

Coeds Awaited Sandwich Man In Era of Sorority Houses

By LYNN WARD
Second of a Series

Can you picture 11 or 12 sorority women running out of the dormitory at 11 p.m. in their pajamas to get "big sandwiches on buns from a man in a little truck"?

The Chi Omegas used to do this when they lived in Edgewood Cottage, according to Mrs. Frank Morris, Chi Omega alumna. Mrs. Morris said she remembers nights when the Chi O's would patiently wait in the little frame cottage on Ag Hill for the "bell of the sandwich man."

This was the era of the sorority houses.

Mrs. Morris said "it was lots of fun to be in a house, although there was very little room." Most of the sorority cottages housed only 10 to 15 girls.

Generally, the officers and seniors were the only members of the sorority to live in the cottage.

She said the Chi O's enjoyed living in the cottage, but were a little frightened by the rats which shared it with them. Edgewood Cottage, now known as Oak, is the oldest cottage on campus.

Mrs. Morris said it was originally used as headquarters for the contractor who built the original Old Main building. At that time it was located on lawn in front of the present site of Women's Building, she said. It was later moved to its present site, in back of Pond Laboratory.

Mrs. Henry Keller, another Chi Omega alumna, when asked, said she didn't think coeds who lived in sorority cottages restricted their friendships by not living in the dormitories.

On weekends, she said, independent women and other sorority women stayed in the cottages with their friends for overnight visits.

Mrs. Keller said she thinks the coeds who lived in the sorority cottages had more freedom than the girls in the dormitories and also got to know the girls they lived with better.

The sorority women ate in central dining halls with the dormitory women. The cottages had small kitchenettes where the coeds could cook soup and keep breakfast foods or use for small parties. The kitchenettes were used, Mrs. Keller said, in the same way the present sorority women use the kitchenettes in the suites.

Debaters to Speak In State Contest

Jay Feldstein and Robert Adams have been chosen to represent the men's debate team at the state finals for orative and extemporaneous speaking.

Feldstein, doing orative speaking, and Adams, speaking extemporaneously, were chosen by winning intersquad competition.

The time and place of the state finals has not yet been named since the scheduled tournament at Grove City College this weekend was cancelled because of a measles epidemic.

Students May Obtain Ed Council Applications produce a copy of his transcript to certify his All-University average.

When asked what his average is Thalimer said, "To the best of my knowledge I have a 2.0 average." Thalimer said he had two deferred grades from last semester and his fall semester average would not be available for a few weeks.

Goodwin ruled that Thalimer's official average would be that of the end of the spring semester. His average at that time was a 1.95 thus making him ineligible to hold an AIM office.

The AIM constitution requires officers to have a 2.0 All-University average.

Thirty-three students have been fined a total of $155 for illegal parking, not having registration sticker displayed and failure to report to Campus Patrol office.

Nine of the students' fines, totaling $65, were suspended.

Fifteen students failed to appear and were automatically fined a total of $102. Thirteen other cases were dismissed.

Owen Proctor, Traffic Court chairman, warned that it is illegal to park in service drives at any time and that it is illegal to park in any place where parking may be a fire hazard. Only the red areas on the map found in the University traffic regulations represent areas where cars may be parked by students after 5:30 p.m.

There are about 2,238,000 automatic dishwashers in U.S. homes today.
