FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

VOL. 58, No. 123 STATE COLLEGE, PA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, APRIL 16, 1958 FIVE CENTS

TKE, Phi Gam, Phi Mu Delt Acacia Advance to Sing Finals

Tau Kappa Epsilon, 7-time champion; Acacia, Phi Mu Delta and Phi Gamma Delta fraternities last night advanced to the finals of the IFC-Panhel Sing in Schwab Auditorium.

The fraternities, together with Monday night's sorority winners, will compete in the finals at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Schwab.

The four fraternities qualified from 15 competing houses. Each group sang the required song, "When Good Men Sing," and a fraternity song.

Tau Kappa Epsilon has won the Sing championship for the last seven years. The defending champions are directed by Robert Campbell.

Russell Scott is director of the Acacia chorus, Jack Long is director of Phi Gamma Delta and Warren Dougherty is director of Phi Mu Delta.

Judges for last night's competition were Mrs. Ralph Condee, a member of the State College Choral Society; Mrs. Wolbert Charleta, elementary music supervisor of State College Area Schools, and Mrs. Dennis Shirk, director of the Presbyterian Church choir.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, men's service fraternity, served as ushers for the sing.

Greek Week activities will continue tonight with some 1600 Greeks taking part in exchange dinners in fraternity houses and women's dining halls.

Juri Niiler, co-chairman of the exchange dinners, said entertainment will be provided during the meals in the residence halls.

John Schmucker, of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, will provide piano music in Simmons dining hall and Annette Sarino, of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, will play with accordion in McElwain dining hall.

Special entertainment will be provided in individual sorority suites in the new women's dormitories and also in the fraternities.

Blood Plea Is Made For Former Student

A special appeal has been made for students to donate blood for William Shaw, a 1957 graduate of the University who is suffering from internal hemorrhaging.

The condition reportedly is caused by a recurring injury received in a soccer game here. Shaw is a patient at Bryn Mawr Hospital.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on campus from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and tomorrow. Students over 21 are urged to go to the Hetzel Union card room to donate blood. Students under 21 need a minor's release signed by their parents. Donors must not have given blood in the last two-and-a-half months and must weigh more than 100 pounds.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, men's national service fraternity, and Gamma Sigma Sigma, women's national service sorority, sponsors of the drive, hope to surpass the 300-pint quota because the demand for blood is great now due to the diminishing supply at the Johnstown blood center.

The center maintains free blood in the area for student use.

Delta Delta Delta and Kappa Kappa Gamma sororities will be hostesses, today and tomorrow respectively, at the Bloodmobile, serving coffee, orange juice and cookies to the donors.

Members of the Army ROTC will receive merits for their donations.

Insurance Notices Available in HUB

Students enrolled in the voluntary insurance program may obtain their notices of coverage and identification cards from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday at the Hetzel Union desk.

Students must identify themselves by matriculation card or some other means. Claim forms for the insurance program are available at Doty and Hench Insurance Agency, State College Hotel Building.

5 Are Named To Vie For Title Of 'Miss State'

Five finalists were chosen in the preliminary judging for the Miss Penn State contest last night.

They are:

Annette Agner, junior in education from Corapolis, sponsored by Chi Omega and Alpha Sigma Phi; Ellen Donovan, junior in arts and letters from Emporium, sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Nu; Dorothy Lentz, junior in elementary education from Media, sponsored by Alpha Zeta.

Sybil Kersh, junior in elementary education from Short Hills, N.J., sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Ginger Ottinger, junior in arts and letters from Norwood, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi and Chi Phi.

Judges Peter J. Nastase, Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Fedon, Robert K. Kistler, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Flynn, William Kalin and Jack Harper chose the five finalists from 31 contestants who were interviewed. Points were given for poise, speech, carriage, personality, attractiveness and grooming.

Final judging will take place at 7 p.m. on May 1 in Recreation Hall. The coronation of Miss Penn State will take place that night in Recreation Hall. All contestants dressed in formal evening gowns will form an honor guard to escort her to the stage.

The sponsors of Miss Penn State will receive 15 Spring Week points and the four runners-up will receive 8 points each for their respective groups. Also each group which entered a contestant will receive one Spring Week Point.

The finalists will appear in the Float Parade April 28. This year's Coronation will be combined with Awards night and a Talent Show.

The Axidentals—a vocal group which features popular music—have been secured as the major entertainment. The Phi Mu Alpha Band will play for Coronation and present a medley of four numbers.

Twenty-six trophies and awards will also be presented to the winners of the Carnival and He-Man Contest.

New Name Is Given To Class-Night

The Senior Class Advisory Board voted last night to change the name of the Baccalaureate and Class Night May 6 to Senior Night.

Other suggestions included "Senior Farewell," Senior Convocation and "Last Night."

The new name was generally felt to be more appropriate since the night besides being a "spiritual send off" includes the presentation of the class gift, men's and women's honors, valedictory and salutary addresses, the class prophecy and poem and usually a reception afterward.

Thomas Hollander, senior class president, said that Dr. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, suggested that the class try to obtain the Rev. William G. Ryan from Seaton Hill College to deliver the main address.

Last year the speaker was Dr. William Muehl, professor of practical theology from Yale Divinity School.

Also this year plans are being made to have senior members of the Chapel Choir sing several all-faith songs instead of the class singing as a whole as was done last year.

Barbara Bollinger, senior in home economics from Honey Brook, was named chairman of a committee to plan Senior Night.

Elizabeth Marvin, senior in home economics from Mansfield, resigned as chairman of the senior class gift committee. A new chairman will be appointed.

Lion Predicts Showers Today

The Nittany Lion was somewhat disappointed last night because he could not wear his brand-spankin' new alligator raincoat and his blue and white polka dot umbrella to the fraternity sing preliminaries.

He was rather pleased however at the performances of the various groups and promised the emcees that he would be present at the finals Saturday night.

He is looking forward to today's expected rain and cooler temperatures of 55-65 degrees, so that he can don his rain apparel.

Eisenhower Vetoes Water Projects Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower vetoed a 1½-billion-dollar water projects bill yesterday. Indications appeared he will sign the 1¾-billion highway construction bill. Both measures have been advocated vigorously by Democrats as weapons with which to fight the recession. They have had some strong GOP support, too.

Sens. A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D.-Okla.), Hubert H. Humphrey (D.-Minn.) and Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) promptly called for a major drive to override Eisenhower's turndown of the water projects measure.

The water measure would not have gone into effect immediately, even if the President had signed it. It would merely authorize projects, with the actual appropriations to come later.

Eisenhower said in his message of disapproval that many of the projects it proposed were worthwhile.

But he said others were wasteful and some were included against advice based on "careful study and considered judgments of the professional services and other executive agencies concerned."

Republicans, meanwhile returned to the attack on another big measure—the bill by Sen. Fulbright (D.-Ark) to lend up to a billion dollars at cheap rates to states and municipalities to finance all sorts of local public works.

Knowland said the Republicans would try to cut the bill's total in half. It has been halved once before, from two billion to one billion dollars, in the Senate Banking Committee.

No one was greatly surprised when Eisenhower vetoed the water bill. He had turned down a similar measure and for similar stated reasons in 1956.

The bill proposed future construction of 150 navigation, beach erosion, flood control and power projects all across the country. On April 2 the Senate voted 52-11 to accept a compromise version drafted by a Senate-House committee. The House had accepted it by voice vote the day before.

It was this compromise which Eisenhower rejected.

Since it takes a two-thirds vote to override a veto, the Senate could do it easily—if the voting lineup of April 2 still held. Any attempt to override would come first in the Senate, since the bill originated there.

'Prof Snarf' Contest Begins

Students may submit nominations for the "Most Lovable Prof"—Our Professor Snarf of Penn State" Thursday and Friday in the dean's office of their colleges or at the Hetzel Union desk.

Engineering students may vote in Electrical Engineering Building.

The contest will be part of the World University Fund drive April 18 to 26.

In each college the professor who receives the most votes will qualify as a finalist. Penny voting the week of the drive will decide the winner.

Proceeds will aid university students in Asia, the Middle and Far East, Africa and Europe.
