Twenty-two community work projects will be undertaken by Greeks Saturday afternoon in the cleanup, fixup phase of Greek Week.

Greeks from 45 fraternities and 22 sororities will take part in the projects which will include cleaning up playgrounds, parks and other play areas in the State College area.

Dickson to Give Talk On Sculptor

The subject of George Gray Barnard and his statues will come up for discussion again when Dr. Harold E. Dickson, professor of the history of art and architecture, delivers a lecture on Barnard at 8:30 tonight in 121 Sparks.

Barnard first became of interest to the students and faculty at the University when two plaster of paris models of statues he had sculptured, which at one time stood in the lobby of Schwab Auditorium, turned up in the University Salvage Department.

In the lecture tonight, entitled "Barnard and his Statues: Tragic-comedy at Harrisburg," Dickson will discuss in detail Barnard's commission to do the statuary for the new Pennsylvania State Capitol at Harrisburg in 1902.

He will present new materials, some obtained from the sculptor's son, Monroe Gray Barnard, on the details concerning the controversy surrounding this episode in Barnard's life. Dickson will illustrate his lecture with slides.

George Gray Barnard was a native of Bellefonte, and a well-known sculptor during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He died in 1938.

Dickson is the author of many publications on Pennsylvania arts and is now engaged in a study of Barnard and his works.

The lecture, second in the current Simmons Series, is sponsored by the College of the Liberal Arts. It was established in honor of the late Lucretia V. T. Simmons, former head of the Department of German and dean of women at the University.

Little Theater To Do 'Woyzeck'

Five O'Clock Theatre will present George Buchner's "Woyzeck" at 5:05 p.m. today in the Little Theatre of Old Main.

The production has been adapted into a one-act play by Marvin Katz, sophomore in arts and letters from Drexel Hill, who also directs the play.

The play is a psychological melodrama concerning a German soldier, Woyzeck, who is mentally unbalanced. The plot has to do with Woyzeck's revenge when he finds out his mistress, Marie, has been unfaithful to him.

Members of the cast are: Floyd Santoro, Jayne Mort, William Bonham, Joseph Seravello, Bruce Taylor, Barry Gordon, Marvin Katz, William Kotzwinkle, Patricia Kampmeier and Carolyn Seabrans. Technical direction is by Richard Mazza and William Kotzwinkle.

Lemon Awards, Digs, Old Jokes Highlight Froth

Froth, in its issue coming out tomorrow, "blows the lid" off a stately college campus—to wit, this one.

Such sacrosanct organizations and individuals as All-University Cabinet, The Daily Collegian, Lion's Paw, Cabinet members and Collegian Editor Edward Dubbs are exposed.

Froth also hands out its annual Lemon awards to "deserving" student leaders.

The Horatio Algerish success story of the famed Harry Igaf is also recounted.

The usual hodgepodge of Old Mania and old jokes as well as cartoons by five new artists (refreshing, to say the least) are included.

Froth salesmen will be purveying their wares at the usual places tomorrow—Bulletin Board, HUB, Corner and Waring Hall—for the fantastic price of 25 cents. Don't miss it if you can.

Budget--

(Continued from page one) occupancy, and therefore "there is no great chance to accumulate money to do this work," he said.

Long called the problem somewhat eased by the fact that some of the older halls, which were built when costs were much lower, already have been paid for. State funds cannot be used for dormitory construction.

A full summer program, greater use of centers and more scholarships also will help meet the University's problems, he said.

Long described adoption of a quarter or trimester system or a full summer session—which alternatives are under study by the administration—as a "great help in keeping costs down." But he said faculty salaries of course would have to be raised because of the added summer work.

We must change our thinking to permit full use of the University centers, he said, including cooperative projects with other colleges, such as the Harrisburg center, which is sponsored jointly by the University and schools in that area. He also said the University needs scholarships badly.

Concerning the future of sororities, Long said he believes that "eventually the girls will have sorority houses, but I question whether the University will build them."

He also praised fraternities for their contribution to the housing of University students. The University might someday be able to give fraternities land on campus, he said, but he questioned whether they would want to accept it because of high building costs and because they would probably be as far from classroom buildings as present fraternity houses.

Johnson, Moran Get Quill, Matrix Honors

Carolyn Johnson, president of Mortar Board, was named Quill Girl at the 21st annual Matrix Table held Sunday night in honor of outstanding University women.

Patricia Moran, former president of the Home Economics Student Council, was named Matrix Girl. Lynn Glassburn, former personnel manager of The Daily Collegian business staff and a member of the LaVie senior board, was named Cap Girl.

About 100 persons attended the dinner, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism honorary. Charms were presented to the winners of the three awards.

The Quill girl was elected several weeks ago by junior and senior women, but the results of the voting were not released until the dinner.

The Matrix and Cap girls were selected by members of Theta Sigma Phi. The Cap Girl award recognizes the woman who is, or has been, a member of a hat society and has taken part in the most varied activities. The Matrix Girl, who has not been recognized by a hat society, is chosen for her service to the University.

The speaker at Matrix Table was Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, former president of the Women's National Press Club and a Washington reporter.

She spoke of incidents in Washington's social life. Parties are "one of Washington's biggest businesses," Mrs. Carpenter said. "It's a partying town. The residents aren't there permanently, so they like to get together."

In describing the social hierarchy, she said that one's place in Washington society is based not on family or money, but on governmental position.

The three top hostesses, according to Mrs. Carpenter, are Perle Mesta, Gwen Cafritz and Margie Merriwether Post. She compared Washington society to a red-mix—"its ingredients are people, money and parties. Stir rapidly and feed to society reporters."

Blood Donation Arrangements May Be Made

Students who have not already done so may register their class schedule today at the Hetzel Union desk and arrange a time to donate blood to the Red Cross Bloodmobile tomorrow and Thursday.

Blood may be given from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow and Thursday in the Hetzel Union card room.

Persons under 21 are required by the Red Cross to present a minor's release signed by their parents. All donors must not have given blood in the last two-and-a-half months and must weigh over 100 pounds.

The drive to recruit donors is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, men's national service fraternity, and Gamma Sigma Sigma, women's national service sorority, to benefit the Johnstown blood donation area. Donations permit this area to run a free blood bank available to students.

To date, Phi Kappa Psi fraternity has pledged 32 pints, Chi Phi, 20, and Delta Upsilon, 17.

Members of the Army ROTC who donate blood will receive merits.
