5 O'Clock Schedules 'C's Release'

The attempt of "C," a symbolical artistic character, to free himself from the dark "asylum" where he is captive will be dealt with in Donald Petersen's "C's Release," to be presented by the 5 O'Clock Theatre at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Little Theatre, Old Main.

Four other characters, each sure that his way of thinking is the answer, also want to free themselves.

The play deals with such questions as "Has man tampered too much with nature?" "Is there a sacred limit beyond which it is dangerous to go?" and "Are the harsher aspects of science, militarism, politics and degraded religion threats to whatever sense of beauty is left in man?"

The cast includes William Kotzwinkle as "C," William Bennett as "A," Richard Mazza as "B," William Bonham as "D," Charles Antalosky as "E," William Wells as the guard, Ann Rochelle as the woman, Gardner Tillson as Friedman and Duane Shiarella and Frederick Mayers as the consultants.

The play will be directed by Marvin Katz, junior in theatre arts from Drexel Hill. Petersen is a graduate student in theatre art from Davenport, Iowa.

Study Shows Music 5 Doesn't Breed Longhairs

By LOLLI NEUBARTH

A course in music appreciation is no guarantee that a student will be inclined to pass up a fraternity party for an Artist Series concert, according to a study made by Mrs. Beth Van Fassen, former graduate student, last year.

Research done last fall, when the Artist Series programs were first offered on campus, showed that enrollment in Music 5 was not at all associated with attendance at the concerts.

The reasons students gave for going to the programs were an interest in "cultural" events, a desire to see some particular program and the wish to improve themselves in general.

Students belonging to fraternities or sororities were less inclined to attend the programs, according to the study.

Non-attenders said they did not have enough time to go and they were not sufficiently motivated. However, Mrs. Margaret B. Matson, assistant professor of sociology, said they tended to go to movies more times a week than those who attended the Artist Series.

She said this would seem to show that lack of motivation was a more important factor than lack of time.

Mrs. Matson interpreted the study for the Faculty Luncheon Club on Monday.

Researchers were able to learn a good deal about attendance patterns from the matriculation cards which were turned in at spring term registration. "Culture leaves its mark," said Mrs. Matson, "in the form of punch holes indicating that a ticket has been issued to attend a particular concert."

The most noticeable characteristic of students who did attend the programs was the fact that they or their parents had gone to concerts at home. According to the report, they had also participated more in musical groups while in school and in general had higher grade point averages.

However, Mrs. Matson cautioned against generalizing since the study was a very small one and applied only to the first semester the concerts were offered. She added that some patterns seem to have changed by now.

Yuletide Trees Are Being Sold

Student organizations and departments of the University may now purchase fire-proofed Christmas trees through the Department of the Physical Plant.

All trees used in campus buildings must be fire-proofed. Decorations placed near lighted candles must be of fire-resistant material. Lighted candles may not be used in processions.

Orders showing the desired size of fire-proofed trees, and the desired date of delivery may be placed until Dec. 15.

For those organizations which do not buy fire-proofed trees, fireproofing will be done from 1 to 3 p.m. on Dec. 4, 9, 11, 16 and 18 under the West stands of Beaver Field.

People in the United States spend over $3 million every day for their newspapers. That's more than is collected daily from all the parking meters in the country.

Film to Depict Race Relations

"Burden of Truth," a film on race relations, will be shown at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Hetzel Union assembly hall.

The hour-long film deals with integration as it affects Joe Hamilton, a negro and his friend Jerry, a white. It opens with a scene of an angry mob of white residents protesting the presence of Joe and his wife Ellamae in their community.

From that point in the present, the film makes flashbacks in Joe's life and tells some of the barriers a negro must overcome to achieve dignity in America.

According to Fellowship magazine, this film "is neither preachy nor sugarcoated and it makes no neat divisions of characters into saints and devils."

The movie is being sponsored by the William Penn Foundation.

University Livestock To Be in Exposition

University beef cattle and sheep will be shown at the 59th International Livestock Exposition and Horse Show Nov. 28 to Dec. 6 in Chicago.

The exposition, the country's largest livestock show, is expected to attract more than 10,000 animals representing 29 of the meat-yielding breeds of farm animals, horses and ponies.

The show, held in the International Amphitheatre and the adjoining Chicago stock yards, is the final live stock show of the year. It shows all breeds of beef cattle, sheep and swine most of which have won blue ribbons and championships at state and county fairs and regional expositions.

Thirteen horse shows are scheduled for the 9-day exposition. Arthur Godfrey, riding his Arabian horse, Goldie, will be featured at each horse show. Entries in the horse show will range in size from Shetland ponies to the ton-weight Clydesdale featured in the 6-horse team exhibitions.

Total prize money is over $100,000. Adult breeders and farmers, farm boys and girls and the agricultural colleges exhibit hundreds of prize animals in the competitive shows.

All breeds of beef cattle, sheep and swine are shown in interbreed contest for the grand champion of each specie. The three star animals of the week are the grand champion steer, the grand champion barrow and the grand champion wether lamb.

The International grand-champion steer of last year's exposition was sold at auction for $30 a pound or a total of $31,050.
