HEc Wings Won't Mar Town View of HUB

The view of the Hetzel Union Building from downtown will not be blocked by the two new wings to the Home Economics South Building.

The south wing, on College Avenue, will be three stories high but will not be any higher than the present structure,

Junior Gets Disciplinary Probation

The Senate subcommittee on discipline has upheld a recommendation by Tribunal for disciplinary probation until June, 1959, for William Kern, junior in civil engineering from Slatington.

Kern was charged by State College police with driving while under the influence of alcohol, and for disorderly conduct by Bellefonte police in separate incidents.

The Senate committee also upheld a recommendation of disciplinary probation until the end of the fall semester for a sophomore for using a false excuse form in trying to be excused from a bluebook.

Kern was fined $10 and $7.75 costs April 20 for violating a Bellefonte borough ordinance against drinking in public. He and a friend were detained overnight for drinking beer while parked on a Bellefonte street.

Kern was arrested again the next night in State College and fined $100. His driving license was revoked for a year and he was placed on two year's probation.

The west end memorial entrance was completed in 1953 as a fiftieth anniversary gift of the class of 1903. The pillars are limestone faced pylons and cost approximately $10,000.

The four other suggestions selected by the senior class gift committee to appear on the final gift ballot are 1) Stone Valley Recreation Area, 2) circulating art collection, 3) books and photostat machines for the Pattee Library and 4) AM facilities for WDFM.

Ed Program Organized For Adults

The University—along with the Lewistown School District—has organized a program for adults seeking high school diplomas. The program is designed to help adults who were unable to complete high school and now find a high school diploma desirable.

Nineteen students are enrolled in the present program. Each student has his own course of study based on the amount of credits he needs to receive a diploma.

The program is based on correspondence courses which entitle the student to necessary credits. Upon completion of the program, the student receives a diploma from Lewistown Senior High School and a certificate of completion for the course.

In Lewistown, the program also includes weekly meetings with teachers. Attendance at these meetings is not compulsory. A student attends only if he needs help or is ready to take an examination.

Allen E. Wierman, assistant supervisor of correspondence instruction, suggested the Lewistown plan. Wierman pointed out that the University has been offering correspondence work for high school credit since 1939.

Other school districts are considering the Lewistown plan as a part of their adult education programs.

Groups Conduct House Survey

The University Christian Association and the State College Ministerium began a survey Monday of housing facilities which will be available in the fall for foreign and Negro students.

Students are interviewing all borough residents as to where the Negro and expected 250 foreign students of all faiths will be able to live.

The UCA sponsored a similar survey in 1956, but because of the closing of Pollock Circle dormitories, changes in ownership of rooming facilities and changes in viewpoints, a new appraisal must be made.

Each participating foundation, fraternity, sorority or other group will be assigned a section of the borough to insure that all residents will be contacted. Each interviewer will have a credentials card bearing the signatures of Sam N. Gibson, executive director of the UCA, and Rev. Albert S. Asendorf, president of the State College Ministerium.

according to Walter H. Wiegand, director of the department of physical plant.

Because of the slope of the lawn in front of the HUB, the three-story wing will only come to the same height as the two-story north wing.

Work has begun on both wings as well as the connecting building between the Home Economics Building and the Home Economics South Building.

The majority of the work on the project will be done on the Home Economics South Building which will undergo a complete redesigning to bring it into line with the two new wings.

The three-story wing will be 153 feet long while the north wing will be 168 feet long. Both wings will extend east toward Atherton Hall.

The completely reconstructed building will be 231 feet across the front. The connecting building will be 121 feet long and 29 feet wide and will house the Home Economics administration offices.

The new additions as well as the original Home Economics South will be of the same architecture as Boucke Building.

Target date for completion of the project is April 28, 1960.

Also included in the Home Economics project is the construction of an entrance to the parking lot behind the south building from College Avenue.

Words to Spare--

(Continued from page four) ing it to its "rightful" place in the eyes of the students. The junior dean of women could point out the dangers young coeds face after dark on week-nights, and sensibly return permissions to their former status.

The trend could continue: for every project the new junior groups attempted, the junior administration could devise a method of counteracting it.

Of course, the whole idea sounds a little ridiculous when taken to this point. But wouldn't it be interesting?

Angels Pick Commander

Choir, Guest Soloists To Perform Mass

Haydn's "Missa Sanctae Caeciliae" will be presented by the Chapel Choir, the University Symphony Orchestra and four guest soloists, at the eleventh annual Spring Concert at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

The "Missa Sanctae Caeciliae" has had very few hearings since Haydn's time. The Chapel Choir's presentation in 1953 was the second American performance. The score of the work has never been published in its entirety. Manuscript copies have been supplied through the courtesy of the Haydn Society and the Chorus Pro Musica of Boston, Mass.

Suzanne der Derian, soprano soloist, will sing in this area for the first time. Miss der Derian made her operatic debut in "Carmen" with the Philadelphia La Scala Opera while still in college. She has devoted much of her time to oratorio and has appeared with such conductors as Paul Parnay, Paul Boepple and William Steinberg.

Margaret Tobias, mezzo-soprano, will appear with the Chapel Choir for the third time. Miss Tobias has had three successful European concert tours and was granted a diploma from the Salzburg Mozarteum.

Howard Jarratt will sing tenor. Herbert Beattie, former voice teacher at the University, will sing bass. His professional work has included composing, singing, conducting and teaching.

The choir will number 108 voices and the orchestra will include 26 instrumentalists.

Willa Taylor and Theodore Karhan will direct the choir and orchestra respectively. George E. Ceiga will assist at the organ.

No admission will be charged for this concert, but a voluntary offering will be taken to help defray production costs.
