

TIM Proposes Housing Check

The Town Independent Men's Council will investigate the possibilities of forming a standing committee authorized to inspect downtown residences and to give the council's "stamp of approval" when warranted.

39 Displays Entered In IFC Contest

Thirty-nine fraternities have registered for the Interfraternity Council sponsored Alumni homecoming lawn displays contest.

The displays will be judged between 7 and 9 p.m. tonight by four judges. The winner will be announced in tomorrow's issue of The Daily Collegian.

James Hammerle, lawn display chairman, said the judges will meet at 6:30 tonight in the parking lot behind Dr. Eric A. Walker's residence to complete plans for touring the campus and fraternity sections.

Phi Kappa Tau won the contest last year and was awarded the Alumni Association homecoming display trophy.

The displays must be completed by 8 p.m. today. An innovation this year will be the allowing of moving parts in the displays, Hammerle said.

No display may cost over $45 and displays will be disqualified for failure to adhere to the contest rules or considered to be in poor taste.

Judging the displays will be Mrs. Eric A. Walker; Hummel Fishburn, professor of music; Walter W. Tramer, head of the division of landscape, construction and maintenance; and Ralph McComb, University librarian.

A maximum of 20 points will be given for clarity of theme, 30 points for originality, 20 points for expression of University spirit, and 30 points for craftsmanship.

The plan arose because of the general expansion of the University and the growing need for rooming houses downtown. Charles Bartholomew, president of TIM, explained.

The council discussed the problem of the rising costs of rooming with a drop in the quality of the rooms.

Bartholomew pointed out that the inspection program involves a legal problem which will probably demand the cooperation of the council and the State College Borough officials.

To help alleviate the social problem which town independent men face—that of no place to take their dates later in the evening—the council made several suggestions to be studied throughout the year.

Jack Evans, senior in marketing from Altoona, proposed a plan which might permit the men to take their dates to their rooming houses and apartments.

Bartholomew said, "The odds are against us, but that doesn't mean that we can't win." He told the council he would write to other universities having a similar problem to find out what they are doing about it.

Louis Testen, vice president of the Council, said "The social problem is a ticklish one and the Hetzel Union Building is trying to assist the town men by extending the Lion's Den hours."

Other suggestions made for a plan to study throughout the year included mixers between town independent men and women's residence halls, HUB expansion, the floating half holiday which is under consideration at Cabinet and the founding of a Club TIM in town.

A committee was appointed to direct the fall dance, sponsored by TIM, to be held in the HUB ballroom on Nov. 15.

Bartholomew complimented the council on having made more suggestions at the one meeting than he had heard at all of last year's.

1957 Encampment: The Results

4000 Participate in Insurance Plan

By DENNY MALICK
Eighth of a Series

The Student Insurance Program, considered for several years and finally given full support by the 1957 Student Encampment, has grown to more than 4000 participants in its second semester.

The program was approved last December by All-University Cabinet and went into operation in February.

Russell Connelly, Cabinet insurance committee chairman, will report on last semester's business to Cabinet next Thursday.

There were 2600 participants in the insurance program's first semester of operation. The amount of claims topped the $10,000 mark in August and may be near $15,000 now, Connelly said.

The program is closed for this semester, Connelly said, but will probably be opened again in February for coverage from then to September.

This semester the program is being offered for the first time on a full year basis. Coverage is from September to September. At the start of the program, coverage was carried only for six months, expiring last month.

One incident which undoubtedly gave the program a boost was the trampoline accident last October in a physical education class in which freshman Larry Sharp was paralyzed.

In recommending that the insurance program be established, Encampment cited the "obligation on the part of the University to insure that student education is uninterrupted because of accident or sickness."

The insurance program covers vacations, traveling to and from campus and even the case of a student withdrawing from the University, with one exception: That is, the program will not apply if a student withdraws and joins the armed forces.

HUB Will Feature Faculty Art Display

Members of the University's Departments of Architecture, Art Education, Art and Theatre Arts will get a chance to display their recent works for students and visitors beginning tomorrow.

In a display entitled "Teacher-Artists, 1958", 18 members of these departments will exhibit paintings on the main floor of the Hetzel Union Building. The show will run until November 7.

A reception, sponsored by the School of the Arts, is scheduled to take place from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the HUB gallery. It will be open to the public.

The following staff members will display works in the exhibition:

Milton S. Osborne, head of the Department of Architecture; Kenneth R. Beittel, associate professor of art education; Edward L. Mattil, associate professor of art education; James A. Schinneller, assistant professor of art education; Yar Chomicky, associate professor of art education.

Elizabeth Yeager, assistant professor of art education; Samuel C. Sabean, associate professor of art; Leon Frankston, instructor in art education; Bill Hanson, instructor in art; Andrew W. Football PA System May Get More Use

All-University Cabinet last night recommended that further use be made of the Beaver Field public address system, beginning with tomorrow's football game against Marquette.

Cabinet passed a motion to recommend to the Department of Public Information further use of the system, possibly for announcing penalties and summarizing scoring plays.

The PA system has previously been used only to announce starting lineups and to describe Blue Band's halftime show.

Charles Welsh reported that PI had previously objected to giving play-by-play accounts of the game over the public address system.

One reason for objection, he said, was that it interferes somewhat with the radio play-by-play description of the game.

He said Mickey Bergstein, WMAJ sports broadcaster, did not object to the idea of announcing penalties or scoring summaries over the public address system.

Welsh pointed out that an experienced announcer and two spotters would be needed for a play-by-play description.
