Deans of Colleges Favor Joint Career Exposition

By NICKI WOLFORD

The deans of all colleges have said they would favor holding a campus-wide career exposition in place of individual college expositions.

Jack Kendall, president of the Engineering and Architecture Student Council, proposed at an Intercollege Council

Board meeting Oct. 27 that ICCB sponsor a campus-wide career exposition this year and each succeeding year if the first one was successful.

The council will vote on the proposal at a meeting to be held Thursday night, Donald Zepp, president of ICCB, said.

Ossian B. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, said in an interview, "The college would support an All-University career day on a trial basis."

The college would drop its own exposition—although plans for this year's exposition are already underway—to support a campus-wide career exposition, he said.

The exposition of the College of Business Administration brings in the presidents and other officials of various companies to talk to students.

MacKenzie said the purpose of the exposition was "to acquaint students with opportunities in the field and I know of no better way than talking with people who have been successful."

The deans of two colleges said the proposed career day should be entirely educational and not contain company publicity and recruiting.

Dr. Elbert F. Osborn, dean of the College of Mineral Industries, said that career day should not have anything to do with recruiting by companies; it should be "entirely informative."

"This (career exposition) should not be a recruiting exposition; it should be an educational activity," said Dr. John R. Rackley, dean of the College of Education.

Dr. Merritt A. Williamson, dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, said the objectives of a career day should be clearly set down—either to learn about

Scott's Win Called State's Big Surprise

Compiled from The Associated Press

Pittsburgh's Mayor David L. Lawrence took the governorship by a smaller-than-predicted margin but Republican Hugh Scott pulled an upset over Gov. George M. Leader for the senatorial seat as the Democrats registered less than their predicted state sweep.

Arthur T. McGonigle, Republican candidate for governor, conceded defeat at 1 a.m. to Lawrence as votes piled up, and Scott with a substantial lead over Leader seemed certain to win the state's senate seat.

Lawrence will have a Democratic Lt. Gov. as John M. Davis defeated Republican candidate John M. Walker.

Democrats held a 2-1 margin of wins in the State House of Representatives in early morning returns. The trend in the Senate also gave an early advantage to the Democrats with six incumbents re-elected and three new senators winning seats.

Democrat Genevieve Blatt led by a small margin over Andrew J. Gleason for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Curtis Bok, Democrat, had a very slight margin over Robert E. Woodside for the Supreme Court post.

Scott's win over Leader was the state's biggest surprise. The U.S. Representative from Philadelphia's 6th district was expected to make it a close race, but Leader was given the pre-election edge.

Scott lost the Democratic strongholds of Allegheny and Philadelphia counties but piled up wide margins in other sections of the state.

Lawrence swept Pittsburgh's Allegheny County by a wide margin, and polled more votes than his opponent in most of the other sections of the state.

McGonigle, the pretzel manufacturer from Reading, put up a better showing than expected, however. The race had been generally conceded to Lawrence, and, although he led throughout the race, his margin was never as high as had been predicted.

Rockefeller Wins

Democrat Tide Bucked by N.Y.

The GOP set the Democrats on their heels in New York state with solid victories for both Governor-elect Nelson Rockefeller and Senator-elect Kenneth R. Keating.

Gov. Averill Harriman conceded at 10:45 p.m. and by 1:30 a.m. Rockefeller had piled up 2,811,342 votes to Harriman's 2,358,226.

Lack of Funds Delays Building Of HUB Walk

The University has deferred action on the proposed construction of a sidewalk behind Grange Hall because of insufficient funds.

All-University President Jay Feldstein made the request for the construction of the sidewalk between the rear of Grange Hall and the Hetzel Union Building parking lot to Ossian MacKenzie, vice president in charge of business administration.

MacKenzie referred the matter to the arrangements committee which deals with physical improvement plans for the University. Insufficient funds at the present time prevent approval of the subject, the committee said.

Feldstein made the request for the construction of the sidewalk to prevent accident hazards which are presented when both students and automobiles use the HUB parking lot. At the rush hours the lot is filled with students and also automobiles which are trying to leave, Feldstein said, and the situation presents a hazard.

Injured Coed Also Suffers Broken Leg

A coed thought to have suffered only a cut lip in an auto accident Saturday night was yesterday discovered to have a broken leg.

Barbara Stone, junior in arts and letters from Wheeling, W. Va., had a cast put on her leg at Washington, Pa., Hospital, where she is a patient.

The car in which Miss Stone was riding crashed head-on with another auto six miles west of Washington. Thomas Hollander of Monessen, alumnus and president of the class of 1958, was the driver.

Washington Hospital doctors had planned to release Miss Stone in time to allow her to return to the University next Monday. They are now unable to say when she will be released.

Doctors reported that Hollander, who suffered a cut leg requiring 22 stitches, is doing well and should be released by the end of the week.

The condition of Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Simpson of New Haven, Conn., occupants of the other car, is listed as good, although hospital officials said Mrs. Simpson may have to remain in the hospital for a while.

Eugene Simpson, the couple's 10-month-old son, was killed in the crash.

Mardi Gras Plans Include 23 Booths

The annual Mardi Gras, sponsored by Scrolls, senior women's hat society, will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. Friday in the Recreation Building.

The exhibition will contain open and closed booths of 22 sororities and the Freshman Council.

Materials used in the construction of booths must be fireproofed.

At the inspection held Monday and yesterday at Beaver Field, the "fireproofed" material of some sororities went up in flames.

Apparently these sororities will have to try again because they did not mix the fireproofing material correctly.

However, the Scrolls member in charge of Mardi Gras did not know how many sororities passed or did not pass; nor did they know why they did not pass.

The open booths will contain games which give prizes, such as a free car wash, to winners. The closed booths will contain shows in keeping with the Mardi Gras theme.

The 23 entrants each selected a student at the University to run for Mardi Gras king. The king will be chosen by penny voting in Recreation Building Friday night.

He will be crowned at Mardi Brawl, a jam session sponsored by Chimes, junior women's hat society, on Saturday.

According to Janice Smith, co-chairman of Mardi Gras, funds collected from the sale of tickets and the penny voting will go to
