

Neff, Riley, Dunn Capture Intramural Boxing Decisions

By DAVE HLADICK

Heavyweights Norm Neff, Phi Kappa Psi, and Ed White, Phi Delta Theta, highlighted last night's Intramural boxing card with a slugfest that had spectators cheering every blow. Neff, a bull-shouldered slugger, managed to pound out a unanimous decision.

The first round of the scrap was fairly mild with both boys adjusting themselves for the final surge. Neff relied upon sharp counterpunches to offset the driving rushes of White. In the second stanza Neff continued his point-making counterpunching and rocked White with several roundhouse rights.

Neff opened up the third round with full gusto and proceeded to take command of the bout. In the furious third Neff used a deluge of right hands to knock White around the ring like a rubber ball.

brawl. Dunn showed superb class and ring finesse as he pounded out a unanimous 3-round decision.

DePietro used a persistent rushing offense against his taller opponent but Dunn's sharp counters managed to squelch his opponent's free swinging blows. Dunn dropped DePietro for a mandatory eight count in the third and both combatants finished the bout with a toe-to-toe exchange.

John Ward, Sigma Pi, defeated Marlin Ebert, Delta Sigma Phi, in a 145-pound bout that was stopped in the second round.

Ron Stanish won a split decision over Larry Cooper in the only Independent scrap of the evening. The 165-pound Stanish was fast and aggressive as he repeatedly rocked his opponent. (Continued on page eight)

Toughest Part Over According to Egli

It isn't often that a basketball coach can say that the toughest part of his season is over after the first two games, but Penn State Coach John Egli can.

The first two games his team played were against the number four and five teams in the nation, according to this week's Associated Press basketball poll. West Virginia who beat the Nittanies Saturday night, 78-63, is ranked fourth while North Carolina State, the team that tamed the Lions in the opener, 70-54, is ranked fifth.

Both games were played on foreign courts and the scores don't really tell the calibre of ball that Penn State played. In both games they held the Mounties and Wolfpack at bay for the first half, but they fell apart both times in the second half.

Penn State doesn't play North Carolina State again this season but it meets West Virginia at Rec Hall Jan. 8. West Virginia will be tough here, but Egli is promising some surprises.

Egli figured that the North Carolina State and West Virginia games would be the toughest that his team would play during the year. There are still games to be played against the likes of Temple, Bucknell, Syracuse, Pitt and Lehigh, but none of these teams can be compared with West Virginia and North Carolina State.

West Virginia and North Carolina State don't meet during the regular season, but Egli feels that a game between the two would be interesting to see.

According to the Lion mentor, the Wolfpack is tougher now but he thinks that West Virginia has more room for improvement because of its overall depth and speed.

The Lion coach cited the fact that West Virginia plays a fast breaking game while N.C. State plays a good defensive game. "A game between these two teams would really be something to see," Egli said.

Mont Resigns as Coach Of Maryland Grid Team

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Tommy Mont yesterday resigned, apparently under pressure, as head football coach at the University of Maryland.

The resignation came only 24 hours after the Board of Regents' athletic committee had discussed whether to renew Mont's contract.

Drexler, Lambda Chi Alpha, in a 155-pound scrap. Riley supported his attack with a quick left jab and smooth right crosses, which landed on the target with amazing accuracy.

In the second and third frames Riley continued to use his jab effectively and pounded Drexler continually.

Dave Dunn, Delta Tau Delta, and Gabriel DePietro, Tau Phi Delta, matched blows in a crowd-pleasing 145-pound
