

Better Fishing Seen for Dam

The fishermen of the area may soon be able to thank the Outing Club and the Department of Zoology for a much improved fishing spot—the Beaver Dam pond.

Outing Club members dug through the middle of the present earth dam and drained the lake.

The unfortunate fish had been given rotenone, a poison, as part of their diet and died before their home was drained away.

According to Dr. Edwin L. Cooper, associate professor of zoology, permission to poison the fish, bullheads and pickerel, was obtained from the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

The Department of Zoology is developing the area as part of an experiment in trout management. The state will restock the pond and it will be open to the public, Cooper said.

According to Robert T. Probst, graduate student in zoology, "part of the idea of the program is to channel productivity from bullheads to trout."

The Outing Club is helping with the project and hopes to develop the pond as a recreational area, according to Mark Smythe, club president.

A concrete drainage gate is now being built in the center of the original earth dam to facilitate future draining of the pond as a part of the research program.

The original earth dam of the pond on Shaver Creek was built by a State College conservation group.

The research program is rotational and the lake will be drained and fish collected, for scientific study at future dates, Cooper said.

Special fishing regulations will be set up for the pond—flies will be the only type of bait permitted, a daily limit of two fish per person will be allowed and no fishing from boats will be permitted. The fishing season will be extended.

Cooper said the 6½-acre pond is on state land and the University has a long-term lease on the area.

Permission for the project was obtained from the Department of Forests and Waters, the Division of Dams in Harrisburg and the Fish Commission, Cooper said.

Cadillac Redfaced Over Rambler

John D'Angelo, senior in education from Philadelphia, thought his sleek black Cadillac was about the greatest thing on the road—until yesterday.

That's when the Cadillac, being driven to the Nittany Halls by its now red-faced owner, drank its last drop of gas, left its roar behind and came to a chug-chugging halt.

While D'Angelo stood scratching his head for a solution to his problem, he heard a friendly and helpful "beep-beep" behind him—the "beep-beep" of a tiny Nash Rambler.

Without another beep, the little car pushed the big, sleek Cadillac to the gas station, D'Angelo sliding down into the front seat so he couldn't be seen.

Not a word was spoken by either driver. The driver of the Rambler just laughed as he pulled away, and D'Angelo's face got redder—especially when the midget car left the station with a short "beep-beep."

N.Y. Career Tests Set for December

University juniors, seniors and graduates with majors in virtually every field including liberal arts are eligible to take the New York State Civil Service Department's professional career tests Dec. 13.

Opportunities exist for appointment in various positions such as public administration intern, legal aide, economist trainee, library assistant, parole trainee, bacteriologist, chemist, forester or game research trainee and others.

Further information and applications, which must be submitted by Monday, may be obtained at the Placement Service in Old Main.

LA Faculty Members Will Meet Tomorrow

Faculty members of the College of the Liberal Arts will meet at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks. Officers of the Liberal Arts Student Council have been invited to attend the meeting.

Big Rush Expected For Shaw Tickets

Students who want tickets for the Canadian Players' performance of George Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple" ought to get to the Hetzel Union desk early this morning.

Tickets for the troupe's Friday evening performance of William Shakespeare's "As You Like It" were given out within a few hours of the time distribution began Monday.

Ticket sales and distribution for Saturday evening's performance will begin at 9 a.m. today. Tickets for non-students cost $1.25. Students may pick up tickets by presenting their matriculation cards.

Those who were too late to get tickets for Friday's performance may still see the play by picking up tickets for the matinee performance scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Both evening performances are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium. Following Saturday evening's show, a reception for members of the troupe will be held at Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Students who wish to attend may sign up at the HUB desk.

The Canadian Players' production of "As You Like It" brings with it quite a story. The idea of teen-age girls swooning over a Shakespearean actor seems a little far fetched, but it happened to Ted Follows who portrays Orlando in the play.

The show had a pre-tour performance before the student body of Etobicoke Collegiate in suburban Toronto, and when it was over Follows was mobbed by an admiring throng of high school girls. Attempts to take pictures of the cast in costume were completely disrupted by mobs of females following Follows around the stage with autograph books.

Finally he stretched out full length on the stage and spent over half an hour talking to students and signing autographs. The mood of the meeting, however, was completely shattered when in response to a question Follows admitted that he was married—to the production's Rosalind, Dawn Greenhalgh.

Sheep Show Exhibit Won By Shaffner

University shepherd Carroll Shaffner won the grand championship in individual competition in the National Southdown Sheep Show at the Pennsylvania National Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg.

He showed a Hampshire weather market lamb.

The exposition, which will continue until Saturday, features a rodeo complete with a rodeo queen—Marilyn Painter, senior in animal husbandry from Pittsburgh. She will appear with state and show officials during the program.

Entries in the exposition are from 22 states and Canada with a total of 396 exhibitors.

The University has entered 45 sheep and 33 beef cattle in breeding and fat classes.

Animal entries in the show total 2894, including 858 beef cattle, 967 swine and 1069 sheep. All of the common breeds of beef cattle, sheep and swine are represented.

Included in the exhibition are the Mid-Atlantic National Truck Show, the Armed Forces Show and the Junior Steer Show.

Sigma Delta Chi Initiates 4 Students

Four students and two newspapermen were initiated Sunday into Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity, in ceremonies at Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

Professional members initiated were Edward J. Gerrity, managing editor of the Scranton Times, and Kenneth Williams, managing editor of the Meadville Tribune.

Students initiated were William Deibler, junior in journalism from Altoona; George French, senior in journalism from Sewickley; Paul Sheckler, senior in journalism from Palmerton; and Wayne Schlegel, senior in journalism from Springfield.

Byers Calls Rival Planks 'Impractical'

University party Chairman Howard Byers today attacked four of Campus party's planks as "impractical."

The plank on the football game seating arrangement is an impractical ruse to gain votes, Byers said. He said the freshmen and sophomores would be in favor of this, but he doubts if the plan will be accepted by a predominantly upperclass student government.

The plank recommended that the class section seating arrangement be eliminated in favor of a general student section.

Byers said the check cashing service and Book Exchange expansion planks had been tried before and are doomed to failure before they start.

The planks propose the University establish a check cashing service and that the facilities of the Book Exchange be expanded to include a book store.

Byers said he doesn't believe Cabinet funds can support the extra burden of weekend entertainment for freshman and independent students which was advocated by a Campus party plank. The University party's social plank, he said, is much broader and more feasible because the source of funds is not limited.

Byers, in answer to a Daily Collegian editorial stating that student government reorganization should not be an issue in the campaign, said University party was the first to advocate reorganization. This was done by the party chairman, he said, during last semester's elections.

Candidates will continue campaigning this week in fraternities and residence halls.

Accounting Club to Hear Federal Representative

The Accounting Club will meet at 7 tonight at Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, 508 Locust Lane.

James Rodgers, a representative of the federal General Accounting Office, will speak on employment opportunities in GAO.

New officers will be elected.

Dragnet--

Although suspected of all the burglaries, they will only be charged with the campus thefts and the Alvo burglary in order to expedite court proceedings.

The goods stolen from Alvo's is estimated at $893. This theft was alleged to have occurred Thursday night, when the wave began in the borough.

Androcles Meeting

Androcles, junior men's hat society, will meet at 10:30 tonight at Theta Delta Chi.

Panhel May Establish Open Bidding

By JANET DURSTINE
Panhellenic Council may establish an open bidding system for sororities.

Under this system, any second semester freshman women with a 2.3 All-University average or above or upperclasswomen with a 2.0 All-U average or above could be given a bid at any time in the semester after formal rush. This would eliminate the spring informal rush period.

It has not decided when the plan, if passed, would go into effect.

The idea has been approved by sorority advisers. It is felt that under this system, more women would have a chance to join a sorority.

Coeds would not have to register for open bidding. The coed could answer the bid whenever she chose.

The council will act on this proposal at a special meeting Tuesday in the Sigma Sigma Sigma suite in Hibbs Hall.

The council will also decide then whether to adopt a formal rushing schedule starting earlier in the semester.

The proposed schedule suggests registration be held Jan. 28 and 29 during University registration. Open houses would then be held Jan. 30 and 31 and ribboning Feb. 13.

It was suggested that rushing be held earlier because of possible conflict with bluebooks. Under an alternate plan, registration would be held Feb. 2 and 3, open houses Feb. 7 and 8 and ribboning Feb. 20. This plan was presented by the Panhellenic executive committee.

Mrs. R. Mae Shultz, assistant dean of women, said if the earlier plan is passed, council may not be able to use the IBM machine. The machine is used for University registration data.

It was suggested that Bermuda shorts parties be substituted for the traditional costume parties, which were felt too expensive and involve too much work.

No costumes would be worn, the suite would not be decorated and entertainment would be limited to 15 minutes plus group singing.

Some council members, however, felt the parties gave an opportunity to see the rushee in a different situation from the ordinary rushing events.
