

Faculty Vetoes Adding ROTC To LA College

By RALPH MANNA
Collegian Assistant Copy Editor

The faculty of the College of the Liberal Arts yesterday voted against integration of a School of Military Affairs and Civil Defense into its college or any other college of the University.

With this action, the faculty not only opposed a report by a committee established to study the integration, but also endorsed a substitute motion proposed by Warren S. Smith, associate professor of theatre arts.

Frosh Gets Indefinite Suspension

The subcommittee on discipline of the Senate Committee on Student Affairs has placed a University freshman on immediate indefinite suspension and has given two other students deferred suspensions.

The subcommittee changed the recommendation of Tribunal from immediate expulsion to indefinite suspension for the freshman's part in the planned panty raid on Women's Building Sunday night.

Two other students were handed deferred suspension until the end of the semester and suspension until February 1959 as a result of their part in the mob demonstration.

A fourth student involved in the incident received office probation, which was changed from Tribunal's recommendation of disciplinary probation.

In another case involving a student caught carrying pitchers out of the La Galleria restaurant March 29 and held on a disorderly conduct charge by State College police, the subcommittee upheld the recommendation of Tribunal for disciplinary probation.

The change from immediate expulsion to indefinite suspension states no time limit for the suspension and does not prohibit the student from re-entering the University.

The two who were given deferred suspension will be allowed to complete the semester. They will be suspended until the end of the fall semester and any act of misbehavior from now until the end of semester will result in their immediate suspension.

In the three and one-half hour meeting, the subcommittee reviewed the recommendations of Tribunal and conducted its own review of the case. The subcommittee is composed of seven voting members and is the final decision-making body concerning student conduct.

Lion's Paw Taps 50th; Names Are Withheld

Lion's Paw, senior men's society, Wednesday night tapped its 50th class.

James Coogan, assistant director of Public Information and president of the Lion's Paw Alumni Association, yesterday declined to release immediately the names of the junior men who were tapped.

The amendment, now read and approved twice, will become a part of the constitution if it is read and approved at one more Cabinet meeting. The final vote must be by a two-thirds vote.

The amendment provides that a petition signed by three per cent of the student body could bring a special vote on an issue already voted on by Cabinet. If 20 per cent of the student body voted in the election, the majority vote would bind Cabinet's vote on the issue, and could be overruled only by a three-fourths vote of Cabinet.

Two motions to amend the amendment, one to raise the petition quota to 5 per cent and substitute motion to set the petition quota at 500, were defeated.

Cabinet members also gave suggestions to the newly-formed committee to investigate the enlargement of the Hetzel Union Building. Jay Feldstein, All-University president, named Asa Dickinson to chairman the committee.

Feldstein said the HUB will be enlarged in the immediate future, and that a committee will be set up to offer suggestions on the addition. He said the HUB is "too small and crowded" for present needs.

Among the suggestions for HUB expansion were larger reading rooms, an enlarged Lion's Den, and more music room space.

Feldstein said in an interview that a member of the administration had asked for student opinion on what should be included in the HUB enlargement. He said the committee will try to determine the feeling of students on what should be included in the addition, and also consult other schools on their union buildings.

The committee will report to Cabinet next semester, he said, and the report if approved will be presented to the University as a recommendation.

Ag Prof in Front In 'Snarf' Voting

Today is the last day for students to cast penny votes in the "Most Lovable Prof—Our Professor Snarf of Penn State" contest sponsored by the World University Service.

William E. White, professor of wood technology, candidate from the College of Agriculture, the leading contender with 5577 penny votes.

Clifford A. Nelson, associate professor of accounting, finalist from the College of Business Administration, is second with 4123 votes.

Referendum Given Second OK

The amendment to add a referendum system to the Student Government Association constitution passed its second All-University Cabinet reading last night without revision.

The amendment, now read and approved twice, will become a part of the constitution if it is read and approved at one more Cabinet meeting. The final vote must be by a two-thirds vote.

The amendment provides that a petition signed by three per cent of the student body could bring a special vote on an issue already voted on by Cabinet. If 20 per cent of the student body voted in the election, the majority vote would bind Cabinet's vote on the issue, and could be overruled only by a three-fourths vote of Cabinet.

Two motions to amend the amendment, one to raise the petition quota to 5 per cent and substitute motion to set the petition quota at 500, were defeated.

Cabinet Will Seek Lectures Series

An All-University Cabinet committee will study a proposal for a lecture series—comparable in scope to the present Artists Series—in an attempt to have a plan ready for possible approval for presentation next year.

Liberal Arts Student Council President Louis Phillips, who made the proposal at last night's Cabinet meeting, said such a program could bring to the campus "speakers of the

Wyand 'Confident' Of Getting Funds

C. S. Wyand vice president for development, says he is "quite serene" over the prospects of the University obtaining the funds to more than double its annual budget by 1970.

Wyand, speaking at the Industrial Exposition banquet Wednesday night at the Eutaw House, said he is "confident" the University will get the funds for an annual budget of more than $100 million by 1970.

The Board of Trustees considers a $100-million-a-year budget a "conservative" estimate of the University's needs by 1970. Wyand said the figure does not take inflation into account.

The present annual budget is slightly more than $42 million, about 38 per cent, or some $15 million, of which is provided by the state.

Wyand, the University's chief contact with the State Legislature, said the state will have to continue providing about 38 per cent of the University income in order that it can prepare for the "horde of young hopefuls" who will be seeking admittance.

This means the University will be seeking an annual appropriation of $38 million from the state. This is about $8 million more than it now receives from the state for two years.

Wyand's confidence the University will get the necessary money for a $100-million-a-year budget comes on top of the state appropriating what President Eric A. Walker has termed a "disaster budget" for the current biennium.

The state legislature appropriated more than $30 million for the current biennium, or about $15 million toward its annual income. Walker requested Gov. George M. Leader to ask the legislature to approve an annual budget of approximately $19 million, or some $38 million for the biennium.

Leader, in his budget message to the last session of the General Assembly, recommended $27.9 million for the biennium, or an annual figure of less than $14 million. The General Assembly raised the figure to more than $30 million, but this was still considered by Walker as a "disaster budget."

Wyand also said the University's other sources of income, (Continued on page eight) calibre of Eleanor Roosevelt, Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and Charles Laughton."

All-University President Jay Feldstein said he will appoint a chairman and a committee within the next few days in an effort to get the necessary work done for early submission to the administration.

If the committee's work and recommendations are accepted at the Cabinet meeting of May 15 or 22, Feldstein said, the request can be made to the Board of Trustees when they meet June 7.

Feldstein said he has spoken to President Eric A. Walker about the program and that "Prexy thinks it's a wonderful idea."

Phillips, in an interview, said three of the main questions which will have to be answered in this study are:

- Who would pay for the series?
- Who would choose the speakers to be presented?
- Would students support the series with their attendance?

Feldstein said persons he has talked to about the program have said that speakers of the calibre desired would cost about $1000.

However, he added, newspapermen or radio personalities might be obtained and their expenses paid by their employers "as a good-will gesture."

The problem of students attending, Phillips said, would have to be determined, but, he added, "everyone was pessimistic about student attendance when the Artists Series was being discussed last year."

Phillips emphasized that it is not too late to get such a program under way for next year.

He said this year's Artists Series was set up by Dr. Albert Christ-Janer in 30 days over the summer.
