FIVE CENTS

INTERSECTION ACCIDENT—Involved in a collision about 5 p.m. yesterday at Entrance Road and College Avenue were a car (left) driven by George Flamin, sophomore in hotel administration from Tenafly, N.J., and a car driven by Robert Light, instructor in the mechanical engineering department. An investigation of the accident is being conducted.

Senate Scheduled to Get Calendar Change Surveys

Results of two surveys on student and faculty reaction to possible alternative calendar systems are being readied for presentation to the University Senate.

Peter Fishburn, student representative on the Senate Calendar Committee, said yesterday his survey on student reaction is almost complete.

AIM Board To Elect Officers

The Association of Independent Men Board of Governors will hold final nominations and elections of officers at 7 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

Edward Frymoyer, junior in engineering science from Sunbury, and James Wambold, junior in mechanical engineering from Allentown, are the two nominees for AIM president.

Donald Funk, junior in industrial engineering from Kimberton, is a candidate for AIM secretary.

These candidates were nominated at the last Board of Governors meeting. Nominations may be made tonight for the above two offices and the positions of vice president and treasurer.

John Morgan, AIM president, has asked that all candidates bring copies of their transcripts to tonight's meeting to certify their eligibility to hold office.

Persons who will act as alternates for regular board members tonight must also present copies of their transcripts before they may vote.

Louis Wonderly, AIM secretary, said the alternates' transcripts will be checked for eligibility to vote. "Last year," he said, "we had trouble with illegal voting" so transcripts are requested this year. Board members and alternates must have a 2.4 All-University average according to the AIM constitution.

The board also will vote on a request made at the last meeting for an additional $100 to send delegates to the National Independent Student Association convention in Oklahoma at the end of this month. $300 is provided for the convention trip in the AIM budget.

The faculty counterpart, conducted by Professor of Physical Education Fred Coombs, is also in the final stages. Coombs said a mistake in compiling figures is in the process of being corrected.

The surveys will cover three possible alternatives to the present calendar system: trimester, quarter sessions, and extended summer sessions.

The alternatives are being considered as possible solutions to overcrowding which would be caused by predicted future enrollment increases.

According to Fishburn and Coombs, the surveys are attempting to discern whether the alternative systems would affect summer employment, would prove popular with students and faculty, and which system would be preferred.

Traffic Violations Limit Upped To Six Under New Proposal

The number of traffic violations which would make a student subject to dismissal has been upped from five to six in a new recommendation by a student-administration committee.

The recommendation, which will go before All-University Cabinet, also asks that a student's car be sent home and his campus driving privileges be suspended, after the fifth violation, for 16 weeks or the rest of the academic year, whichever is longer.

The change in the driver expulsion clause in the new parking recommendations was made after Cabinet strongly opposed the original five-violation plan. Another change in the original recommendation made by the

Eisenhower Pledges Tax Cut If Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower yesterday pledged that his administration will do everything needed, including the cutting of taxes, if that should prove desirable and necessary to halt the recession.

Eisenhower made these declarations in a speech to a national meeting of Republican women. Earlier, Sen. William Knowland (R.-Calif.) said it might well be two months before

Phillips Gets LA Council Presidency

Louis Phillips, junior in arts and letters from Clairton, last night was elected president of the Liberal Arts Student Council without opposition.

David Epstein, sophomore in arts and letters from Scranton, defeated Leonard Julius, sophomore in journalism from West Palm Beach, Fla., for the vice presidency.

Patricia O'Neill, junior in journalism from Staten Island, N.Y., was elected recording secretary. She also was unopposed.

Joyce Basch, sophomore in arts and letters from Scranton won the office of corresponding secretary over Judith Stock, sophomore in arts and letters from Pittsburgh, and Rachel Waters, junior in arts and letters from Wilmington, Del.

William Jaffe, sophomore in journalism from Philipsburg was elected treasurer. He defeated Richard Friedman, junior in arts and letters from Harrisburg.

Robert Nurock, outgoing president, told the council he hoped they would continue to encourage critical thought in student government and bring the student back to student government.

He complimented the council for "having done a lot that councils in the past had not done." Nurock singled out such accomplishments as the Liberal Arts orientation program, the faculty evaluation committee, the career day program, the ROTC recommendation and the two scholarships set up by the council, and complimented the members who had been in charge of them.

Phillips said he hopes next year's council can gain the esteem that this year's council has.

BusAd Council Blanks

Self-nomination blanks for the Business Administration Student Council will be available until Friday in 120 Boucke.

Applicants must have a minimum 2.2 All-University average.

the administration makes a decision on cutting taxes. Last week the word was that it might come in one month.

Eisenhower, in promising any necessary action, said he was opposed to slow-moving projects designed just to make work.

"The hardships to individuals and their families of a temporary downturn in employment are bad enough," he said.

"But this administration is not going to be panicked by alarmists into activities that could actually make those hardships not temporary but chronic."

Knowland, Republican leader of the Senate, gave his estimate after he and other GOP congressional leaders had talked with Eisenhower at the White House about tax cut possibilities, and the chance that other measures might whip the economic slump by themselves.

Eisenhower divided into two parts what he called the Republican principle on the relation of the government to the economy.

"We believe that the government has a never-ending responsibility to keep abreast of the facts of economic activity, and to be prepared, whenever an economic downturn occurs, to do whatever it can to help bring about a healthy increase in employment and business activity," he said.

"But another part of the same principle also holds that the real mainspring of our kind of economy is not government, but the built-in thrust and vigor of private enterprise."

Eisenhower listed a variety of actions the government has already undertaken.

First and second on his list were steps to ease credits and to stimulate private demand for homes.

Next was his plan for a temporary extension of Unemployment Compensation benefits, on which he will confer with a committee of governors Wednesday.

"We must move with speed," he said, "since this plan bears directly on the immediate personal well-being and personal dignity of thousands of American families."

Action on PiLam Land Continues

Proceedings on the condemnation action against the property which includes the house now occupied by Pi Lambda Phi fraternity are being continued by the State College Parking Authority.

The authority, at its last meeting, signed a petition to the Centre County Court asking for the appointment of a Board of Viewers to evaluate the Pugh Street site owned by P. H. Gentzel.

This move was taken under the Parking Authority Law of Pennsylvania and follows Gentzel's refusal of an offer of $95,000.

The authority then tendered a $190,000 bond to Gentzel to cover any damages brought about by court proceedings such as court costs or loss of rent during court action.

Since no answer has been received from Gentzel as to whether he is accepting the bond, the court is being asked to appoint the board—made up of realtors—to appraise the property's fair value. Following the appraisal, Gentzel may appeal it and if an agreement is not then reached, a final court decision is required.

The condemnation action is taken under the right of eminent domain, which says any state or municipality may take over private property for public use, if a reasonable consideration is given the owner.

The Authority said it is continuing negotiations for the Centre County Film Lab property on Beaver Avenue, adjacent to two properties previously purchased.

These properties have given the authority a frontage of 100 feet, and the Film Lab site adds 50 feet in the front and 24 feet in the rear. Since the Authority has drawn up tentative plans for a rectangular lot, only a part of this property could be used, it was reported.

Lion Predicts Cold, Clouds

Fourteen students were quarantined for measles last week at the infirmary while another sufferer — the Nittany Lion — changed his spots.

The Lion, now fully recovered, has decided to return to his weather forecasting work — but not to campus. His telegraphic report today calls for partly cloudy skies and temperatures at a high of 35 to 40 degrees.

The Lion awaits the Lamb before returning.

'Is Philosophy a Game' To Be Phil Club Topic

The Philosophy Club will meet at 8 tonight in 209 Hetzel Union to hear Dr. Henry W. Johnstone, associate professor of philosophy speak on "Is Philosophy a Game?"

Refreshments will be served in the second floor lounge following the meeting, which is open to the public.
