

Tickets For Concert Are Available

Students may pick up tickets for the Danish National Orchestra Concert beginning 1 p.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Students must present matriculation cards when picking up tickets. Student ticket distribution will continue until 4 p.m. today and from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. tomorrow. The sale of tickets to non-students will also begin tomorrow.

A total of 4000 tickets are available for the concert which is scheduled for 8 p.m. Sunday at Recreation Hall.

The Danish National Orchestra, under the patronage of King Frederik IX of Denmark, is making its second tour of the United States during October and November. During this time the group expects to cover 37 cities from coast to coast.

The orchestra's concerts will be conducted by Thomas Jensen, who shared the podium with the late Erik Tuxen on the first American tour in 1952, and John Frandsen who makes his American debut this year. Frandsen has been the conductor of the Royal Opera in Copenhagen for the past several years.

The orchestra itself consists of 96 pieces. On its first tour here the orchestra introduced the symphonic masterpieces of Denmark's greatest composer, Carl Nielsen. Since then, thanks to the success of the tour and the long playing records which followed it, Nielsen has come to assume an importance comparable to Grieg of Norway and Sibelius of Finland.

The orchestra's programs will be selected from both the standard symphonic repertoire and from Nielsen's works. The music of a number of younger Danish composers, notably that of 39-year-old Niels Bentzon, who himself made a highly successful lecture-recital tour of the United States two seasons ago.

Until 1949, the Danish National Orchestra played for audiences within its own borders. Then, as news of their musical prowess spread, they began making tours to Germany, Norway and finally to England, where they played at the Edinburgh Festival in 1950.

The appearance of the Danish National Orchestra here marks the second in the current Artists' Series program.

1957 Encampment: The Results

Encampment Gets Best Results On Community Living Plans

Fifth of a Series
By DENNY MALICK
Of all the recommendations to come from the 1957 Student Encampment, those on community living have met with possibly the best response.

The Academic Policy Workshop's recommendations on community living in West Residence Halls, a graduate living area and future residence halls planned with community living in mind have all been adopted.

Although the University has frequently tried to end community living in the West Halls, overcrowded women's dormitories have forced its continuance.

There were no coeds living in West Halls for the first time last semester and it appeared community living had ended. But the crowded conditions caused housing officials to place women in Irvin Hall. They will remain there until May.

Asked whether community living would continue next fall, Housing Director Otto E. Mueller said: "If all the space made available for men in the new dorms (North Residence Halls) is not filled by men, there will probably be women placed in West Halls again."

The new North Halls will accommodate more than 1000 men next fall. If there are enough men enrolled to fill these new rooms, Mueller indicated, there will be no women in West Halls.

The recommendaiton for a graduate living area was fulfilled this year when Women's Building was converted to Graduate Residence Hall. Both men and women graduate students are living in the building.

The University has already announced plans for community living in the new Pollock Circle area which will include seven new dormitories.

Four 8-story residence halls in the new area will be occupied by women and one 8-story and two 6-story residence halls will accommodate men.

In addition, Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, has said that the community living plan will also be used in residence halls to be built next to the experimental flower plots.

'Cinderella Ball' Set For Junior Prom

"Cindrella Ball" will be the theme of the Junior Prom on Oct. 24 at Recreation Building, Vincent Marino, president of the junior class, said Sunday.

At a meeting of the Junior Class Advisory Board it was decided not to start the Junior Prom Queen contest until next week so it would not conflict with the Homecoming Queen contest.

Charles Blunt, junior in electrical engineering from Washington, D.C., was appointed chairman of the Queen committee and will announce the details of the contest this week. The Board decided that all applicants must be juniors.

Marino suggested the board undertake some class projects this year. He said advisory boards have become known as nothing more than dance committees and he wanted to change this.

He suggested that the board sponsor a class memento project. The board would pick out an item, such as a blazer, sweater or emblem, and acquire enough of them so that all juniors could purchase them.

This was compared to a similar program at Cornell University.

Members of the board were assigned to find the cost of the emblems and other articles and to inquire of other colleges and universities which have similar projects.

It was decided that members of the board would have office hours in the class office, 203-B Hetzel Union. Any juniors who have questions or complaints could bring them to members of the board, Marino said. This week the office hours will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Thursday.

Geography Staff Gains New Prof

Dr. Pierce F. Lewis has been named assistant professor of geography.

Previously he served as civilian geographer in Japan, was the Metropolitan Community Fellow at the University of Michigan and held a post-doctoral National Science Foundation fellowship at the University of Washington.

Lewis received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Michigan. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Eta Sigma.

Penn State was first called the Farmers' High School because its founders thought "college" connotated a place where boys contracted idle habits.
