Aquacade Provides Varied Entertainment

By MATT MATHEWS

Being isolated in Centre County, students rarely have an opportunity to see something different, but the WRA offered their yearly Aquacade last night and although lacking elaborate lighting facilities, they presented an entertaining program—free.

The most disappointing aspect with the show "Rhythm Americana" is that the White Hall Pool accommodates only 400 people and all the tickets are distributed for tonight's final performance.

Director Shirley Pittman and advisor Martha Adams have put together a colorful one-hour show and wisely placed the show-stopping number next to last on the program.

The stars of that particular number, "Contemporary Music," are Jo Mason and Gib Hurley. The two combine to glide through the water in the most perfectly executed and co-ordinated act in the show. Miss Mason also directs two other numbers besides her duet with Miss Hurley and has the featured part in the "Broadway" scene.

The "Rock and Roll" movement stands out as probably the cutest routine in the show, even though Miss Adams describes it with the title of the lead song, "Raunchy."

In "The Vaudeville Show," Bonnie Keys and Pat Lenhardt tease Gretchen Van Kirk as the male suitor in the show's humorous piece. Miss Van Kirk finally gets a tumble in the end—back into the water.

Betsy McKenzie's figure eights combined with excellent precise "double sharks" (underwater circling movements) by Sheila Gallagher and Julie Lloyd highlighted the "Prairie" number.

The main drawback to the show was the lack of proper lighting facilities. And during the "Blues" selection, the moody blue was completely underplayed in favor of pinks, among other shades.

Army Man Will Speak At Schwab

In political life, Colonel Miller was runner-up in the Virginia gubernatorial contest in 1949 and in 1952 was defeated by Harry F. Byrd for a Senate seat.

Previously a member of the Board of the Boards of the United States Military Academy at West Point and the College of William and Mary, Miller now sits on the board of Mary Baldwin College, Va.
