

'Strong' Syracuse Here Tomorrow

Syracuse's once-beaten grid eleven will miss the services of their number one lineman, tackle Ron Luciano, when they invade Beaver Field tomorrow afternoon—but they'll still be a hard outfit to contain.

Luciano, voted the top line performer in all four of the Orangemen's battles, is confined to the Syracuse University infirmary with a serious case of virus pneumonia. At last report, his temperature had rocketed to 104 degrees.

Luciano had been the main cog in the Syracuse forward wall, gaining a first place berth on the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference's All-East team three out of the four weeks he was nominated. He will definitely be missed by Syracuse, but according to Lion backfield Coach Frank Patrick, the Orangemen will still be a tough team to handle.

"They have a big, strong team that capitalizes on any breaks they receive," said Patrick, who has scouted the Orange in three outings. "Luciano was their strongman, but just remember, it takes 11 men to make a good team—not just one."

Patrick pointed to quarterbacks Chuck Zimmerman and Dan Fogarty as being more vital to the Syracuse attack than Luciano.

"Those two boys are darn good quarterbacks," Patrick said, "especially that Zimmerman. He's a fancy ball handler, a very good passer and a fair runner. He's completed over half of the passes he has thrown."

A check at the latest Syracuse statistics prove Patrick correct on the latter statement. Zimmerman, who, incidentally is the cover boy of the current issue of Sports Illustrated, has completed 17 of 32 aeriels for a .531 percentage and 267 yards. Four of the pitches have been for TDs.

The statistics also prove another point of Patrick's—that concerns the running of Fogarty. "He's a very good runner," said Patrick, "He runs hard and fast." Fogarty is the Orange's top ground gainer on average-per-carry with 5.5 yards gained each trip. He's carried 16 times for 88 yards.

"The rest of that backfield is dangerous, too," Patrick continued. "(Art) Baker, (Tom) Stephens, (Ger) Schwedes and (Ed) Keiffer are also tough runners—and good pass receivers. They've accounted for most of the yards gained by passing."

Another check at the statistics again shows Patrick correct.

... Pennsylvania "Traitor" Returns

The aforementioned quartet hold four of the top five spots among the Syracuse pass receiving leaders, gaining 157 yards and two touchdowns on 12 catches.

Baker, incidentally, is a former Pennsylvania schoolboy star from Erie Academy. He was an all-state fullback in his senior year (1956), and won the state heavy-weight wrestling crown the following spring.

Maryland Booters Looking for Revenge

Doyle Royal has been coaching soccer at Maryland for 12 years. Within that span his teams have never lost an Atlantic Coast Conference game. They have won that championship five consecutive times since 1953.

During these 12 years Royal's teams have come close, but never have gone undefeated. Penn State has seen to that. In 10 meetings between the two teams Penn State has won them all, but Royal and his booters have high hopes of reversing that tomorrow.

Royal plans to start a lineup made up of six lettermen and five sophomores Saturday afternoon. Royal said that in the first two games of the season the Terp sophs have all looked good.

Leading the Terrapin offense will be co-captain and high scoring inside right Chico Liacuris.

His counterpart at inside left—Ernesto Ribeiro—is a very highly touted sophomore. Ribeiro is a native of Brazil where he concentrated on soccer during his high school days.

At center forward the Terps have Cliff Krug who is another sophomore. Krug was one of the biggest offensive threats on Maryland's unbeaten freshman team a year ago.
