

Classes Opened To All Students

The University Senate yesterday opened all University classes by approving a recommendation to allow students to attend any class even though not enrolled in the course.

The recommendation stipulates that a student must have the permission of the instructor before attending a class in which he is not enrolled.

Miss Champagne's hands.

Harry Jones was both sympathetic and despicable as Virginia's father and the prime cause of her mental development—just what the reviewer feels the role called for.

The part of Andy, as written by author Laurents, is just a little too ordinary to produce the desired effect. But David McGirr gives it just enough restraint to put it over.

The most blatant obviousness is the part of The Boy who was Virginia's first lover in this sexually-preoccupied play. There was hardly much William Kotzwinkle could do to save it, but he certainly didn't make it any worse (which, in case it doesn't seem to be, is a compliment).

Robert Shiarella is far better in his first scene as Pete—Virginia's estranged husband—than in his second. Which isn't so bad, since he was thoroughly convincing in his first appearance.

Nelbi Beale's southern accent in her role of Hazelmae was deliciously funny, even amazing in its excellence.

Russell G. Whaley's sets were magnificent and so consistent with their purpose that they weren't at first noticeable. A tremendous amount of work and feeling was evident in them.

The lighting effects, handled by Jack McIlroy and Caroline Quarles, were some of the best ever seen in a campus production. They were wonderful, but never obtrusive.

Two Students Escape Injury In Accidents

Two students were uninjured in auto accidents which occurred Wednesday on College Avenue.

The students were John Warner, junior in industrial engineering from Bellefonte, and Charles Koons, senior in business administration from York Springs.

Warner incurred $450 in damage to his 1956 Volkswagon when he ran into a 1950 Plymouth station wagon driven by John Dame of State College in an accident occurring about 5:05 p.m. Dame was making a right turn onto College Avenue from McAllister St. and according to witnesses, could not see the Warner car due to the snow.

Warner's car veered into the car of Mrs. D. White, also of State College after hitting Dame's car. There was no damage to Mrs. White's car but $25 in damage was done to Dame's car.

At about 11 p.m. that night Koons' car was hit by the automobile of Gus Nicholes at the corner of East College Avenue and Heister Street.

According to police reports, Koons signaled for a left hand turn and, due to the slippery road, Nicholes hit Koons' right fender.

Damage is estimated at $90 to Koons car and $65 to Nicholes' automobile.

Student Book Store Tentatively Favored

The Cabinet book store committee now favors a University-owned book store, although its members still are studying its feasibility and could change their minds.

Chairman Gerald Carlson told All-University Cabinet last night that the committee will study the possibility of using the Book Exchange for a nucleus for the store.

He said the committee wants to see whether the book store can fit into the Hetzel Union Building expansion plans or will need a separate building.

The committee has been studying the legal problems, Carlson said, and it has found no evidence to support the theory that a University-owned store would compete illegally with free enterprise.

Carlson said the committee is interviewing members of the administration, deans, department heads and faculty members to sound out the University's stand on a store.

Questionnaires have been sent to other schools which own their book stores, Carlson said. The questionnaires ask about problems of growth and problems with students, administration and faculty and the type of goods carried.

The committee is preparing a list of advantages for a book store, which Carlson said would be the biggest selling point in any report to the University.

In other business, Cabinet approved a motion by Daily Collegian Editor Robert Franklin to commit a proposed title change

The new open class policy extends also to all University personnel, subject to the regulations governing their individual employment.

The open class recommendation came from the Senate Committee on Educational Policy, and said that the open classes would "encourage learning" among students.

In other business the Senate approved, after considerable debate a report defining the terms of "suspension" for disciplinary reasons and the grounds under which a student may be reinstated in the University.

The report, which came from the Senate Committee on Student Affairs, said a student would be reinstated only by the Senate Subcommittee on Discipline.

Lawrence J. Perez, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, proposed that the reinstatement be granted with the approval of the dean of the college in which the student was enrolled, as well as the subcommittee. Perez's motion was defeated.

President Eric A. Walker told the Senate that he has asked the University Controller to study the problem of establishing contracts for the faculty members who wish to teach in summer school.

The new system would also place the hiring of faculty members under the supervision of the individual college deans. The deans would also have charge of the payrolls for those teaching in his college.

Under the present system, faculty members can request to teach summer school courses but are only hired if their courses have

Postmaster Retires After 25 Years

Robert C. Miller, postmaster for State College for more than 25 years, has announced plans for retirement on Jan. 1.

Miller directed the State College mail service during its growth from 20 employees in 1933 to 80 at the present time.

Acting on the recommendation of Representative James E. Van Zandt, the Post Office Department in Washington will appoint an acting postmaster.

Van Zandt said yesterday the acting postmaster can serve six months, and during that period Civil Service examinations will be held for candidates for the permanent position. The timetable is such that by the middle of next summer a permanent appointment can be made.

Mil Ball Queen Finalists Chosen From 38 Women

Five finalists for Military Ball Queen have been selected by cadets at the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va.

The finalists are: Susan Graham, junior in arts and letters from Bloomington, Ill., sponsored by John Kubert of the Air Force ROTC; Judy Norton, sophomore in education from Merion, sponsored by John Dunn of the Army ROTC; Judy Tifenberg, sophomore in arts and letters from Syracuse, N.Y., sponsored by Gary Fry of the Army ROTC; Cynthia Frederick of Springfield, sponsored by Ward Muller of the Air Force ROTC; and Joan Aitken of Philadelphia, sponsored by George Ward of the Air Force ROTC.

Two of the women, Miss Frederick and Miss Aitken, are not students at the University.

The queen contestants were chosen from the 38 applicants whose pictures were submitted. Robert Parker, chairman of the publicity committee, said.

The final judges for the contest are: 2nd Lt. James D. Grisby, Army; Capt. Alan E. Wolfe, Air Force; and Lt. Donald C. White, Navy.

The queen will be announced during an intermission at the dance. She will receive a trophy and a bouquet of flowers and the other finalists will receive smaller trophies.

Scabbard and Blade and Pershing Rifles will form a sabre arch and cordon for the finalists as they walk to the stage with their escorts.

Cadets and midshipmen and their dates will form a reception line at 9 p.m. All who attend the dance are encouraged to go through the receiving line. William Simon, secretary of the Military Ball committee, said.

Tickets will remain on sale today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Military formal dress is required of ROTC members. Civilians may wear formal or semi-formal dress.
