

PIECES OF GIRDER and part of a wall are all that remain of the old Petroleum Engineering Laboratory near the main campus gate. Destruction crews have been working on the building for over two weeks. It is being razed to make room for the Hammond Engineering Building.

Senior Class Gift

Circulating Art Collection Said Best Choice by Christ-Janer

By DIANE DIECK
Third of a Series

Advocating the circulating art collection as the best senior gift project, Dr. Albert Christ-Janer, director of the School of the Arts, said that it is embarrassing that a university as large as Penn State has no significant art collection whatsoever.

Christ-Janer added that other land-grant institutions like the University of Illinois, the University of Iowa and the University of Minnesota devote an annual $5-10,000 to enlarge their collections.

If the sum is voted to the collection, he would purchase approximately thirty paintings of established American artists, Christ-Janer said.

These pictures would be displayed in the Hetzel Union Building, administration and classroom buildings, and dormitory lounges, he said.

After purchase, any water color paintings would be glazed (gilded) before hanging.

Purchasers would try to select a good cross-section of contemporary American art, Christ-Janer said. Examples of the realistic, abstract and non-objective schools would be sought.

Other forms of art, especially sculpture, would also be considered for the collection, according to G. S. Zoretich, associate professor of art. The greater cost of statues might be prohibitive, however, he said.

About the other suggestions for the class gift, Christ-Janer said that AM facilities for WDFM is the only suggestion he considers as appropriate as the art collection. The recreation department and the alumni fund will provide for the Stone Valley project, and the Commonwealth will make appropriations for the library in next year's budget, he said.

Student artists will be represented in the now existing student collection, which now consists of eight paintings. Four new art items were purchased from the current student art display in the HUB. They are "Green Space," a watercolor by William C. Keeley; "Seascape," an oil painting by Marie C. Ammaturo; "Still-life," a woodcut by Marilyn P. Pappas, and "March," another oil by Don Garber.

East Tennis Court Work To Begin

Work will begin this summer on construction of 12 tennis courts on the east end of campus.

The new courts will be located just south of the Nittany skating rink. Originally only eight courts were planned for the project but the number has been increased to the present 12, according to Walter W. Trainer, head of the landscape division of the Department of Physical Plant.

The new poultry buildings are to be built in the area south of the proposed Wagner Military Science Building. They are now in the planning stage and contract bidding has not been opened.

Evacuation work is now under way for the northern addition to Sackett Building. The new wing is being built in conjunction with construction of the Hammond Engineering Building on College Avenue.

Area for the Hammond Building is now being cleared of rubble from the old Petroleum Refining Laboratory.

Concrete pouring is now being done at the new Men's Residence Halls on Park Avenue as well as on the foundation and supporting pillars of the new Petroleum Refining Laboratory.

Choir, Soloists To Sing Haydn

Four guest soloists will join the Chapel Choir and the University Symphony to present Haydn's "Missa Sanctae Caeciliae" directed by Willa Taylor at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

The solo quartet engaged for this concert will include Suzanne Derian, soprano, and Howard Jarratt, tenor, in their first appearances in this area. Margaret Tobias, mezzo-soprano, is returning for the third time, having sung previously with the choir in Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and the Verdi "Manzoni Requiem."

Herbert Beattie, for two years voice teacher at the University, will return to sing the bass role. He was bass soloist in the Choir's first performance of the Haydn mass in 1953.

IFCPA Appoints 11 to Committees

Eleven students have been appointed to six Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association committees.

They are Murray Simon, James Portman, publications; Peter Stadler, James MacKay, public relations; Steven Strauss, Arnold Machles, Edward Lavine, contracts and bids; Robert Bowlytz, Richard MacDonald, Machles, Lavine, buying investigation; Portman, services, and Steven Justham, Al Thumler, office management.

Famous Mime to Give Lecture-Demonstration

Etienne Decroux, called the world's foremost mime and teacher of mime, will present a lecture-demonstration at 8 p.m. Monday in Schwab Auditorium.

The program is open to the public.

Pool Drive To Begin This Week

A campaign to raise $150,000 for the proposed State College area swimming pool will begin this week, according to Herbert R. Imbt, campaign chairman.

The campaign is under the general supervision of the State College Swimming Association.

Although University students will be permitted to use the pool, no effort is being made to raise funds from them except that fraternity men will be contacted through the Interfraternity Council according to Dr. William Welsh, assistant chairman of the drive.

The pool will be located on Westerly Parkway, southwest of the new State College High School.

Included on the site will be the pool itself, a picnic area, a wading pool for children, a sun lawn and a refreshment stand.

The main portion of the pool will be 105 by 50 feet and will include a racing area 82.5 by 45 feet in size. The depth of the pool will graduate from three to five feet. A diving well will measure 40 by 45 feet and will reach a depth of 11 feet.

The pool will have a capacity of 850 persons on an in and out basis.

Parade to Highlight Armed Forces Day

A parade beginning at 7 tonight will highlight a week of activity honoring the Armed Forces.

Composed of ROTC units, veteran's groups, National Guard and Army Reserve units, the parade will move west on College Avenue from Shortlidge Road to Burrowes Road, with drill maneuvers to be performed opposite the reviewing stand located at Allen Street.

In addition, an Armed Forces Week Exhibit will be continued in the Hetzel Union game room, until 10 tonight.

It includes a display of equipment and products used by the armed forces which has been arranged by the Departments of Air Science, Naval Science, and Military Science and Tactics, with the help of the Ordnance Research Laboratory and local industries.

While the parade moves on College Avenue, a flight of four F-88 planes from Pittsburgh Airport will cover the route, weather permitting. The flight was arranged by the 112th Aircraft Control and Warning Flight, Pennsylvania Air National Guard, in State College, and will be controlled by personnel of that unit from mobile equipment that will be on display in the parking area south of Grange Hall.

Riding in two open cars, the Grand Marshal, associate dean of the College of Business Administration David H. McKinley, a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve, and his staff will lead the parade. At Allen Street they will join members of the Armed Forces Day committee, headed by the Burgess of State College, Roy D. Anthony, in the reviewing stand.

As a part of the parade, the two Air Force drill team units, the Navy drill team, and Pershing Rifles will engage in trick drill formations in the area of the reviewing stand near Allen Street and College Avenue.

The decision to investigate was made after Helen Skade, chairman of the WSGA big-little sister committee, presented a re-evaluation of the program. The old council turned down participation in the program, with the stipulation that the new council could approve it if it chose. Because there would not be enough time for the council to investigate the qualifications of applicants to be big sisters, the program could not be put into effect next fall.

The council will sponsor an open house for freshmen and Liberal Arts Council members Sept. 11. Faculty representatives from each liberal arts department will be asked to come to the open house to discuss problems with the freshmen.

The group will consider sponsoring a freshman seminar program, in which freshmen will gather with upper-classmen in faculty homes to discuss current problems.

Zimmerman to Vie For Beauty Queen

Judith Zimmerman, sophomore in home economics from Lancaster, has been voted the University contestant in a national College Beauty Queen Contest sponsored by a cosmetic company.

Miss Zimmerman received the most votes from the University and will represent it in the contest with representatives of 78 other schools. She has also qualified for Regional College Beauty Queen and is to be featured in a national advertising campaign by the Campana Company.
