

Nurse Named Guest Professor

Dr. Edwin G. Nurse, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers to former President Harry S. Truman, has accepted an appointment as distinguished visiting professor of economics for next semester.

Nurse is now vice chairman of the Joint Council on Economic Education in Washington D.C.

Indie Queen To Be Named At Ball Tonight

Indies will crown a queen at the Autumn Ball tonight.

The ball, which will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight in the Hetzel Union ballroom, will climax the Indie Week celebration. Indie Week activities began Monday.

Indie Queen hopefuls are Elizabeth Greve, Marilyn Weierbach, Mary Reidenbaugh, Dorothy Mazurik and Sylvia Brague. The finalists were announced at the Indie talent show Thursday night.

Music for the semi-formal dance will be provided by the Association of Independent Men band. Tickets at $2 a couple may be purchased at the HUB desk, Nittany 20 and Waring hall.

Indie Week included a bridge tournament, exchange dinners and fireside discussions, a talent show and a banner contest at last night's pep rally.

The celebration is co-sponsored by the Association of Independent Men and Leonides.

UCA Will Make Trip To Aged Persons' Home

The University Christian Association will travel to the Bellefonte County Home for the Aged to meet and to read to the residents at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow.

Members who wish to attend should call University Ext. 541.

Theater Group Will Present Folk Comedy

A mother, recently widowed, objects to her daughter's "man hankering" until she finds herself becoming interested in a man in the 5 O'clock Theatre's presentation of David Stekol's folk comedy, "Gonna Shout All Over God's Heaven," at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Little Theatre in Old Main.

The play takes place on a small Midwestern farm. The daughters, Dolly, Martha and Susan, want to go to a dance, but the mother, Pearl, wants them to embroider and listen to her read the Bible.

Situations like this arise until Joe Redbird, an Indian who works on the farm, upsets the whole system.

Pearl is played by Helen Cummings, Joe Redbird by Joe Servello, Dolly by Evelyn Bernhard, Martha by Pat Paladino and Susan by Betsy Boyce.

The playwright is a senior in arts and letters from Glenside.

Floyd Santoro, senior in theatre arts from Johnstown, will direct the play.

"Gonna Shout All Over God's Heaven" is the first play to be presented by the 5 O'clock Theatre during the fall semester. Janice Champagne, manager, said the group could begin presenting plays earlier this year because there is material left over from last year.

Partys to Nominate--

Platforms for both parties must be handed in to Elections Committee chairman, Lynn Ward, by 7 p.m. Wednesday. At that time the platforms will be reviewed by the committee.

Any plank not approved by the Elections Committee at this meeting will be presented to the committee next Friday.

Horse Show to Be Held

The Riding Club will hold a horse show at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow in the riding stables.

He is the second person named under the University's new program of distinguished visiting professorships in the fields of the social sciences, the humanities, the physical sciences and the biological sciences.

Dr. Herbert Heaton, chairman of the Department of History at the University of Minnesota, is serving as distinguished visiting professor of history this semester.

Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs, said the program of visiting professorships is aimed to enrich the University's educational program "by bringing to campus teachers and scholars of international renown whose presence will serve to inspire and to instruct students and faculty alike."

Nurse is past president of the American Farm Economic Association.

He taught for 15 years in the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania, and at state institutions in South Dakota, Arkansas and Iowa.

Turning his attention to research, Nurse studied price policies and income relations and served as vice president of the Brookings Institution in Washington.

Nurse has served as U.S. delegate to the biennial assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy, and as American member of the Mixed Committee on Nutrition of the League of Nations.

Among books Nurse has written are "America's Capacity to Produce," "Price Making in a Democracy" and "Economics in the Public Service."

Chorus Line Leads 450 at Pep Rally

"Splish Splash", a chorus line of football-helmeted coeds, and torch-bearing cheerleaders led a crowd of about 450 in last night's pep rally for today's football game with Furman.

The Penn State Blue Band started the rally with the song "Splish Splash" in the theme of Band Day, Rock 'n' Roll. The Band also played another "rock-and-roller," "Bird-Dog".

Ten Kappa Alpha Theta sorority coeds presented a kick line of football players dancing to "Mr. Touchdown, U.S.A."

The parade before the rally was led down Pollock Road around the Hetzel Union Building to the front of Old Main by torch-bearing cheerleaders and members of Druids, junior men's hat society; and new initiates of the Varsity "S" Club.

Samuel Wolcott, former student and head cheerleader in 1956, was master of ceremonies.

Ernie Baer, lacrosse coach and speaker at the rally, told the crowd the team members face a tough job when they meet Furman tomorrow. The student's job, he said, is to make themselves heard through cheers.

Placement Service

Job Competition to Be Keen For 1959 Grads, Says Cook

By PHYLLIS WESTCOTT

This year's graduates will find job competition keen, although the general employment picture is improving, predicts Donald M. Cook, assistant director of the placement service.

Cook previewed the job situation at the Middle Atlantic Placement Conference for employers and placement service personnel last week at Pocono Manor.

Students, especially those with poorer academic records, will have to search harder for opportunities. Employers are showing more interest in scholastic records than in previous years, he said.

"However, a student's records should show improvement, rather than a downward slope in achievement," he said.

Employers are also interested in how a student has spent his spare time, if he has worked or participated in activities. The number of activities is not as important as the contribution he has made to each organization, according to Cook.

Men with military obligations will have the hardest time finding a job again this year. A senior should have as much information as possible about his military status before being interviewed.

The fall interview program at the placement service shows a good cross section of employers in spite of some cancellations, he said.

Interview schedules for the spring semester promise to be very active, with a wide variety of employers visiting the campus. The years from 1950 to 1957 were "gravy years" when employment opportunities for college graduates were at a maximum.

The recession last spring hit the '58 college graduates first. Some companies cancelled campus visits altogether, and others hired on a percentage basis. Summer employment was at a minimum.

Most '58 graduates did find jobs with the exception of some men with unsatisfied military obligations. The average graduate, excluding teachers, received a starting salary of $426 per month. This figure was weighted by technical graduates, whose salaries often exceed this amount. The placement service facilities. A student should read and inquire about a company before applying for a job there.

The senior who has an understanding of his own goals and ambitions will have a better chance for success than the one who is merely looking for a job, he said.
