Student Group Will Present Bach Cantata

A group of students under the direction of Raymond Brown, assistant professor of music, will perform "Sleepers Wake," a Bach Cantata, at 3:15 p.m. today in 117 Carnegie Building.

The group, which will perform the cantata (No. 140), was formed and trained by Brown for the purpose of singing this and other rarely heard choral works.

Serenade for two flutes and harp from "L'Enfance du Christ" by Hector Berlioz will be given in the same program.

Featured soloists in the Bach Cantata are Mary Jane West, senior in music education from Bethlehem, soprano; Wayne Zarr, senior in arts and letters from Levittown, tenor; William Reeves, senior in arts from Blue Bell, baritone. Instrumentalists in the group are Mary Ann Frazier, oboeist, and Theodore Karhan, violinist.

Susan Suhr, junior in music education from Myerstown, and Samuel Tolotta, junior in electrical engineering from Philadelphia, flutists, and Nan Gullo, harpist, will perform the Berlioz serenade.

Admission is free and the public has been invited.

87 Tickets Remain For Artist Concert

A total of 87 out of an allotted 875 student tickets remain at the Hetzel Union desk for students who wish to attend the Elizabeth Schwarzkopf concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

Ticket distribution will continue through today and tomorrow. Students must present matriculation cards when obtaining them. Sixty-eight non-student tickets remain for sale. The price is $1.25.

Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, a soprano who began her training in Berlin and became famous in Europe before coming to America, became one of the most popular concert performers in the United States after just one appearance. Miss Schwarzkopf, a star of countless performances at Covent Garden (London), Vienna, Salzburg and Luzerne, was known to Americans only through her recordings until Oct. 25, 1953.

On that day—a Sunday afternoon—she made her long awaited American debut in New York City singing a lieder program before a jam-packed Town Hall audience. She won critical raves and had the audience begging for more.

The next morning she left for Zurich where she was scheduled to sing in "Fidelio" two nights later, but she promised to return and her first American tour in autumn was completely sold out—a record for a new artist. In the summer of 1955 Miss Schwarzkopf appeared at the Ravina, Stratford and Canadian festivals and at the Hollywood Bowl. A few weeks after that she began her second sell-out tour in which she made her U.S. opera debut on the West Coast. Critics termed it "sensational."

Since the fall of 1954 when Miss Schwarzkopf added America to her tour schedule, she has been criss-crossing the United States annually, singing lieder recitals, appearing with leading orchestras and in opera with the San Francisco Opera Company.
