

Walker to Invite Honor Class BusAd Speaker In English Will Begin

A list of four suggested keynote speakers for the Business Administration College's Career Day has been submitted to President Eric A. Walker by the Business Administration Student Council.

Walker will invite either John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Dr. Stanley Teele, dean of the Harvard Business School; Thomas H. Carroll II, vice president of the Ford Foundation; or the new governor of Pennsylvania to highlight the Career Day program which will be held in March or April.

Lewis, Teele and the Pennsylvania governor were selected by the council from a list of speakers previously suggested by council members.

James Meister, council president, and Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the college, added Carroll to the final list.

Gerald Carlson, chairman of the Career Day committee, said it was remarked to him that students may be disillusioned about going into industry, if a labor leader were to be the keynote speaker.

The source, whom Carlson did not remember, said an industry speaker would be needed to counterbalance the effect of the labor speaker.

Previous Career Day speakers have been Ralph Bunch, United Nations Undersecretary for Special Political Affairs; George M. Leader, governor of Pennsylvania, and James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor.

A new honors course in English, designed to strengthen the program by challenging a few advanced students to do more intensive work in their major field, will be put into effect next semester.

The program was unanimously approved by the faculty of the College of the Liberal Arts at a meeting Thursday.

To be eligible for the course, called English 300, a student must be entering his sixth semester, have an All-University and English average of B, and be approved by an honors committee. He must then take the course for three semesters to be eligible to graduate "with honors," Deborah S. Austin, chairman of the committee, said.

The course will not be completely "tailor-made," she said, but will be flexible enough to include work that the majority of students are interested in.

When an area of concentration has been decided on, the class will do some outside research and meet with the group for discussion and to present papers. The honors student will be on his own a good deal.

Miss Austin said the course will be conducted on a very limited scale. She expects the size of an average class to be from three to seven students.

In other business, the faculty voted to invite the officers of the Liberal Arts Student Council to attend faculty meetings along with its advisor, Preston N. Williams, Assistant Chaplain.

Richard C. Maloney, associate dean of the college, suggested this be done to keep students more informed about their faculty and college.

Political Party Registration Ends Tomorrow

Final registration for Campus and University political parties will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow. Campus party will meet in 121 Sparks and University Party in 10 Sparks.

Students who have not registered and wish to do so must bring their matriculation cards to the meetings.

Party membership cards will be distributed to students who registered last Sunday.

Preliminary nominations for freshman and sophomore class officers and final nominations for clique officers will be held. Students who are not registered cannot vote in these nominations.

All-University Elections Committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks to set up registration for the parties.

Football Weather Seen Cloudy, Cool

Cloudy and cooler weather is expected for the football game today with a high of 64 degrees and some sunshine. Tonight will be fair and cool with a low of 37. Sunday should be sunny and warmer with a high of 62. Monday's weather will continue fair and mild.

Cwens Attend 17th Convention

Four representatives of Cwens, national sophomore women's honorary society, are attending the 17th national convention this weekend at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Henrietta Harris, local chapter president; Linda Miller, vice president; Nancy Clark, past president and Mrs. R. Mae Shultz, adviser, are representing the University chapter.

Miss Clark will present the report from the University chapter and Miss Harris will serve on a panel dealing with Cwens policy.

Cwens was founded in 1922 at the University of Pittsburgh. The University chapter was installed June 4, 1927. Other Pennsylvania chapters of Cwens are at Allegheny and Carnegie Tech.

Parking--

Faculty and staff members or unregistered student cars will be unable to park in the new spaces behind the women's halls. Periodic checks will be made by Campus Patrol members to enforce the 15-minute time limit.

Feldstein said the spaces must be used judiciously if students wish to gain the administration's cooperation on other items of convenience and necessity.

1957 Encampment: The Results

Need for Bookstore Is Investigated

By DENNY MALICK
Twelfth of a Series

All-University Cabinet should have a report by the beginning of next semester on whether there is a need for a student-operated bookstore.

A Cabinet committee headed by Gerald Carlson is now investigating book stores at other universities.

"We are investigating how others are operated to determine how their system could work in our situation," Carlson said.

The 1957 Student Encampment

recommended that a detailed study be made into the possibility of a book store.

Encampment reasoned that a student-operated book store might save the students money through discounts and a larger per cent resale value on books and supplies.

The present book store does not handle new books but it does deal with new supplies.

In his findings thus far, Carlson said, some college book stores sell new books and supplies below the listed retail price, and others sell strictly on the list price basis.

The Encampment Student Enterprise Workshop which considered the book store system also recommended backing of the Interfraternity Council Purchasing Association. The IFCPA was in its early stages in 1957 but now has grown to include more than half the fraternities.

The association is established to enable fraternities to buy food and other supplies in large quantities and thus at cheaper prices.

Dancers to Interpret Legends of Spain

Dances of Moorish influence, dances that tell age-old legends, interpretations of poetry and pantomimic dancing will highlight the appearance of the Roberto Iglesias at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Recreation Building.

The group will perform 12 numbers, most of them staged by Iglesias himself.

Costumes for the dances were designed by members of the ballet troupe. They reflect the lands from which the dances have come.

The program for tomorrow's performance is:

"Triana" by Albeniz (costumes: Maria Pas Jimenez); "Salineras" by Fernandez and Sandoval (a dance with marked Moorish influence); "Balada Galicia" by Montes and Vives (costumes: Trabal Altes—an interpretation of the cordial land of Galicia); "Leyenda" by Albeniz (a legendary story of unknown secret lives in a sad landscape).

"Soledad Montoya" by Fernandez and Sandoval (costumes: Trabal Altes—a choreographic interpretation of Garcia Lorca's poem "Soledad Montoya"); "Tema y Variaciones" by Vives and Sandoval (a picturesque and evocative scene of the remote and almost Anso Valley in Northern Aragon).

"Fiesta en la Isla" by Merida, Sandoval and Vives: (1) Vienen cantando (they come singing), (2) Comienza la fiesta (the fiesta begins), (3) El y ella (he and she) and (4) Al compas del timple (the music of the temple). This number portrays the grace, elegance and color of the Canary Islands folklore.

"Polo Sevillano"—popular (costumes: Maria Pas Jimenez and Rosario Escudero—the musical forms of this dance have been used by nearly all the Spanish composers in their concert scores); "Idolos de Arena" by Ferrer (a pantomime in three parts—featuring the Toreador, the beast and the aficionadas); "El Palomo y La Paloma" by Sandoval and Vives (a stylized Mexican dance).

"El Duende" (The Goblin) by Munar, Vichino and Sandoval (costumes: Manolo Galan); and "Punta y Tacon" by Fernandez and Sandoval (dedicated to its creator, the teacher of the new generation: "El Estampio." It is a classical study of the Flamenco Dance).
