

Gentzel Keeps Pugh Street Lot

The State College Parking Authority disbanded its eminent domain proceedings against the property of P. H. Gentzel at 125 S. Pugh St. over the summer when a Board of View estimated the property's value at $150,000.

The Board of View was chosen to find a fair price for the

Bryan Green Committee To Meet

The All-Campus Bryan Green Committee will meet at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow in Hetzel Union dining room "A" with the chapel speaker, Theodore Gill, managing editor of the Christian Century, a weekly non-denominational religious journal.

The purpose of the dinner-meeting is to discuss preparations for the Nov. 10-16 visit of Canon Bryan Green, internationally famous lecturer.

Canon Green will be featured in a week-long lecture series on the Christian faith. The series will include four night lectures, a University chapel address in Schwab Auditorium and four afternoon lectures on the subject, "Love, Friendship, and Marriage."

Green has achieved great popularity with university students throughout the world. He served for a time as chaplain of Oxford University. During World War II he was a chaplain with the 1st A.A. Signals Group Headquarters stationed in London.

Since then he has visited Yale, Princeton, Stanford and the University of Southern California, as well as universities in Australia, New Zealand, Ghana and other English-speaking countries.

Qualified Tutors Wanted for Fall

Faculty members, graduate students and qualified undergraduates interested in tutoring for the current semester should report to 110 Old Main or call the Division of Counseling, Extension 2066, before Oct. 3.

Undergraduates should have an All-University average above a "C" and a grade of "B" or better in courses they wish to tutor in. Fees are determined privately by the student and the tutor.

NYU Phil Prof Discusses Progress of Cosmology

By CATHY FLECK

Cosmology—the study of the origin of the universe—has undergone a rebirth of interest in the last decade with the discovery of definite systems of stars beyond the confines of our own system, Dr. Milton K. Munitz, professor of philosophy at New York University, said.

Munitz, who spoke at the Philosophy Lecture Series program Thursday night, discussed the theories of origin from the earliest astronomers to the present age. Historically, these theories are divided into four main periods, Munitz said.

The first stage was myth, which was an attempt at interpreting things in a familiar and imaginative way, known as cosmogony. The philosopher tried to understand the genesis by telling a story in a most natural way. The cosmos was originally referred to as a 'community of people' and was boundless.

A change took place in the Middle Ages because of the theological concept that the universe was created by a deity and the property. It was headed by David L. Baird, Philipsburg attorney, with J. Randall Mattern and Franklin Grove also on the board. They conducted a public hearing on Tuesday, July 15, after inspecting the property on Thursday, July 10. They disclosed their estimate of the property's value on Monday, July 21.

The authority considered the price too high and thus decided not to buy the property, although they still believe off-street parking is needed in that area. Estimates by witnesses varied from Gentzel's own $175,000 to a $105,000 estimate applied by Frank E. Hench, real estate broker.

Robert Kistler, attorney for the Authority; W. W. Litke, attorney for Gentzel; and Paul Mazza, attorney for Pi Lambda Phi fraternity, took part in the proceedings.

Gentzel said he wouldn't settle with the parking authority until they agreed they would never attempt to secure his property again.

Gentzel roughly estimated his court costs as over $3000.

He said he hasn't determined the exact costs yet.

He went on to say that he didn't like the procedure the authority followed, but that he "won't sue because over 90 percent of the community's people were behind me." Gentzel also emphasized that he waited for the authority to come to him to make the agreement.

Poetry Group Holds Contest

The National Poetry Association has announced its annual verse competition.

Winners will have their poems published in the College Students' Poetry Anthology.

All students attending either a junior or senior college are eligible.

Manuscripts should be submitted to the National Poetry Association, 3210 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 34, Calif., by Nov. 5, 1958.

There are no limitations as to form or theme, but shorter works are preferred by the association because of space limitations.

Each poem must be typed on a separate sheet of paper which bears the name, home address and college address of the student.

Framing, Stone Work Finished On New Men's Dormitories

The structural work is complete and the stone laid for three out of the four new men's Residence Halls along Park Avenue and Shortlidge Road.

The working schedule calls for the fourth dorm of the series to reach this construction phase in about a week and a half.

Runkle Hall, the only dorm along Shortlidge Road, is the nearest to completion. Interior work has started, with closets now being installed.

Following in order of construction are Leete, Holmes and Beam Halls. These buildings are all along Park Avenue, Leete being on the corner of Park and Shortlidge.

Warnock Hall, the dining room for the North Hall units is in the process of being enclosed.

The new North Residence Halls will resemble the Women's Residence Halls along College Avenue architecturally. The "L" shaped buildings are each four stories high.

The buildings will be divided into four living units. Each of the residence units will house about 70 men. Two floors of each of the wings will compose one unit.

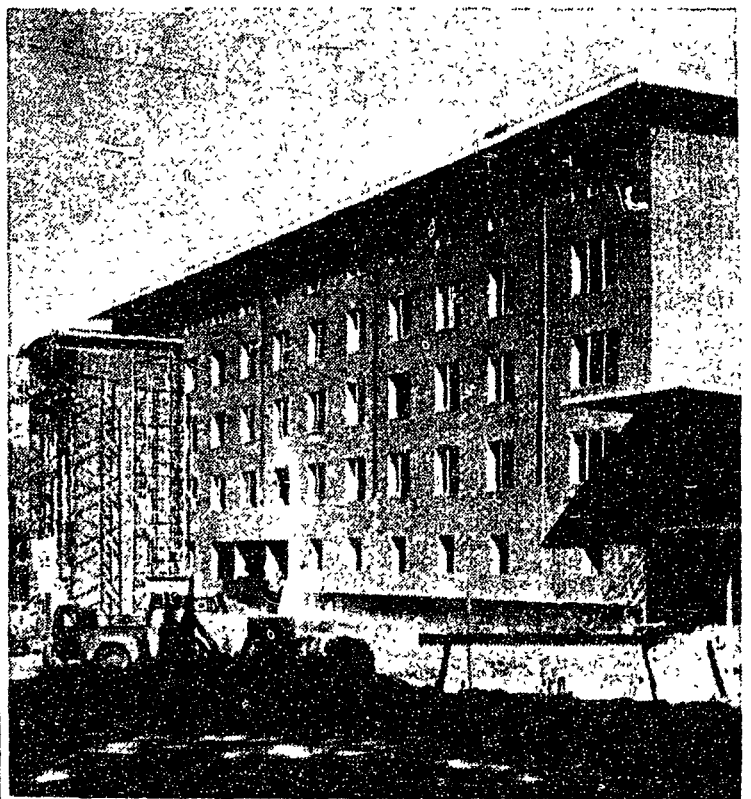

The units will have their own study lounge accessible directly from one floor and by a stairwell from the second floor.

All four units will have access to laundry, trunk storage, game rooms and kitchenette facilities.

John McShain, Inc. is the general contractor for the project. The buildings, which will have a capacity of approximately 1100 students, are due for completion next July.

Junior IFC To Organize

The Junior Interfraternity Council will hold an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Hetzel Union Assembly Room.

The Junior IFC will be composed of one representative from each of the 55 fraternities on campus. The representatives must be pledges. Other interested pledges may attend the meetings, however.

Charles Hughes, IFC secretary-treasurer, will act as the group's adviser and as the representative of the parent group. The idea of the Junior IFC originated at last year's IFC meetings and the constitution for the new group was drawn up by Richard Christian, former IFC secretary-treasurer.

Nominations for officers will be opened at the meeting but elections will not be held for several weeks, Hughes said. The group will meet bi-monthly.

Grants Awarded To Three Students

The United States Public Health Service has awarded three graduate training grants in school psychology to the University.

The grants are available in this field for the first time and have been given to three students who are working for their doctors' degree in school psychology. Formerly, such training grants were available only in clinical psychology.

The three students receiving the $2000 a year grants are Betty Jo League of Greenville, S.C.; Mrs. Margaret McKendry of Birmingham, Ala.; and John Smith of Philadelphia.

Professor Writes Book On Commercial Code

Sheldon C. Tanner, professor of business law, has written a book called "Business Law Under the Uniform Commercial Code."

The book is a study of the integration of the new Commercial Code into the American legal system and introduces the new Model Business Corporation Code as adopted by the last session of the Commonwealth legislature.

Advisory Board Studies Student Speaking Tours

By DENNY MALICK

The Senior Class Advisory Board is working on a plan to send student speakers to high schools to "talk up" the University and to encourage enrollment here.

Senior Class President Charles Welsh has appointed his vice president, William Lathan, to coordinate the plan.

Welsh said the advisory board hopes to set the program in motion by the end of the semester.

"We plan to start on a small scale," Welsh said. "There would be no more than 50 speakers at first."

A few of the speakers would be sent out during the semester break, he said, with a full complement speaking over the Easter vacation.

"We would choose students from scattered areas of Pennsylvania and several from out of state," he said.

According to initial plans, the speakers would be chosen first. They then would contact their own high school for permission to give the talks.

"In this way," Welsh said, "we have a feeling we would have a better chance of receiving permission for the talks."

Another angle the advisory board committee is considering is to contact alumni who are teaching at the various schools and arrange the talks through them.

James H. Coogan Jr., head of the Department of Public Information, commented: "I think this will be a good thing and I believe the University thinks it will be a good thing."

Coogan said facts on the University would be provided by his department as background material for the talks.
