

BU Passers Rank 8th in Nation

Engle Sees Defense As Big Factor

for most of the 354 yards gained against Marquette—quarterback Richie Lucas and halfbacks Bruce Gilmore and Jimmy Kerr.

Commenting on his starting backs, Engle said, "I know that Dave Kasperian and Bucky Paolone were my starters before they were injured in the Army game, but I can't take the other boys out of there after the job they did against Marquette. You just don't fool with a combination that does real well."

But Boston is a team out for revenge this year and it proved it just last week. Today's hosts were walked over by West Virginia in 1957, 46-6, but they came tearing back last week and upset the highly regarded Mountaineers, 36-30.

Quarterbacks Emo DiNitto and Jim Girouard head their strong passing game. According to Lion end coach J. T. White, who scouted the Terriers, "DiNitto and Girouard are both good passers and good ball handlers, especially DiNitto, who is kind of small (5-8, 165) but very elusive."

"DiNitto started against Navy," commented the Lion scout, "but it was Girouard who had the most success. Last week Girouard started against West Virginia but it was DiNitto who was the hero."

The two have completed 25 of 53 passes for 457 yards and three touchdowns for their national 8th ranking and third in the East—behind Army and Boston College.

"Don't think that the quarterbacks are their whole show," White warned, "They have four good halfbacks and a tough fullback in Jimmy Dean. And besides, they expect to have their co-captain John Maio ready for us."

Maio, who missed the West Virginia upset, paced the Terriers in scoring last year with eight TD's while being the top ground-gainer with 471 yards for a 4.8 yards average.

He was also the nation's 10th ranking punt-return performer, averaging 16.7 yards on 10 run-backs including an 83-yarder against Holy Cross. Head coach Steve Sinko rates him as "a superb broken-field runner and one of BU's best defensive backs."

"And they also have a big

... on offensive guard

line that really hustles," said White. "They keep the pressure on at all times with their hustle and quickness."

On the Penn State side of the pre-game story, Lion coach Rip Engle has been busy all week figuring out his best offensive alignment.

"For the most part we're trying to develop some offensive punch," Engle said "The performance of some of our veterans has been rather disappointing, so I'm forced to give the young fellows a chance."

"It should be fairly evident by now that we don't have the speed or potential for an explosive running offenses," Engle analyzed.

"I do expect our passing to improve," he said, "We've had good passers all along but up until now our receiving has been poor. But Maurice Schleicher, Norm Neff and sophomore Dave Truitt looked pretty good against Marquette and in recent practices I'm much happier about the end situation."

Engle will be using Schleicher and John Bozick at the ends, Chuck Jancrette "who could be a much better football player if he wants to" according to Engle will start at one tackle along with Andy Stynchula.

The interior will be composed of center Steve Garban, left guard Bud Kohlhaas, and Bill Popp at the right guard slot. Popp moves up from the second unit and will start in place of injured Bill Wehmer if the Lions receive the kickoff.

the first unit with Moconyi playing the fullback slot and Kerr and Gilmore at the halves.

"The starting job is Lucas' as long as he keeps up his present work," Engle stated. "Gilmore had his best day (against Marquette) since his sophomore year, and will play a lot of football, especially on offense, if he continues to produce. Kerr also played well."

In summing up his outlook on the game, Engle commented, "Still, our defense will have to be our best offense."

Lacrosse Team to Play Annual Blue-White Game

Penn State lacrosse fans will get a sneak preview of what is coming in the Spring when the Nittany Lion stickmen wind up fall practice with their annual Blue-White game today. Game time is set for 1:30 p.m. at Nittany Field.

Nittany Lion lacrosse coach Earnie Baer will divide all candidates, including freshmen, into two squads. The main purpose of the game is to show Baer what his prospects are for the coming season.

"I think we have a real good squad this year," said Baer. "I'm really looking forward to the spring. We have some new faces and good sophomores who are going to help us a lot. Couple these with the returning lettermen and you can see that we'll be improved."

Last year the stickmen closed with a 5-8 record. The record is misleading, however, because the Lions lost three games by the total of four goals.

Back from last year's squad is John Behne, who was second in scoring with 18 goals. Behne is being counted on to provide a lot of scoring punch for the Lions. He will line up with the first midfield today.

Other top flight returnees are attackmen Dave Wilkinson and Jim Winpenny, midfielders Chip Henderson, Dick Bullock, and Dick Hammond, defenseman Ray Tuieya, Mike Beattie, and Gove Elder.

"A lot of these boys improved over the summer," Baer commented. "And the 'new blood' we have this year will help a lot especially Bob Swanson and Dave Erwin."

Swanson is a high scoring midfielder who was ineligible last year but was a high scorer in his freshman year. According to Baer he has really looked good in pre-season workouts. Erwin is a sophomore defenseman who was a standout with the Nittany lacrosse club last spring.

Baer rates sophomore Lee Herman as another promising star. According to the Lion coach, Herman is one of the most natural lacrosse performers to hit the campus in recent years.
