Lions Play Terps In Crucial Game

By SANDY PADWE

A tight rope walker leads a dangerous life because one slip might cost him his life. Penn State's soccer team will be in a similar position today when they travel to College General George French and Park, Maryland, to take on the always tough Terps.

A loss to the Terrapins today won't cost the booters any lives, but it will certainly cost them a national championship. Having already lost to West Chester, the Nittanies are in no position to lose another, for if they do, their last vision of the title will be booted right out the window.

Lion coach Kenny Hosterman feels that will be the most im-portant game for the Lions this season. "A win against Maryland will help us pick up the ground that we lost in the West Chester game," he said.

If the Lions get by Maryland's Atlantic Coast Conference champs today then they can look forward to another tough tilt next Saturday with Navy. Navy and Maryland played a scoreless tie a week Hosterman will send a revamped lineup into today's tussle with the Terrapins. All of the changes take place on the forward line. The biggest change will see Loren Kline start at center forward in place of Fran Manley. Kline thus becomes the seventh Nittany to play this spot.

Filling Kline's place at outside left will be Pete Wadsworth. Wadsworth started the season at left wing but was switched to right wing so that he could feed high scoring inside right Bill Fiedler.

On left wing will be newcomer Jim Hockenbrock. Hockenbrock has seen a lot of action this year but it has been in the role of a substitute.

The rest of the Lion front "five" son with six goals and Stollmeyer is second with three.

Genial George French, our dart-throwing friend who, in the beginning of the season, did so well, is again out on the limb farther than the other three prognosticators.

French, who searched all day for his darts to pose for a picture, picks Stanford over U.C.L.A., and Minnesota over Michigan as upsets.

Magnificent Matt Mathews, who is beginning to achieve more accuracy with his scientific method of picking teams, claims that this week's selections are certain to bring him the distinction of being the only person to pick 15 of 15 games-all wrong. . . . Tough darts!
