

Track, LaX Teams Face Michigan, Swarthmore Here

The Lion stickmen will face the Little Quakers of Swarthmore and the cindermen will meet the Wolverines of the University of Michigan in home contests tomorrow.

The lacrosse team will be trying to get back in the win column after losing two straight. Game time is set for 3:30 on the IM football field.

Coach Earnie Baer's charges will be looking for their fourth win; they have lost 6.

Summing up Wednesday's game with Cornell—which the Lions dropped to Cornell 8-6—

Baer came to the conclusion that his team's attack was a bit weak.

Last night in practice the Lions concentrated on improving their attack and also worked on clearing the ball from defensive territory. With an improvement in these departments, the Lions will be hard to stop.

One bright aspect of the attack picture is the successful switch of Dave Wilkinson from goalie to attack. Wilkinson had been a second-string goalie until the Rutgers game when Baer decided to switch him. In his first four games in his new position, Wilkinson has scored two goals and has one assist.

While we're still on the subject of the offense, Dick Weeden and Jim Wimpenny, who were both injured in the Cornell game, are not expected to see action against Swarthmore. Weeden injured his knee and x-rays were taken yesterday. Wimpenny sprained his ankle, but should be ready for Lehigh next Wednesday.

Injuries have hampered Earnie Baer's offense all year. He has lost his number one offensive threat, all-American Bill Hess, earlier in the season due to a smashed knee cap.

On the cinder scene the Lions will face a powerful Wolverine contingent in tomorrow's test at Beaver Field. Meet time is one o'clock.

will find tough competition in the form of the Big M's Geert Keilstrup. Keilstrup hails from Copenhagen, Denmark.

In a triangular meet with Marquette and Western Michigan Keilstrup ran away with top honors in the two-mile run as he snapped the tape at the 9:40 mark.

Kerr, who was beaten by Keilstrup at Quantico earlier this year, set a meet record against Navy with a time of 9:32.8.

The Nittanies' 440 contingent of Jim Norton and Dick Hambright will be hard pressed by the Wolverines' Ed Mathesson and John Twomey.

The Lions' top high jumpers, Dick Campbell and John Fareira, will face Michigan's ace John O'Reilly. O'Reilly cleared the 6' 4 1/2" mark last week.

Bob Szezyler, Lion low hurdler, will find his toughest competition thus far this season in the form of the Maize and Blue's Pete Stanger. Stanger ran the 220-yard lows in 23.4 in last week's triangular meet. Szezyler's best time is 24.4—against Navy.

Stanger is equally deadly in the 120-yard high hurdles. The Nittany contingent—John Fareira, Pete Kopcsak and Ted Lopushinsky—will face him tomorrow.

Beano Blasts Away Again

By Lou Prato
Sports Editor

The University of Pittsburgh's version of the human blast furnace—the unpredictable Carroll "Beano" Cook—popped up in the Nittany Valley last Saturday.

Beano, of course, is Pitt's irrepressible sports publicity agent who would even make Nikita Krushchev seem like a neophyte when it come to propaganda techniques.

The Pittsburgh madman, who has been dubbed by one fellow journalist as "Don Hennon's personal mouthpiece," was in town for a looksee at Penn State's baseball team and spring football drills. (Well, that was one motive. But being a regular party boy, the effervescent tub-thumper also wanted to share a "Big Weekend" with Penn State students—especially coeds.)

The scheduled diamond fracas with rival West Virginia was rained out, but Beano did get to watch Rip Engle's gridders perform before a rain-soaked gallery of high school coaches here for the annual schoolboy clinic. (Beano didn't get wet, however—he snuck into the Lion press box.)

He was impressed with the footballers but became discouraged with the typical Penn State weather (rain, rain, and more rain) and returned to the Steel City without attending the Big Weekend fiasco.

We managed to talk with the exuberant Panther ambassador before he buzzed out of town, and naturally, most of the conversation concerned Pitt's gridiron fortunes this fall.

"We may not have too hot of a team this year," Beano began, "but watch out for us in 1959. We'll be loaded then for most of the guys on this year's team will be back. And especially in our backfield where we'll have Andy Sepsi, Jim Cunningham, Fred Riddle, Jos Scisly, Ivan Tonic and Curt Plowman for two years.

"I figure we'll have a 5-5 record this fall. We could do better if we beat UCLA in the opener, but I doubt it. We're going to have a more wide-open offense this year than Pitt teams of the past couple years. That means a lot more passing. We have two good quarterbacks (Bill Kaliden and Tonic) and both are pretty fair passers.

"Two other sophomores, Jim Cunningham and Rich Maytus, have looked real good this spring. Cunningham is playing second team fullback behind Fred Riddle right now, but I wouldn't be a bit surprised if he starts next year. (That would be a major accomplishment, for Riddle led the Panthers in rushing last fall.) Maytus is an up-and-coming Pitt center who should see a lot of action in the fall."

Beano went on to list the Panther's tentative starting lineup for 1958—Kaliden at quarterback, Joe Scisly and Dick Haley at halves, Riddle at fullback, Jim Zanos and Art Gob at the ends, Earnie Westwood and Ken Montanari at tackles, co-captain Ed Michaels and John Guzik at the guards and co-captain Don Crafton at center.

"There's one thing I can say about this team," Beano exclaimed. "they have more spirit than the past two ball clubs. I guess they lost a lot of interest last year after having two long seasons because of the bowl games. But they really have a lot of spark this year.

"I think Army will have the best team in the East," the whimsical publicist continued, "but I'm not forgetting Penn State. You could have the best team if you beat Army. And if that happens you'll probably go to the Cotton Bowl.

"Of course," he added, "since you play 10 games, you still might get a bowl bid if you lose to Army. You'll probably beat us this year, but you never can tell. I thought you should have licked us last year but you didn't. Anyway, we'll beat you in 1959 for sure."

CLEARING THE DESK—Don't be surprised if two more major grid powers are added to Penn State's 1963 schedule . . . one is a southwest power and the other is a "southern" team . . . games with UCLA, Oregon and Ohio State have already been announced to go with the usual Pitt, West Virginia, Syracuse, Army crowd.

West Virginia's annual spring football game is taking a new twist this year . . . instead of the standard intrasquad game, the Mountaineer varsity will meet an alumni team . . . 39 former West Virginia stars, all of whom played under Art "Pappy" Lewis will compose the alumni squad . . . Chick Donaldson, Freddy Wyant, Joe Marconi, Joe Kopsnisky, Bill Hillen, Chuck Howley, Joe Nicely, Larry Krutko, Bill Underdonk and Kiki Konstantinos will play for the alumni . . . Donaldson and Wyant will act as coaches also.

Golfers Set for Eastern Tournament

Penn State's powerful golf team will face the East's best tomorrow and Sunday when 16 collegiate squads tee off in quest of the Eastern Intercollegiate golf diadem at New Haven, Connecticut.

And Nittany coach Jos Boyle points to Princeton, Boston College and host Yale as the Lions' top competition for the crown won last year by Navy. The Middies edged Boyle's golfers by a scant six points for the championship.

But Boyle doesn't think Navy will be in the running this year. "We beat Pitt 4-3 down there (Pittsburgh)," he said. "Pitt lost to Navy 5-2 at Navy, but three matches weren't won until the last hole," he added. If the match had been at Pitt, Boyle felt the Middies would have lost to Pitt. On this basis, Boyle ranks his linksmen above Navy.

Elaborating on the three contenders, Boyle said Princeton and Boston College have "real good teams" with good depth. The other squads will be sending two or three good men up there, and praying for the rest of the entrants, he said.

Nittany title hopes rest on the shoulders of captain Pat Reilly, Bill Davidson, Johnny Felus, Bob Bainbridge, Charlie Decker and Scott Stultz. Stultz bested Roy Altman earlier this week in a 45 hole playoff for the sixth post.
