

Interfraternity Council Governs University's 56 Fraternities

The Interfraternity Council is the voice of the 56 campus fraternities. The IFC, as it is more commonly known, is composed of three bodies—the Council, the Board of Control and the Fraternity Affairs Office.

Each fraternity sends one delegate, usually the president, to the bi-monthly meetings of the IFC and he is its official representative. Other fraternity members may attend, however.

Each spring the IFC elects major officers. Edward Hintz, Phi Delta Theta, is the current president; executive vice president is James Hammerle, Alpha Gamma Rho.

David Morrow, Sigma Chi, is administrative vice president in charge of the Fraternity Affairs Office. Richard Christian, Pi Kappa Alpha, is secretary-treasurer.

O Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men in charge of fraternity affairs, serves as the Council's adviser and administrative representative.

An executive committee composed of the officers meets weekly to discuss current problems and to plan the meeting agenda.

The Board of Control is the judicial body of IFC and is composed of a chairman and seven members. It conducts hearings on all cases involving infractions of IFC rules and makes recommendations to the dean of men's office involving fraternities recommended for probation.

The Fraternity Affairs Office handles all the administrative duties of the IFC including publication of the minutes, handling of pledge registration and the mailing of literature to fraternities. The work is done by male secretaries who apply for the position as an activity.

The IFC engages in and sponsors many worthwhile campus and community projects during the year. These include Greek Week, held in the spring; the IFC-Panhellenic Ball, held as part of one of two big party weekends in the spring; and workshops devoted to fraternity problems in the fall of each semester; topics discussed include rushing, catering, pledging, public relations, scholarship, house presidents and house managership.

The IFC also sponsors the Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association which supplies 26 fraternities with a complete line of meat, produce and canned foods. The advantage of purchasing through the IFCPA is the reduction in prices offered by the wholesalers because of the prospect of a large volume of business.

The IFC also publishes a Council Newsletter containing information pertinent to the fraternities and which spotlights fraternity personalities. The group also publishes a rushing magazine to aid incoming freshmen in the selection of a fraternity.

The Council cooperates with the Association of Fraternity Counselors, composed of adults.

The IFC also plans to hold a one-day encampment during Orientation Week to acquaint fraternity presidents with the aims of the group.

Eng Prof Tests Wall Paneling

Exterior wall paneling to be used on a future New York skyscraper is being tested in a research project directed by E. R. McLaughlin, associate professor of engineering research.

The research is supported by a grant of $10,500 from the General Bronze Corp.

A full-size exterior wall panel intended for use in the future 42-story Union Carbide Company building has been erected in the University's Thermal Laboratory. The panel, which is 16 feet high and 11 feet wide, is of stainless steel, aluminum and glass. It will be subjected to air temperature fluctuations ranging from as low as minus 20 degrees F. to as high as 150 degrees F.

Pressures simulating 110-mile-an-hour winds will be used to check panel deflection. The panel's resistance to water leakage will be tested by the simulation of wind-driven rain. During the various cycles, observations will be made of temperature and humidity conditions.
