

New Uses Sought For Dining Halls

By PAT EVANS
Collegian Personnel Director
(Sixth of a Series)

Residence dining halls would be opened in the evenings as recreation centers under a Student Encampment proposal aimed at decentralizing student union facilities.

The Encampment workshop on recreation and student welfare included the following statement in its report approved at the Encampment plenary session.

"A great deal of space exists in the new dining halls—both completed and proposed—which is not used in the evenings . . . Dancing, art exhibits, games and snack bars are only some of the activities and facilities which could be planned for these areas."

The workshop called its proposal "an inexpensive and expeditious way to provide for the decentralization of the Hetzel Union Building."

The following facilities were suggested by the workshop as inclusions in the plans for expanding the HUB:

- Storage space for organizations which do not have regular facilities elsewhere
- Room for instrument practice.
- More pianos.

- A general purpose room to take the load off the card and game rooms when exhibits are being staged in the HUB.

The workshop also proposed that a Town Independent Men's lounge be included in the expanded HUB. The report said, ". . . the town indies are unique in that they lack their own social center."

Another recommendation asked for "a large-scale publicity campaign to gather and disseminate information on dances, plays, lectures and other recreational events."

The All-University Cabinet public relations committee was suggested as the group to run the campaign.

The workshop suggested that a weekly schedule of events be published by a student service group or honorary group.

The report section on Stone Valley said:

"Final plans for the recreational area are not to be drawn up for some time. Now is the time for students to ask for what they want"

The workshop recommended that Cabinet request the Outing Club to take on the responsibility of determining what facilities are desired there by the students.

Other recommendations on Stone Valley were:

- The whole area should be tightly zoned so that no good beach is occupied by structures.
- Since the possibility exists that student organizations might be able to build cabins in Stone Valley, this possibility should be made known by Cabinet.
- Bus service should be provided from campus to Stone Valley.

David Fineman was chairman of the workshop. Heather Lohrenz was secretary.

LIKE A BOMBED-OUT RUIN . . . Construction crews level area for the 2-block long Hammond Engineering Building. Giant crane (top center) will run on tracks the entire length of the construction project. "Foxholes" are excavations for the foundation.

Typical State College rains, plus underground electrical and sewer operations, have delayed construction on the Hammond Engineering Building along College Avenue, said Ray Hollister, superintendent of the project.

Work hit a snag when sewer and wire connections had to be torn out and moved. At present, walls of the former buildings are still being torn down. In most cases the removal of the walls is all that remains in the demolition process.

Last week a huge crane was brought to the scene to speed up operations. The crane has a maximum length of 118 feet and its boom is 75 feet. Its capacity ranges from 3100 to 6600 pounds, depending on the radius of the boom, or giant arm.

Hollister said he can't make any promises now about the completion date of the new buildings, but he hopes it will be 1960.

He added that building operations will slow down when winter comes, but they will try to work as long as possible and continue to do as much as possible.

Asked if a completed building gives him a feeling of pride, he said, "It doesn't mean anything to you when you've built as many buildings as I have."

Demolition operations began last May, when a 1800 pound ball was used to demolish the old Petroleum Refining Laboratories on College Ave.

Ag 'Howdy-Nighters' To Don Gay Garb

It's time once again for all Ag-Hillers to forsake the usual crew neck-and-khaki garb of the college student in favor of bright plaid shirts and blue jeans for the annual "Howdy Night" get-together.

Hort Woods will be the scene for this year's informal party scheduled for 7 p.m. tomorrow.

Speakers for this year's Ag Hill get-together will be Lyman H. Jackson, dean of the College of Agriculture; Russell B. Dickerson, assistant dean of resident instruction; Frank J. Simes, dean of men; Robert LaBar, president of Agriculture Student Council and a representative from the dean of women's office.

The program for the evening will include group singing and refreshments—apple cider and hot dogs.

A square dance band will provide music throughout the evening, and new members of the staff will be introduced.

Richard Craig, senior in ornamental horticulture from Clairton, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Chairman of the committees which set up the mixer are:

Glenn Shirk, general chairman; Robert Heilman, program; William Mace, foods; Kenneth Sink, publicity and Dickson Waite, music.

Freshman women will get 9:15 permissions.

"Howdy Night" is sponsored annually by the Agriculture Student Council and is designed to acquaint Ag students, old and new, with each other and the school.

McDonald Named To State Committee

Dr. Eugene T. McDonald, professor of speech and director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic, has been named by Gov. George M. Leader to the Governor's Committee on Handicapped Children.

The 10-member committee was organized in February to explore new programs and courses of action to aid Pennsylvania's handicapped children, to stimulate research, to recommend ways of coordinating activity of the various state government departments, to examine existing statutes and propose desirable legislation to benefit handicapped children and to explore the possibility of federal aid from other sources that would be beneficial to handicapped children.
