

Stickmen to Host Maryland Today

Besides opening at home today without the services of their record-holding scorer, Bill Hess, the Lion lacrosse team faces the added handicap of meeting one of the top three teams in the nation, Maryland.

The game is slated to start at 3:30 this afternoon on Beaver Field.

The Terrapins, perennial lacrosse champions, have the strongest midfield in the nation. The two big reasons are All-American Ernie Betz and Roger Gross. The duo compose the nucleus of the high-scoring offense.

Lions' Mike Beattie and Jim Wimpenny both commented yesterday that they are happy to see that goalie Jimmy Kappler has graduated. "Of course his replacement is probably just as tough," commented Wimpenny.

According to Coach Earnie Baer, the Terrapins had a tough time trying to score through the zone defense employed by Washington and Lee in a recent game. "But since they saw us use the zone against Navy last Saturday," Baer analyzed, "they've probably been practicing against it this week." The Lions will use a zone defense.

With Hess out for the season, Baer will revert back to his opening game attack of Wimpenny, Harry Brown and Barry Price. Baer will probably open with his standard first unit midfield of Johnny Behne, Fred Donahoe and Chip Henderson. Behne scored the Lions' only two goals in their loss to Navy Saturday.

Defensive mainstay Burt Houseworth will handle the goalie position. "Houseworth will have to make more saves than he did against Navy, if we're going to compete with Maryland," commented a member of the team. Houseworth stopped 46 of 64 official shots at Annapolis.

Dick Dill has earned a starting berth for the Lions, along with

"S" CLUB MEMBERS ARE DROPPING THE BALL:

Last Sunday night, the Varsity "S" Club was forced to postpone its annual election of new officers because of a lack of attendance by its members. Only 17 of the club's approximately 85 members attended the meeting. This, to coin an old phrase, was a crying shame. But that's the way it's been all year.

We were offered an honorary membership to the organization last semester. We accepted . . . we felt honored to join the group in hopes of promoting Penn State athletics in whatever small way we could.

We noticed, however, a thorough lack of interest by most club members once initiation was achieved and "S" jackets were obtained. As one member put it Sunday night: "There are approximately 71 'jackets' running around campus and I have yet to see some of these guys at a meeting after they were initiated." Our sentiments exactly, sir.

It seems as though—and this is the sorry part about it—some lettermen joined the club solely for the jacket's sake. They received their jackets . . . that's as far as their affiliation with the club goes.

The "S" Club can do more to promote Penn State athletics than any other student group on campus . . . and promote itself at the same time. But it can do this only by active membership. The faithful few—and they're usually the same each meeting—can not do it alone.

One solution to the problem is to establish a definite program with definite goals each year. We hope the new officers can profit by the experiences of this year and establish just such a program—and do it early. This should help keep the members interested.

However, all is not lost this year. First of all, election of officers will be held Sunday night at Delta Upsilon. This is the time offending lettermen can redeem themselves. Show at that meeting and vote.

This is the time to pick the leaders . . . if the club is to continue for any length of time it must have the proper leaders. At least make the effort to give your successors the opportunity to make the club a success—it's an active group, not an honorary.

Secondly, the club plans to hold a banquet May 7. This fete should have capacity attendance. Post cards will come in the mail. Make the effort to attend by following the simple instructions on that card—and you won't be sorry.

The "S" Club should be, and can be, the most active student organization on campus. Don't just wear that jacket—support what it stands for. After all, lettermen, it's your club.

Lions Score Four Tallies In 3rd Frame

 Captain Don Stickler walked but centerfield Joe Moore was called out on strikes (on a debatable low-pitched ball which almost hit the ground), but McMullen kept the fire going with a single to short center. That scored Rainey and when the relay throw from the outfield was muffed at third, Stickler came home. Baidy's infield out ended the inning.

McMullen batted in the other Lion run in the seventh with a solid single to right center that plated Stickler who had reached second base via an error and passed ball.

West's Cagers Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (P)—Big Clyde Lovellette, who starred here six years ago as a Kansas cager, set the pace Monday night as the West All-Stars took a 108-105 decision over the East All-Stars in the first game of an NBA all-star tour.

Lovellette, who plays for Cincinnati, tossed in 17 points and was the leading rebounder for the West. Bob Pettit, star of the champion St. Louis Hawks, was the West's leading scorer with 22 points.

Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors led the East with 19 points. Warrior teammate Paul Arizin chipped in 16.
