Turnpike May Be Free By 1957 Under New Plans

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The board of directors of Philadelphia's Chamber of Commerce unanimously approved a 2-billion, 800-million-dollar road program for Pennsylvania yesterday that includes making the turnpike a free superhighway by 1957.

President Andrew B. Young said the chamber's "balanced program" is aimed "at preventing Pennsylvania from becoming a traffic bottleneck in the nation's highway system" and urged prompt statewide approval.

Ex-Student Killed In Auto Crash

George Washington Barr, Jr., 19, until last year a student at the University, was killed instantly in an auto crash near Spruce Creek at 3:02 a.m. Sunday.

Barr, who was pinned under the car in a creek next to Route 45, died of a fractured skull. He was alone in the car when it crashed.

The car skidded on a curve, crossed the highway, flipped into the air and dropped down an embankment into the creek, according to Blair E. Shore, Huntingdon County coroner.

Area residents started a search after they heard the crash. In about half an hour the searchers found the car in the creek. A mangled tree led the searchers to the car which was found upside down.

The victim's body was released when a wrecker removed the demolished car from the water. Shore said another fatal accident occurred at the same spot last May.

The car he was driving was owned by his sister, Mrs. Betty Ann Johnson of Knowlesville, N.Y. Other survivors in addition to his sister are his parents, two brothers and maternal grandparents.

Collegian Circulation To Increase by 500

The Daily Collegian will increase its circulation by 500 copies beginning with today's issue.

This innovation is due to increased enrollment in the University. Instead of the usual 6500 copies printed weekdays and 6000 on Saturday, the totals will be 7000 and 6500, respectively.

"We are advancing a 3-point program, a package deal, that must be carried out in balance to succeed," Young told a news conference.

"It recognizes that there can be no crash program—no speed-up in construction of any particular road at the expense of others—either in the Philadelphia area or in any other part of the state."

The program calls for construction of the Keystone Shortway, the 290-mile 6-lane free expressway between Stroudsburg and Sharon but not before 1970.

It provides that the Pennsylvania Turnpike be free of tolls before the shortway is completed, and that the superhighway be widened to six lanes from Ohio to the New Jersey border.

The City of Philadelphia claims the Philadelphia port would be endangered economically if the shortway is completed before tolls are removed from the turnpike.

The state already has in the works a $1.6 billion highway program. The chamber proposes to nearly double that, adding 10 additional projects.

Young said the chamber hopes to make a recommendation on removing turnpike tolls in the near future.

Besides the shortway and turnpike features, the program also recommends:

- Incorporation of the northeast extension of the turnpike into the interstate road system and changing its name to Penn-Can Highway.

- Extension of the Schuylkill Expressway to Erie, Pa., and Buffalo, N.Y.

- Widening the shortway to six lanes between Williamsport and Lock Haven.

- Construction of the crosstown boulevard in Pittsburgh.

- Building a route from Pittsburgh to Brookville in the Allegheny Valley.

Of the money this program would cost, the federal government would pay 90 per cent, the state the rest.

Dilworth Seeks Hike In University Funds

More State Aid, Fees Foreseen

The University can look for a bigger state appropriation next year, according to Richardson Dilworth, mayor of Philadelphia and a trustee of the University.

"I'm confident that there will be a big increase in funds," he said. But he expressed doubt that legislators will be willing to vote a large increase unless the University trustees appear willing to increase fees.

Dilworth was on campus Sunday and yesterday as the keynote speaker for a conference on "Integration in the North." He also spoke at the Faculty Luncheon Club, classes and an informal gathering for students.

The University reportedly is making a budget request of more than $40 million for the 1959-61 biennium. Slightly less than $28 million was appropriated for the current biennium, although President Eric A. Walker had requested approximately $38 million.

"I think the next legislature is going to have to face up to the fact that we've got to provide for the enormous number of young people who are going to need a college education," Dilworth said.

But he said "everybody isn't entitled to a college education," so that there is a need for "some standard of whom we're going to spend public funds to educate."

He suggested two criteria: how much the individual can benefit from a college education and how much the college education will help the individual benefit his community.

"It's perfectly apparent now that in the next 15 years, the state is going to have to very nearly double the capacity of its universities," Dilworth said.

But since "we will get very little expansion in private universities," he said, Penn State and other state-supported schools will have to assume most of the burden.

Junior IFC Meeting Postponed Until Monday

The Junior Interfraternity Council meeting scheduled for tonight has been postponed until 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Hetzel Union auditorium.

Elections of officers will be held.

Today's weather is expected to be sunny and pleasantly warm. The high is expected to reach 69 degrees. Fair and mild is predicted for tonight with a low of 47 degrees.

IFC Votes to Limit Attendance by Subs

The Interfraternity Council last night voted to limit the number of times alternates may attend IFC meetings for fraternity presidents.

Only two alternates a semester may represent the president under the new rule. If a fraternity sends more than two alternates during the semester, the fraternity president will be marked absent.

Under present IFC rules, if a president or his alternate misses two consecutive meetings, the chapter is fined $20. A total of five absences during the academic year or three consecutive absences is subject to a $50 fine and a suspension from the IFC. A $25 fee is charged for readmission.

The IFC Executive Committee recommended the motion along with the adoption of the organizational and control workshop report which originated at the IFC Encampment, Sept. 9.

In other business, Edward

Hintz, IFC president, announced that the executive committee has assumed the $680 debt of Alpha

State Topples BU, 34-0

By LOU PRATO

It probably wouldn't be too surprising if Rip Engle would quit his head coaching job at Penn State one of these days and turn to directing and producing in television.

After all, when one has as much success on television as Engle has had in the past three years, what other profession would be more fitting?

His latest success came last Saturday when he directed and produced an all-star Penn State cast to a 34-0 win over Boston University at Beantown. It was Engle's (and Penn State's) third straight Eastern television victory. Two years ago Engle's "actors" had beaten Holy Cross 43-0 in their TV debut and in an encore performance last year they trimmed Syracuse, 20-12.

But this year's successful performance was perhaps the best ever for it came at a very crucial time. The Lions had been unpredictable up until Saturday, looking like the nation's top team one week and the country's worst outfit the next. But as Engle said: "We really looked like a good team. This was the first time this year that our attack jelled."

"This game was a do or die one for us. We were either going to get better or not make it at all—and we got better. I got a lot of satisfaction out of the game and I was really thankful for the performance of the squad."

But why shouldn't the production have been a success? Engle had a talented writing-acting team developing the impromptu script, featuring the masterful art of "Reckless" Richie Lucas—now a TV pro with his second television appearance.

Lucas gave a performance worthy of an "Emmy" Award nomination. It was almost a repeat of his showing last year against Syracuse. His play-calling, ball-handling, faking and running was something to behold as the (Continued on page nine)
