

Senior Board Plans To Aid Alum Drive

The Senior Class Advisory Board will work with the Alumni Association in a membership campaign, Thomas Hollander, senior class president, told Board members Tuesday night.

The drive will have four objectives:

so that all students will have a better opportunity to obtain summer employment related to their individual academic interests.

In explaining the plank, Magdovitz said: "The placement service is good for graduating seniors and for undergraduates in engineering. Other students have to rely on summer jobs as waiters and waitresses."

●Due to the present difficulty concerning campus transportation and parking problems . . . we propose that a type of shuttle bus system be organized for the purpose of providing transportation for students both to and from campus.

●Recognizing the need for more and better entertainment facilities, we recommend the formation of a committee . . . to investigate the enlargement and coordination of the present facilities for student entertainment. Present facilities include the University Artists' Series and the Sunday night movie program.

●Being aware of the widespread student opinion concerning the issue of the floating half-holiday, Campus party advocates the inclusion of this type of flexible holiday in the University calendar.

agenda of next week's Cabinet meeting. This report could be distributed throughout the student body with the cooperation of such organizations as Interfraternity Council, Association of Independent Men, Leonides, Panhellenic, etc."

D'Angelo said the proposed report would "speak on specific issues" and "would be more detailed" than coverage in The Daily Collegian.

"A definite plan to establish better public opinion for and within the University" makes up the third plank:

"A system whereby outstanding students would work with the University's Department of Public Information" and would visit high school within the Commonwealth to speak on college in general and Penn State in particular. "This would promote good will and give the high school student contemplating college a deeper understanding of the academic and social potentialities offered by the University," the plank said.

White to Speak on Turbines

Douglas F. White, associate in engineering research, will speak on the non-steady flow turbine at 3:45 p.m. today in 211 Mechanical Engineering.

●To retain the class unit structure through a system of agents in each college on a ratio of one agent to contact every 15 members.

●To distribute the Alumni Newsletter to graduating seniors.

●To begin a high school students program to publicize the University.

●To promote the feeling among seniors that they will soon be alumni and to help them identify with the Alumni Association.

Richard Martin, chairman of the Senior Ball committee, said the dance will be held May 2 and that programs have been chosen.

Elizabeth Marvin, chairman of the Senior Class Gift Committee, reported that her committee is still looking over suggestions and will contact interest groups for further ideas.

Calendar committee chairman, Rosemary Keating, said a list of senior activities is being compiled stating the when, where and why of Senior Week activities.

A motion to discontinue the Senior class reception with faculty members was approved and a recommendation was made such a reception be carried out by the freshman class in the fall.

In closing the meeting, Hollander said he had been doing some "soul searching" and wanted to speak to "those who are concerned with the way I have been voting on Cabinet."

"I don't propose to stampee across student opinion," he said. "I feel that representative government should be objective and look at both sides of an issue, I try to take the side I feel best."

"Sometimes I have changed my pre-conceived after digging for facts and figures," he said. He used the ROTC issue for an example, "after considering the importance of defense and the long range ROTC plan I felt compulsory ROTC was not a half bad idea," he said, and "I see no reason to placate any group on campus," he said.

I have never contended to be "the sole possessor of truth," he added. "I felt I owed you an explanation." "Perhaps we should have more meetings before I vote on Cabinet issues."

"I did the right thing in my mind," he concluded.

University Centers Shown in Exhibit

The University's off-campus centers are the subject of an exhibit on the first floor of the Hetzel Union Building.

Pictures and drawings of each of the 12 centers, including drawings of the proposed student union buildings at McKeesport and Hazleton centers, are on display. The exhibit will remain at the HUB until the end of March.

ASSIGNMENT SHEET is posted each morning for the editorial staff of The Daily Collegian. Bonnie Jones, an advanced reporter, checks her assignment before going out to cover it. Readers may learn more "inside dope" at The Daily Collegian Open House from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Coed Room Reassignments To Be Made This Week

Coeds who wish to be reassigned to their present room for the fall semester may register until Saturday in the residence halls.

Coeds who wish to be in the same rooms next semester, except for sorority women, should register at the reception desks in Simmons or McElwain Halls or in the Redifer post office or the Room Assignment Office in 1-A Irvin Hall.

The coeds will be required to pay a $10 room deposit within 10 days after the notice of assignment.

Coeds who do not request the same rooms for next fall and are not assigned to sorority suites may obtain housing applications from March 17 to 22.

McElwain, Simmons and the South Halls, except Ewing, will house upperclasswomen next fall. Atherton, Grange, McAllister and Ewing will be freshman dorms.

Pre-Vet Club to Hear Talk on Extension Plan

Samuel B. Guss, associate professor of veterinary science will speak to the Pre-Vet Club at 7 tonight in 112 Buckhout Lab.

Guss will speak on the Veterinary Extension Program. Dues will be collected and reservations made for the Spring Banquet.

'P. J. Game' Block Ticket Sales OK'd

For the first time in recent years, fraternities and other groups will be permitted to buy tickets in a block for a Thespians' production.

Thespians will present the Broadway musical "Pajama Game" March 20, 21, and 22 in Schwab Auditorium.

"Because of the IFC-Panhel Ball Friday night and house-parties Saturday night, block sales will be available for the Saturday afternoon matinee at 2 p.m.," Ray Fortunato, administration co-ordinator of Thespians, said yesterday.

Fortunato said interested groups must contact his office, 303 Old Main, before tickets go on public sale at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Hetzel Union desk.

Tickets for the March 21 and 22 evening shows are priced at $1.50; tickets for the March 20 and March 22 matinee shows are priced at $1.25.

Members of the cast and crews may pick up their tickets starting at 9 this morning at the desk.

The musical was adapted from Richard Bissell's book, "7½ Cents." Words and music are by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross.

Outing Club Ski Group To Hold Meeting Tonight

The ski division of the Outing Club will hold its Red House reunion at 7 tonight in 214 Boucke.

Slides of the Red House trip will be shown and plans for an Easter ski trip will be made.

Beatty Appoints Honor Group

The Agricultural Student Council has approved the appointment of a committee by its president, Russell Beatty, to study a possible honor system within the college.

The committee will meet with the heads and advisors of the departments to determine the feasibility of such a system.

Beatty on Tuesday also appointed Glen Klippenstein, junior in animal husbandry, chairman of the New Recruitment Counseling Committee for next year. Ray LeVan, sophomore in rural sociology, and Richard McDonald, sophomore in animal husbandry, were also named to the committee.
