Cindermen Favored In Raider Test

Colgate's Red Raiders will meet the Lions' cinder squad this afternoon on a soggy Beaver Field track.

The Red Raiders lost to Cornell 107-33 earlier this season and they are the underdogs in today's contest. The Nittanians romped over West Virginia—87-44—in their last outing.

Lion co-captain Jim Norton, who ran the quarter mile in 48.4 against the Mounties, will have teammate Dick Hambright as his chief competition. Hambright and Norton have been in see-saw battle for the top spot in the 440 contingent since the beginning of the season.

Running the quarter-mile for the Red Raiders will be Bill Donahue, Carl Brownell and Doug Ammon. The meet record in this event—49.9—seems destined to fall since both Norton and Hambright have bettered this time previously.

The Nittanians' number one weight man Andy Nyce—top scorer in the West Virginia meet—will be trying for a repeat performance this afternoon. Nyce took first place honors in the shot put and discus and a third in the javelin against the Mounties.

The big question mark in the Nittany lineup is hurdler and high jumper John Fareira. Fareira injured some tendons in his right ankle just before the Navy meet, forcing him to miss that meet.

Fareira tied with teammate Dick Cambell for first place honors in the high jump against the Mounties, but he has yet to put his ankle to the test in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Alden Welsh fills the top slot in the Raiders' high jump contingent. He is followed by Bob Lewis and Phil Wilginson.

The Lions are favored to sweep both the mile and the two-mile runs. Colgate is weak in these events and is limiting its entries to one in each race. Bill Benson will run the mile

More Depth Needed in Backfield

Spring Grid Drills Show Lack Of Vital Breakaway Runner

By LOU PRATO
Collegian Sports Editor

With the close of spring football drills only four days hence, head coach Rip Engle and his staff are finally beginning to talk about their grid outlook for next season.

"We have the makings of a good team," Engle said yesterday, "not a great one but a good one. We still need more depth in the backfield, but we look pretty strong up front."

Backfield mentor Joe Paterno, boss of the quarterbacks, echoed Engle's sentiments. "We have some good backs," he said, "but we need more depth for our league. And we still haven't found a real good breakaway runner—I mean the boy who will get away for four or five long touchdown runs."

"Don't get me wrong," Paterno added, "our boys are hard runners, good on defense, and they block well. Most of them will go as far as their ability will take them, but none has shown the knack of breaking into the open."

"A couple of sophomores, Jim Kerr and Lew Luce, may be the boys we're looking for, but we're not sure yet. Kerr has been the most outstanding of our new backs with his running, pass receiving and defense playing. However, he has shown only brief spells of breakaway running ability."

"Luce has the speed, we know that. But we haven't been able to get a real good look at him because he's been injured most of the spring."

Kerr, a St. Clairsville, Ohio, product, and Luce, who hails from Washington D.C. and Bullis Prep, were the sparkplugs of the Lions' unbeaten frosh gridders last fall. One of Kerr's most spectacular running feats with the frosh came against Pittsburgh when he broke away on a dazzling 87-yard touchdown run.

Engle and Paterno had high praise for several of the Lion veteran backfieldmen—especially halfbacks Dave Kasperian and Eddie Caye and fullback Pat Botula.

"Caye is perhaps the most improved back on the team so far," Paterno said, "and Botula isn't far behind. Caye has looked exceptionally good on his downfield blocking and pass receiving. And Botula's running has been tremendous. Kasperian has looked good all-around and his running doesn't leave much to be desired."

The coaches also felt that veteran Andy Moconyi, last year's regular right half who was switched to fullback, is performing "better than ever" offensively. "But he still needs work on his defense," they added.

"Bruce Gilmore is also running better than he ever did," Paterno said, "but he still has many faults to overcome." Gilmore is the senior speedster who led the team in rushing as a sophomore two years ago. A couple of injuries kept him on the sidelines most of last season.

"There's not much to say about our quarterbacks," Paterno said. "They have all been looking good." The signal-calling post is regarded as the Lions' most fortified post what with Al Jacks, Richie Lucas, and Bob Scrabis—the top three from last year—returning in addition to Dick Hoak, a highly-rated newcomer.

"Hoak is everything we thought he was," Paterno said, "especially on defense. If he keeps improving like he has done so far, we'll have to work him into the lineup—somehow."

Engle also mentioned Don Jonas, Sam Sobozcyk, Denny Shaffer, Bob Washko, Jack Urban, Bill Chaffee and Dick

Fired-Up Stickmen Meet Cornell

Victory number four will be the objective today when the Penn State lacrosse team sets its sights on Cornell's Big Red. Game time is 3:30 at Beaver Field.

The Lions will be out to avenge last year's defeat by Cornell. Cornell comes into today's game with a 4-0 record. (This does not include Saturday's game with Yale.)

Cornell seems to have solved its pre-season worries of goalie and attack. Dick Cowles is still undefeated in the nets, and Dick Murphy and Don Frisch are spearheading a powerful attack which has outscored its opponents by 23 goals.

Penn State has come on strong in its last two outings and expects to give Cornell a real battle. Coach Earnie Baer will go along with the same lineup he has used in the last few games.

Baer said, "These last two games were the highpoints of the season. The games built up our confidence which had been lacking due to our early season losses and the loss of Bill Hess."

If Cornell is to win, it will have to stop the Lions' one-two punch of Fred Donahoe and John Behne. The two are the Lions' top scorers with 11 and 10 goals respectively.

Burt Houseworth, who has been sensational in his last two outings, will once again be in the nets for the Lions. Houseworth is a much better goalie than statistics show. He has given up a total of 81 goals, but many have been scored when the Lions were one man short. In last weekend's action Houseworth gave up only 11 goals.

If Penn State can get by the Big Red this afternoon, the prospects for a .500 or winning season seem to be quite strong. Lion coach Earnie Baer rates the game a tossup. "The breaks will tell the outcome," he said.
