.

The men will debate both the negative and the affirmative once. Herbert Cohn and Nathan Brenner, affirmative; and Byron LeVan and Kermit Winkelbeck, negative, will debate in the North-South tournament at the University of West Virginia, also this weekend.

They will debate the national topic, "Resolved: that compulsory membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment should be made illegal."

FFA Banquet Tickets On Sale at AgEd Office

Tickets are available at the Agriculture Education office for the spring banquet of the Collegiate Chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

The banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday in the Hetzel Union ballroom. Tickets are $3 each.

Stroud, Patricia Paladino, Gardner Tillson, Barry Gordon, June Miller and Helen Cunnings. The stage manager is Patricia Waite.

The play, which has been called a "charade with music," was written by Jean Anouilh and translated by Christopher Fry. Strewn throughout the play are bits of satire and comedy which augment a rather ludicrous plot.

The Five O'clock Theatre will present a second play later in the semester, "Suppressed Desires," by Susan Glaspell. The story is a humorous satirical comment on modern psychiatry.

Tickets for the play may be obtained free of charge in the Greenroom on the second floor of Schwab auditorium.

Trip Refund--

The trip was brought to light Thursday night when Edward Dubbs, editor of The Daily Collegian, questioned the expenditure on the floor of Cabinet.

Dubbs said he thought the figure of "about $150" for the trip, as given then by Steele, was "quite high." He also questioned whether it might not have been better to send the check with a 3-cent stamp and give the money the trip would have cost to Sharp for his hospital expenses.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Paul A. Twigg, Bachelor of Architectural Engineering, University of Detroit, '53, in front of the 6-story building whose construction he supervised.

Paul Twigg's Baby

Paul A. Twigg had been with Michigan Bell Telephone Company for about a year when he was assigned to a project that was a "dream" for a young architectural engineer. He was to supervise construction of a 6-story, 175,000-square-foot addition to the telephone building in Grand Rapids.

"For the next two years," Paul says, "I lived with the job as assistant to the Project Engineer. I interpreted the architect's plans and specifications for the contractor, inspected construction, made on-the-spot revisions where necessary, and worked out the many problems which arise on a project of this size.

"I kept the Engineering office in Detroit informed through daily logs and weekly progress reports. My boss provided reassuring supervision and advice on major problems by means of periodic visits to the job."

The building was completed last August. Understandably, Paul thinks of it as his "two-million-dollar baby."

"An assignment like this really gives you a feeling of accomplishment," Paul says. "It provides invaluable experience in your field. In fact, I've already been able to complete the first section of my Professional Registration Examination as an Architectural Engineer."

To engineers in many fields, the Bell Telephone Companies offer big and interesting assignments—assignments that challenge your ability, capitalize on your training and provide real advancement opportunities.

Many young men are finding interesting and rewarding careers in the Bell Telephone Companies. Find out about the career opportunities for you. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus. And read the Bell Telephone booklet which is on file in your Placement Office.
