

Boulding to Deliver 12th Jones Lecture

Kenneth E. Boulding, widely known economist, poet and scholar, will speak on "Redeemable Man and Redemptive Society," when he delivers the Rufus Jones lecture at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 121 Sparks.

This lecture will be the 12th in a series sponsored annually by the State College Friends Meeting.

Boulding was graduated from the School of Philosophy, Politics and Economics of Oxford University, where he received first class honors.

He is now a professor of economics at the University of Michigan. Before accepting a position there, he taught at the University of Edinburgh in England as well as in several colleges and universities in both the United States and Canada. Among these were Iowa State College, Colgate University, and Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

Boulding was awarded the John Bates Clark medal by the American Economic Association in 1949. He was granted a fellow-

Among the first Formosan educators to come to the University in 1953 was the president of Taiwan Normal University, Liu Chen, who is now commissioner of education in the Taiwan Provincial Government.

Dr. S. Lewis Land, director of vocational teacher education and head of the Department of Industrial Education, went to Taiwan in the fall of 1952 to make the initial survey for the project. Robert M. Knoebel, associate professor of industrial education, was the first University staff member in charge.

He remained one year and was succeeded by John A. McCarthy, former state commissioner of vocational education in New Jersey who stayed one and a half years.

The following persons have been in charge of the project since McCarthy: William A. Williams, professor of industrial education; Ralph D. Widdowson, associate professor of industrial education, and Knoebel.

ship for work at the Center for Advanced Study in Behavioral Sciences in Stanford, Calif., in 1954. He also served as president of the Society for General Systems Research, in 1957.

Boulding has written several books, among them "The Skills of the Economist" and "Principles of Economic Policy," which were published this year. His other works include "Economic Analysis," "Economics of Peace," "The Organizational Revolution," and "A Reconstruction of Economics." Several of his articles have appeared in the Economic Journal, the Quarterly Journal of Economics, Scientific Monthly, and the American Economic Review.

and Moconyi were our best backs last year. But all of them have been banged up."

"Ok, man, Ok, I believe you," Joe said sarcastically, "but I still want to know how they can look so good one day and bad the next. You haven't answered that."

"Joe," we said, growing tired of the conversation, "just because they looked bad during the first couple of games doesn't mean they'll look bad the rest of the year. Why not give the guys a chance? All they needed to do was find themselves and Rip thinks they have. If they beat Syracuse Saturday, that should more than prove the fact, shouldn't it?"

"Sure, man, sure," Joe said brushing the hair off my shoulders. "But I don't think they can beat Syracuse—and I'll bet you a free haircut that they don't."

"Ok, Joe," I said, "I'll be in next Thursday to collect."

reversed three weeks later when the Nittanies run in the NCAA Championships at East Lansing. The meet is held every year on the Michigan State course.

One week earlier, the Lions and Spartans will square off in the IC4-A Championships on the neutral Van Cortlandt course in New York City.

This will be the first year at the helm of the Spartans for Fran Dittrich, who was Karl Schlaedeman's understudy for 18 years at Michigan State. This is Werner's 26th year as head coach of the Nittany harriers.

In the freshman meet, Steve Moorhead, Mike Miller and Fred Larson all stand a good chance of lowering Johnson's 3-mile record of 15:39.
