

Records Could Be 'Obsession' Says Owner of 1800 LPs

By NEAL FRIEDMAN

"Record collecting," says David M. Green, instructor in English, "can become an obsession like alcoholism, with most collectors."

Green should be an expert on the subject since he has a collection of 1800 long-playing records.

One might think that Green had been collecting records for some time in order to amass

2 Nominated For AIM Presidency

James Wambold, junior in mechanical engineering from Allentown, and Edward Frymoyer, junior in engineering science from Sunbury, were nominated for president of the Association of Independent Men at a Board of Governors meeting last night.

Final nominations and elections will be held at the Board of Governors meeting on March 19. Nominations for all offices will be open at that time.

Donald Funk, sophomore in industrial engineering from Kimberton, was nominated for AIM secretary. No nominations were made for the offices of vice president and treasurer.

Carl Smith, president of the West Halls Council and chairman of the AIM committee on the National Independent Student Association, reported to the board that it would cost approximately $400 to send two delegates to the NISA convention at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Okla. The convention will be held the last week of March.

Smith asked the board to appropriate an additional $100 to the $300 provided in the AIM budget for the trip. He said this would make it possible for two delegates from AIM to attend the convention.

The board postponed final decision on the request for the additional $100 until the budget could be studied more thoroughly. A vote will be taken at the next meeting.

Keystonaires Band To Play at Dance

The Keystonaires, a 13-piece band, will play at the freshman class dance, it was announced at a freshman advisory board meeting last night.

The dance, "April in Blue," will be held from 9 to 12 p.m. April 19 in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Those attending the dance will vote for a queen. The queen will be chosen from five freshman coeds nominated by male members of the advisory board.

Prof to Present Paper To Automotive Engineers

Wolfgang E. Meyer, professor of engineering research, together with Einar S. Dahl, of Borg-Warner Corp., will present a paper on "Application of Fuel Injection to Spark Ignition Engines" to the Milwaukee section of the Society of Automotive Engineers today.

The presentation is part of a lecture series; "Engineering Know-How in Engine Design," sponsored by Marquette University.

Minnesota Prof to Talk

Professor Leonid Hurwicz, professor of economics at the University of Minnesota, will address a special seminar of the economics faculty on "Competition and Welfare" at noon today in dining room C of the Hetzel Union Building.

such a sizeable collection; however, he began his LP collection in 1949. This was after he had disposed of a collection of some 5000 78's.

Green began his collection as a boy of 14. He had become very interested in music, although the only pieces he had heard were "those few my mother played on the piano in our living room."

One day by chance he picked up a book on opera and immediately became interested in vocal music, an interest which he carries down to this day since the major part of his collection is composed of vocal music.

Green's collection began in a modest way "with an old Victrola and a dozen red seal records." He scoured Salvation Army stores for old records until he went to high school and began to work in record stores to get a discount on purchases.

After some time Green accumulated a collection of over 5000 78's; however, a combination of circumstances forced him to dispose of his entire collection and in 1949 Green began collecting LP's.

Green's interest in music goes beyond his records. He has studied music and holds a degree in that field. In addition he has done some composing and considers himself "somewhat of an authority on music."

Green said that he collects records only secondarily for enjoyment and that his primary aim is to educate himself.

Green's collection is composed mainly of classical music, most of which is not usually heard in concert halls. He also enjoys jazz and some popular music.

Of rock and roll he says, "I guess I've aged, but I can't see music composed of three notes and two chords."

Keeping track of 1800 records would seem to be quite a task but "thanks to a file system in my head and a foolproof index" Green says he has no trouble.

In November, 1956, Green said he felt maybe he hadn't been playing all of his records enough and began to play at least one each day. He is still at it.

Green estimates the value of his collection at "about the price of a new Cadillac." When asked if he would ever consider trading it in on one, he smiled and said, "Hell, no!"

Blackadar Leads Workshop Talk

Methods of observing and predicting low-level wind shear which has caused serious hazards for aircraft landing at night were discussed by Alfred K. Blackadar, associate professor of meteorology, at the annual workshop meetings of the District of Columbia branch of the American Meteorological Society ending yesterday in Washington, D.C.

The workshop session was concerned with the detection, analysis and prediction of weather patterns which are too small in size to be charted efficiently on ordinary weather maps.

Dairy Club to Hear Hale

Edgar Hale, associate professor of animal behavior, will speak to the Dairy Science Club at 7 tonight in 117 Dairy.

His subject will be, "Behavior of Farm Animals."

Career Day Tickets Are Available

Tickets for the Business Administration Student Council's Career Day, March 13, are now available at the Hetzel Union desk and 121 Boucke.

Beginning Tuesday tickets will also be available in the lobby of Boucke.

Featured speaker for the program is Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier, economic assistant to the President.

Michael Roeborg, chairman of the council's committee on academic honesty, reported that the faculty of the commerce department had shown a favorable reaction to the honor system.

No steps are being taken, however, until the entire faculty discusses the plan at their next meeting March 11.

Roeborg said the dean of the college would have to submit a written proposal, with all terms of the plan in writing to the Senate Subcommittee on Academic Honesty for approval.

The council allotted $75 to the Leffler Memorial Fund which has been established in honor of the late George L. Leffler, assistant dean for research for the college.

A member of the council moved to dissolve the post of secretary-treasurer and to replace it with two separate posts. The motion was tabled as required by the council's constitution.

Dublin Players Finish 5th USA Touring Season

The Dublin Players have been touring colleges and universities in the United States since October. Saturday night's performance marks the end of their 1957-58 touring season, their fifth in America.

"We can't say enough about America," said Miss MacAvin. "People have been so kind to us."

Miss McAvin said the group has run into some pretty funny incidents while on tour (though they didn't seem so funny at the time). The group was scheduled to perform in Boone, N.C., three weeks ago during one of the worst snow storms of the year.

The bus they use for touring miraculously didn't break down (it has several times during the tour) and both actors and audience showed up on time. But snow came through the window of the dressing room all night and the audience had to sit in their coats and hats to watch the show.

The Dublin Players was formed in 1947 by Ronald Ibbes and his wife Maureen Halligan, both famous actors in their own right. They were originally formed to tour Ireland, but in 1950 Tyrone Guthrie, a director at the Metropolitan Opera Company, persuaded Ibbes to take the company to America. The company was an immediate success with critics and the public alike.
