

Perfect Mate Sought In Players' Comedy

By JEANETTE SAXE

An ambitious mother and her reluctant husband conduct a man-hunt through the English "social season" for the perfect mate for their reluctant daughter in the Players' production of William Douglas Home's comedy, "The Reluctant Debutante" to open Nov. 21 at Center Stage.

The play will run Fridays and Saturdays when the University is in session and will close on Jan. 10.

"The Reluctant Debutante" depends more upon seasoning than substance. It is concerned mainly with a mother, Sheila Broadbent, who wants to unload her daughter, Jane, upon some faultless young man as soon as possible.

It seems there is no huntress like a mother when it comes to stalking marriageable game as she prowls through the London telephone book in quest of a trophy she can bestow upon Jane.

Jane's reaction is a normal and natural one. Like most girls, she has a firm idea whom she wants, mother or no mother.

The father, Jimmy Broadbent, takes all this manhunting with patient good humor and makes it sound almost like a compliment when he makes the remark that mothers with eligible daughters are "a lot of refined white-slave traffickers."

Although the play is set in modern London, its theme and basic premise are universal. Its content will be meaningful to young people and adults, bachelors and unattached females, and, of course, parents.

The production will be directed by Robert Reifsnider, associate professor of theatre arts.

•Early Penn State students were advised to bring with them a carpet, mirror, washbowl, pitcher, pail, broom, lamp and oil can.

•Penn State students get their weather forecasts from flags flown atop the Mineral Industries buildings on campus.

Banner Contest Open to Men Only

The banner contest for Saturday's game with Holy Cross will be limited to men only. This ruling has been made to eliminate conflict between the banner contest and the display competition for women's residence halls sponsored by the Women's Student Government Association, Jean Kissick, Mortar Board president, said.

The winner of the banner contest will be awarded a trophy donated by Mortar Board, women's, and Parmi Nous, men's, senior hat societies, sponsors of the contest.

Any group of men may enter the contest. Those wishing to participate can leave the name of their group at the Hetzel Union desk by noon, Friday. Any number of persons can work on the banner but only six men will be permitted to carry it in Friday night's parade before the pep rally.

Banners can be of any size and shape.

Entrants should bring their own cars to join the motorcade which will leave the HUB parking lot at 7:20 p.m. on Friday. The parade will end at 8 p.m. in front of Old Main. At this time, the banners will be paraded before the judges. The winner will be announced at the pep rally. Judges for the contest will be O. Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men, R. Mae Shulis, assistant to the dean of women, and All-University President Jay Feldstein.

Banners will be judged for design and originality. The costumes of those carrying them will also be considered. General chairmen for the contest are Susan Whittington, senior in arts and letters from Bangkok, Thailand, for Mortar Board, and Thomas Hancock, senior in mechanical engineering from Johnstown for Parmi Nous.

•Rules for freshmen at Penn State were first tagged "customs" in a 1904 student handbook.

•Penn State was first called Farmer's High School because its founders thought "college" connoted a place where boys contracted idle habits.
