

Disorderly Conduct Charges Sent to Senate Committee

A Tribunal recommendation for disciplinary probation for two sophomores accused of drinking and unbecoming behavior has been referred to the Senate sub-committee on discipline.

The students, who live in a rented apartment in a private home in town, entertained four unexpected visitors over a weekend in which time they consumed 79 cans and 29 quarts of beer, the charge read.

The owner, a woman 75 years of age, complained about the noise and also asked the visitors to pay her; all in vain. Eventually the owner reported the students to the dean of men's office, stating that, in general, the two had been "most

Three juniors and a senior were given Tribunal warnings as approved by the dean of men's office for noisy conduct outside Simmons residence hall in the early morning hours.

A campus patrolman spotted the group and started towards them. Four of them ran off toward the Nittany area, but a fifth member, already on disciplinary probation, remained behind to talk to the patrolmen. He reluctantly gave the names of the others and was "very cooperative" according to the patrol.

The four other students quickly admitted that the fifth student had hesitated in joining their pranks, and no further action was taken on him.

Approved Fraternities

All fraternities have been approved for the entertainment of women guests for tonight except: Alpha Phi Alpha, Alpha Phi Delta, Delta-Sigma Phi, Pi Lambda Phi, Pi Sigma Upsilon, and Sigma Alpha Mu. Pi Lambda Phi, Pi Sigma Upsilon, and Sigma Alpha Mu have been approved for tomorrow night only.

These Electrical Engineers
Are Solving Problems That Won't Happen Until 1960!

Yes, that's right. Thanks to this amazing A-C Network Calculator, Pennsylvania Electric Association Engineers can actually plan power networks, complete with generating stations, power lines, homes, and factories, for future development and know in advance what problems will be created and how to solve them.

And, this almost "human" electronic marvel is only one of a number of modern electronic devices that frequent the every day life of engineers engaged in today's fascinating electric power industry.

As an engineer about to begin your career, you simply won't find a better field than the electric power industry... particularly with a Pennsylvania electric company. Nowhere else will you find newer advances in equipment or methods—nowhere else will you find a greater opportunity to help build America's future—and nowhere else will you find a wider range of interests, one of which is sure to be the one you're looking for.

If you feel you can qualify to join an organization that's rapidly expanding; that offers a young man opportunities for advancement; that is extremely well known and respected, then talk to your placement counselor. Or, write to Pennsylvania Electric Association, State Street Building, Harrisburg, Pa., telling them where you would like to live and work.
